CHOOSE CAREFULLY

Apps are great. There's something for everyone. Play, communicate, w ork, or just for fun. But remember, choose your apps carefully. Here's a few tips to help:

- To help prevent spyware, phishing or viruses affecting your phone or privacy, use apps from trusted sites, like a Market
- In Market, check the apps' ratings and comments before installing. This will help you choose the best on es for you.
- If you doubt the safety of an app, don't install it.
- Like all app s, download ed apps will u se up memory, data, battery, and processing power—some more than others. For example, simple settings widget will use less than a streaming music player app. After installing an app, if you're not happy with how much memory, data, battery or processing pow er it's using, unin stall it. You can always in stall it again later.

Radio Frequency (RF) Energy

Exposure to RF Energy

Your mobile device contains a transmitter and receiver. When it is ON, it receives and transmits RF energy When you communicate with your mobile device, the system handlingyour call control sthe power level at which your mobile device transmits. Your mobile device is designed to comply with local regulatory requirements in your country concerning excosure of human beings to FF energy.

RF Energy Operational Precautions

Foroptimal mobile device performance, and to be sure that human exposure to RF energy does not exceed the guidelines set forth in the relevants tandards, al ways follow these instructions and precautions:

- When placing orreceiving a phonecall, hold your mobile device just like you would a landline phone.
- If youwear the motile device on your body, always place the motile device in a Motional a supplied or approved in ju holds; holds increase, or body harress. If you do not use a body worn accessory supplied or approved by Motoria, keep the mobile device and its anterna at least 2 5cm(1 inch) from your body when transmitting.
- Using accessories not supplied or approved by Mttrolamay cause yourmobil edexice to exceed RF energy exposureguidelines. For a list of Mttrol a supplied or approved accessories, visit ourviebs te at: www.motorola.com

RF Energy Interference/Compatibility

Nearly every electronic device is subject to Frenergy interference from external sources if inadequately shielded, designed, or otherwise configured for Frenergy compatibility in some circums hances, your mobile devicemary cause interference with other devices.

Follow Instructions to Avoid Interference Problems

Turn off your mobile device in any location where posted notices instruct you to doso. In an articraft, turnoff your mobile device where we instructed to doso by airline staff. If your mobile device offers an airplane mode or similar feature, consultair linest aff about using it in flight.

Implantable Medical Devices

If youhae an implantablemedical device, such as a pagemakeror defibrillator, consult your physician before using this mobile device.

Persons with implantable medical devices should observe the following precautions:

- ALWAYS keep the mobile device more than 20 centimeters (8 inches) from the implantable medical device when the mobile device is turned ON
- DONOT carry the mobile device in the breast pocket.
- Use the ear opposite the implantable medical device to minimize the potential for interference.
- Tum OFF themabile device immediately if you have any reason to suspect that interforence is taking place.

Read and follow the directions from the manufacturer of your implantable medical device. If you have any questions about using your mobile device with your implantable medical device, consult your heal thcare provider.

Specific Absorption Rate (IEEE)

YOUR MOBILE DEVICE MEETS FCC LIMITS FOR EXPOSURE TO RADIO WAVES.

You mobile device is a radio transmitterand receiver. It is designed motto exceed the limits for exposure to radio via estimation frequency dectomagnetic fields) adopted by the Federal Commit cations Commission (FCC). These limits include assubstantial safety magin designed to assue the safety of all persons, regardless of age and health. Theradio wave exposure guidelines use a unit of measurement knownas the Specific Assoption Rate, or SAR. The SAR limit for mobile devices is 1.6W/kg Teats for SAR are conducted using standard operatingosi tions with the device transmitting at its highest certified power level in all tested for fequency bands. The highest SAR values under the FCC guidelines for your device model are listed below.

HeadSAR	CDMA800/1900, Wi-Fi, Bluetooth	0.77 W/kg
Body-worn SAR	CDMA800/1900, WI-Fi, Bluet coth	1.46 W/kg

Duringuse, the actual SAR values for your device are usually well below the values stated This is because, for purposes of system efficiency and to minimize interference on the network, the operating power of your mobile device is a tomatically decreased when full power is not needed for the call. The lower the power output of the device, the lower its SAR value.

Body worn SAR testing has been carried out using an approved accessory or at a separation distance of 25cm (1) rich). Tomeet RF exposure git delines during body worn operation, the devices body life you are not using an approved accessory, ensure that whatever product is used is free of any metal and that it positions herefore at least 25 cm (1) inch) away from the body.

The World Health Organization has stated that present scientific information does not indicate the need for any special precautions for the use of mobile devices. They recommend that if you are interested infurther reducing your exposure then you can easily do so by limiting your usage or simply using a hands-free kit tokeep the device away from the head and body.

Location Services (GPS & AGPS)

The following information is applicable to Motor da mobile devices that provide location based (GPS and /or AGPS) functionality

You mobile device can use Global Positioning System(GPS) signals for location-based applications. GPS uses satellites controlled by the U.S. government that are subject to changes implemented in accordance with the Department of Defense policy and the Federal Radio Navigation Plan. These changes may affect the performance of location technology on your mobile device.

Your mobile device can also use Assisted Global Positioning System(AGPS), which obtains information from the dellular network to improve GPS performance. AGPS uses your wireless service provide's network and therefore airline, data dranges, and/or additional charges may apply in accordance with your service plan. Contact your wireless service provider for details.

Your Location

Location-based information includes information that can be used to determine the approximate location of annohi ded vice. Mobil ed vices which are connected to a wireless network transmit docation based information. Devices enabled with GPSor AGPS technid gyal so transmit location based information. Add to really, if you use applications that require location-based information (eg. driving directions), such applications transmit location-based information. This location based information may be share dwith third parties, including your wireless service provider, applications providers, Mobional and directing services.

Emergency Calls

When yournakean emergency call, the cellular network may activate the AGPS technology in your mobile device total the emergency responders your approximate location.

AGPS has limitations and might notwork in your area. Therefore

- Always tell theemergency responder your location to thebest of your ability, and
- Remain on the phone for as long as the emergency responder instructs you

Navigation

Thefd lowing information is applicable to Motorola mobile devices that provide ravigation features.

When using nargation features, note that mapping information, directions and other revigational data may contain intercurate or incomplete data insome countries, complete information may not be available. Therefore, you should/vsually confirm that the revigational instructions are consistent with what you see. All drives should pay attention to readound tions, closues, traffic, and all other factors that may impact driving. Aways doey posed read signs.

Smart Practices While Driving

Check the laws and regulations on the use of mobile devices and their accessories in the areas where you drive. Always obey them. The use of these devices maybe prolibited or estricted in certain areas—for example, hands free use only may be required. Go to www.motorola.com/callsmart (in English only] for more information.

Packaging & Product Guides

Product packaging and product guides should only be disposed of in accordance with rational collection and recycling requirements. Please contact your regional authorities for more details.

California Perchlorate Label

Some mobile phonesuse an internal, permanent backupbattery on the printedoircuit board that may contain very small amounts of perchlorate. In such cases, California law requires the following label:

Peichlorate Material — special handing may apply when the battery is recycled or d sposed of See www.dtsc.ca.gov/hazard.ouswaste/peichlorate There is no special handling required by consumers.

Hearing Aid Compatibility with Mobile Phones

Some Mtorolaphones are measured for compatibility with hearing a ds. If the tox for your particular model has "Rated for Hearing A ds" printed on it, the following explanation applies.

Whensome mobile phones are used nears one hearing devices (hearing aids and oo hear ind ants), users may detect ablizing humming or with inignoise. Some hearing devices are note immune than others to this interferencencies, and phones also vary in the amount of interference they generate Thewird ess telephone industry has developed atings for some of their mobil ephones, to as sist hearing device uses in finding phones that may be compatible with their hearing devices. Not all phoneshae been rated. Phonesthatae rated have the rating on their boxora label on thebox. Tomaintain the published HearingAid Compatibility (HAC) rating for this mobile phone, use only the original equipment battery model.

This prone has been tested and rated for us ewith hearing a ds for some of the wireless technologies that it uses. However, there may be some never wireless technologies used in this prone that have not been tested yet for uses with the anignaids. It is important to try the different features of this prone throughly and in different locations, using your tearing aid or coch earimplant, to determine if you hear any interfering noise. On tact your service provide or Mator da for information on tearing aid compatibility. If you have questions about return or exchangeped icies, contact your service provider or phone retailer.

The ratings are rotgunantees. Results will vary depending on the user's hearing device and hearing loss. If your hearing device happens to be when able to itser ference, you may not be able to use a rated phone successfully. Trying out the phone with your hearing device is the best way to evaluate it for your personal needs. MRatings: Nones rated/M3 or M4 meet FCC requirements and are likely to generate less interference to hearing devices than phones that are not labeled. M4 is the better/higher of the two ratings.

FRatings Phonesrated T3 of T4 meetFCC requirements and are likely tobemore usable with a hearing devices ted ecoil ("T Switch" or "TelephoneSwitch") than unrated phones. T4 is the beter/higher of the two ratings. (Note that not all hearing devices have below is in them.)

Heating devices may also be necessited for immunity to this type of interference. Your hearing device manufacturer or hearing health professional may help you find results for your hearing device. Themore immune your hearing aid is, the less likely you are to experience metifierence mose from mobile phones.
