2015 PRODUCT GUIDE

flextone
GAME CALLS

Flextone® Game Calls was established in 1997 when founder Tom Wiley, was working as a Registered Nurse in the emergency room and transformed a piece of surgical tubing into a more natural sounding duck call. Wiley realized that the soft rubber tubing imitated the same soft flexible tissue found in the throat and mouth of most game animals. Knowing that animals produce sounds by vibrating soft vocal cords in hard cartilage voice box called a larynx. The sound then travels through chambers of soft tissue in the neck and mouth. It's these soft flexible chambers that give inflection and meaning to the vocalizations they make.

Flextone® Technology uses similar soft flexible material to imitate similar soft flexible tissue found in animal's neck and mouth. It's this concept that separates Flextone® from all other game calls available to today. It's the soft flexible material that delivers realistic tones and sounds along with the ability to flex or manipulate the material to add inflection into your calling sequence. Hard plastic calls just can't provide the accurate tones or varying inflections needed when trying to duplicate the various animals and their vocabulary. This is why Flextone® game calls continues to be the hunter's preferred game call due to its realistic tones and ease of use.

Flextone's 4-Loop Lanyard in Realtree's APG® springtime camo allows for your favorite locator call or Flextone's popular Thunder Series™ calls to be worn around your neck. Its noose type loops securely hold your most used calls close to your mouth and easy to access. No more fumbling around your turkey vest trying to find the right call for the situation. The 4-loop lanyard always keeps your most used calls ready and waiting to be used. Since the lanyard positions the calls close to your mouth, minimum movement is required when switching calls reducing chance of wary gobbling detecting you.

Flextone® has teamed up with legendary turkey caller Eddie Salter to create the “Turkey Man Series” of premium turkey calls. The Ol’ School™ is a compact two-sided box call with an ol’ traditional feel. The walnut lid and cedar one-piece base allows for two distinct tones. One side reproduces loud and raspy yelps, cutts and cackles. The other side creates the clearer softer seductive tones of mating yelps, clucks and purrs. Eddie Salter wanted to design a more traditional sounding box call, but with an ergonomic and modern look. The Ol’ School’s rounded base makes it very comfortable to hold and call with without compromising tone or volume. Don’t be fooled by the beauty of the two-tone cedar base as it makes this mini box call scream with springtime sex appeal.

THE BROTHERHOOD SERIES

Flexitone® has teamed up with world champion turkey caller Michael Waddell to create the “Bone Collector Series” Booger Bottom™ box call. Named after Michael’s favorite childhood place to hunt, “Booger Bottom”, it sports a two-sided one piece base made from cedar for an ol’ traditional feel. The responsive walnut lid reproduces loud and raspy yelps, cutts and cackles from one side while the other side creates the clearer softer seductive tones of mating yelps, clucks and purrs. Michael Waddell wanted to design a more traditional sounding box call using cedar, but with a modern look that can scream loud with aggressive calls, yet tone it down with pure springtime sex appeal. The Booger Bottom Box™ delivers those versatile sounds while sporting the beauty of ol’ traditional looks.

The Lock Down™ slate and glass pot calls use a patent pending design to attach and protect its striker through use of a magnet. Its unique design allows the wooden striker head to be placed inside the cavity of the pot and locks in place. This not only protects the conditioned head of the striker, but also keeps the striker attached to the pot for immediate use when needed. No more losing your striker or trying to find it when a quick set-up is needed as the Lock Down™ will be locked and loaded for use any time afield. The striker also sports a conditioning stone on the end for quick conditioning of the slate or glass surface when needed.

Deer Calls was established in 1997 when Tom Willey, founder of Flex-Tone game calls, while working in the Emergency Room, transformed a piece of tubing into a more natural sounding duck call. Willey was always looking for a better sounding game call. He realized that you could make a more natural sounding call by building a call that mimicked the soft flex of a game animal's throat. A hard plastic call would not do the job.

GROUND GRUNT'R

The Ground Grunt'R™ uses a 30 foot hose and a patent pending sound chamber emitter that allows a hunter in a tree or ground blind to blow through the hose and emit buck grunts 30 feet away from his hunting location. This directs the deer's attention to the sound and away from the hunter's location, allowing for needed minimal movements and reducing the possibility of spooking deer already close to the hunter. Works best around food plots or feeders where high concentration of does and bucks are.

GROUND GRUNT'R™

- + Emits grunts away from hunter's location.
- + Allows for minimal movements by hunter without detection.

WATERFOWL CALLS

WILY MALLARD DUCK CALLS

The Flextone® Wily Mallard™ Single & Double Reed calls are new revisions from the original duck call that Tom Wiley designed in the 90's. The slightly larger body coupled with thicker diameter walls make these calls not only more rigid, but improve on the tones the calls make producing more realistic sounds. The new mellow tones make these calls the perfect answer to close range calling to "call shy" late season mallards, making the Wily Mallard™ calls a true "meat call".

HISTORY OF ABE & SON

Abe and Son Elk Calls was founded by Ralph "Abe" Meline in 1990. Based in Coos Bar, OR at the time, Ralph Meline was a logger and cutter for 40 years by trade. His love and passion for hunting began in 1963 as he began hunting mule deer and small game. It wasn't until 1975 when he began bow hunting elk, did his addiction with calling elk into close range start. For the next 15 years, Ralph or "Abe" affectionately called by his friends and customers due to his similar looks to Abe Lincoln, began designing elk calls that made his elk hunting experiences more successful.

Abe paid close attention to the elk vocabulary and was obsessed at duplicating the precise tone, pitch and sounds of bulls, cows and calves through elk calls that he designed. Abe's incredible ear for hearing and duplicating elk sounds allowed him to play with different materials and components to achieve perfectly matched sounds made by elk. Abe used latex reeds that were very versatile as it allowed the hunter to stretch the reed to their particular style of calling. Abe realized it was much easier for the hunter to change the reeds to their way of calling, verses forcing the hunter to change their way of calling based upon a pre-stretched reed or mylar reed.

Abe designed recessed back plates in conjunction with the latex reeds to make it easier to change the tone and pitch of the various sounds that elk make. By simply changing the depth or width of the back plates, it allowed the hunter to easily achieve high pitch bugles to deep growls of any age of bulls or the high pitched chips to deeps mew of herd talk between cows and their calves. These elements are what make Abe and Son Elk Calls different yet far superior over other brands of elk calls. Flexitone® is proud to team up with Abe to continue to offer the Abe and Son Series of elk calls to avid elk hunters, offering Abe's "tried and true" calls from the past, and creating totally new designs that will revolutionize calling elk and make hunters more successful in the field and on the mountains.
