Color Use

Primary brand colors are black and white, since our focus is on simplicity and utility. Black and white have the best contrast, and are also color-blindness friendly. The secondary colors are violet, blue, and red.

Color should be used sparingly as accents to differentiate content, or imply functionality, such as links. Body text with color accents should be bolded for extra legibility.

Logo Use

The Forward Future Logo is an integral part of the brand identity. The logo should only be in solid colors and be fully visible. Always keep the original proportions of the logo. Original logo files should already have a 10% margin around all sides. If not, please add a margin of at least 10% of the image height.

Content Organization

Website Layout

For ease of reading, most of our website should utilise a white background with black text. Special information may permit pages to display white text on a black background. Headers and text are mainly left-aligned. Keep text decorations and colors minimal. Ideally, the visitor's attention will naturally gravitate towards the products. Please refer back to the color and logo use page for guidance regarding color use in text.

Navigation should be easy to access and self-explanatory. Content should have consistent spacing throughout each page. Make sure that the contents do not obstruct each other even when the browser window changes size. Older internet browsers may not support some functionalities of our website. Maintain a positive user experience even for visitors from these browsers.

Tone of Voice

The tone of voice for any text by Forward Future should be straightforward, concise, and free of any grammatical errors. Be cognizant of our values when authoring any writing, such as product descriptions, social media posts, and replies to users. Humor can be included in the text, but should be respectful of others and the Forward Future brand.
