Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors

Week of 2/16/14

By Shauna Krause of Capitol Services, Inc.

Some things can change, and sometimes remain the same as our first contractor learns. We 'dash' the hopes of another contractor who has discovered you can't work without 'DOSH'. What you don't know can hurt you, as a Nevada contractor gets a tax bill from California he didn't know was coming...

Q: We will soon be making some structural changes to our corporation. It will keep the same EIN number and Secretary of State registration number but we will be changing the name and Officers on our license. Is there a certain amount of time that we have to report these changes to the CSLB? Will this require the need for a new license number?

A: The CSLB allows 90 days to report a name and/or Officer change. Please note that for the name change you must first register the change with the CA Secretary of State. As long as your registration number with the Secretary of State remains the same, you do not need to apply for a new license number.

Q: When a contractor has the ASB (Asbestos) Certification, doesn't that also require them to have the Division of Occupational Safety and Health, or DOSH, registration in order to perform asbestos abatement? Is there any restriction if they don't also have the DOSH?

A: Yes, if a contractor has the Asbestos Certification they are required to register with DOSH. They cannot perform asbestos abatement without it.

Q: My Sole Proprietor license was revoked last year and I was wondering if I may form a corporation with an Responsible Managing Officer (RMO) in order to do business? I would be the owner and Vice President but he would be President/Secretary/Treasurer/RMO so he would be the only one on the contractor's license.

A: According to B&P Code 7121.5 an individual who was the Qualifying individual on a revoked license "shall be prohibited from serving as an officer, director, associate, partner, manager, or qualifying individual of a licensee". In order to act in any other capacity other than a bona fide non-supervising employee for a contractor, is with the CSLB's approval and most likely a disciplinary bond.

Q: We are a Nevada corporation and you helped us get licensed years ago in California. We did a couple jobs but haven't worked out there in several years and we let our contractor's license expire. I was just made aware that we were still being taxed and I want to cancel our corporate status in CA so that we don't incur any further taxes. Are we required to pay back taxes prior to closing the CA corporation?

A: Yes. In order to surrender the corporation you must file any delinquent tax returns and file a final/current year tax return. You should contact your CPA or tax professional for more information or assistance with this process.

Chainsaw Safety

Any tool powerful enough to slice through wood can do the same to human flesh, so chainsaw injuries are often serious. Before you operate a chainsaw, make sure you read and understand the operator's manual and make sure you have the right chainsaw for the job. The instruction manual should describe the saw's capabilities. If you rent a saw, be sure to get a demonstration of how it works, including its safety features. Then make sure your saw is sharp, properly tensioned, and in good condition. When you're going to use a chain saw, wear protective clothing which includes a hard hat, safety goggles, gloves to give you a good grip, hearing protection, steel-toed shoes with nonslip soles, and trim-fitting clothes that won't get caught in the chain.

Start your chainsaw according to the manual's direction. Clear the work area so the chain won't touch anything but the wood you want to cut and place the saw on a level surface; never rest a saw on your leg or drop-start it. Stand to the side of the saw so you won't follow the cut through into your leg and stand on the uphill side of your work so it won't roll into you. Hold the saw parallel to the ground with your left arm straight for better control and to reduce the chance of the saw pushing into you if it kicks back. Keep both hands on the saw while its running. Work slowly, don't rush. Let the chainsaw do the work; never force it. Avoid cutting above mid-chest height. Never attempt to cut a tree with a diameter greater than the length of the chainsaw blade and watch for branches that may spring back as you cut. Always be aware of what is in the saw's downward path after the cut. It's a good idea to take frequent breaks from cutting so you don't operate the saw when you're tired.

Although some chainsaw injuries are caused by operator error, kickback is the greatest cause of chainsaw injuries. In kickback, the upper chain "grabs" in the wood or an obstruction and forces the saw backward, causing operator to either lose control of the saw or lose balance, bringing the saw into contact with the body. Some chainsaws have chain brakes that are designed to instantly stop the saw after kickback. While these don't prevent kickback, they can reduce the severity of injury from it.

Carry the saw below your waist, with the engine off and guide bar pointed to the rear, so if you trip the saw drops behind you. If your saw is electric, make sure you use an extension cord that's approved for outdoor use and don't use the saw in a damp environment. Fuel gasoline-powered chainsaws outdoors, being careful not to overfill or spill the fuel. Never refuel a hot saw. Let it cool down first, and have a fire extinguisher nearby.

It's dangerous to work alone with a chainsaw. Have a companion within calling distance, but keep bystanders and helpers at a safe distance from operation so that they will not be injured by the saw, flying chips, sawdust or by what you're working on.
