Final Lab Instructions

The final lab will take you through common data science tasks, like importing, manipulating, and visualizing data. You will review what you've already learned and maybe pick up a few new tricks along the way.

The final lab for this course consists of three sections, in each of which you will use the DataCamp environment to complete exercises. For each section, you must launch the DataCamp environment by clicking the Start Section x button in this course to open the DataCamp environment in a new browser tab.

As with the other labs, the final lab includes hints and feedback messages. Make sure to complete this lab to recap all the skills you need to get ready for the next step in your data science journey.
