Kalorik History

Established in Belgium, in 1930, Kalorik® has become synonymous with fine engineering and unique product development. As one of Europe's first manufacturers of small electric appliances, the company's initial product was one of the very first electric toasters. With this well recognized achievement and a thirst for new invention, the company established offices in the U.K., Germany and Switzerland to further innovate and design new and exciting products.

Today, Kalorik® is a second-generation industry leader. Its passion to create superior products is a guiding force in the company's commitment to new trends in product development, meticulous care for detail, and to maintaining cutting edge manufacturing facilities. It is this careful balance, combined with Kalorik's experience and traditional values that has led to the company's worldwide success.
