HONEYWELL WINS PRESTIGIOUS AWARD FROM CHINA'S INTELLIGENT BUILDING INDUSTRY

Qianjia.com Ranks Honeywell As No.1 Brand In Building Automation Controls

SHANGHAI – January 8th, 2013 –Honeywell (NYSE: HON) announced today that it has won the China Intelligent Building Brand Award and was ranked as the No. 1 building automation controls brand in China by Qianjia.com. For eight consecutive years, Honeywell's building automation control products have received this honor from Qianjia Brand Lab of qianjia.com.

China's Intelligent Building Brand Award is one of the industry's highest accolades and is respected in the industry for its objectivity and fairness. Qianjia.com ranked Honeywell as the top Building Automation Control Brand in 2012 after evaluation of brand value, market research, user feedback and expert appraisal. The award ceremony of the China Intelligent Building Brand Award 2012 was held at the Dong Fang Hotel in Guangzhou in December, 2012.

“Qianjia Brand Labs feels that Honeywell is most deserving of this award because of the excellent performance of their control products, which outperform the other players in this space,” said Mr. Xiang Zhonghong, CEO of Qianjia.com. “Honeywell is the well-deserved leader in the field of building automation control based on all aspects of technological innovation, customer satisfaction, market share and growth potential.”

"It is a great honor for Honeywell to be recognized again by qianjia.com. It provides a welcome endorsement of our achievement in building automation technologies, and demonstrates our continuous innovation and influence in this area," said Frank Nonnenmann, vice president and general manager of Asia for Honeywell Environmental & Combustion Control (ECC).
