Preparing for YOUR Future

This year's program will focus on Preparing for YOUR Future. The information we gather from patients at all stages in the process and how this input is used to guide clinical care in amplification will be discussed in lectures and workshops.

We will also have a special session during which a group of audiologists will describe the process of establishing and maintaining a healthy private practice.

Participants will be the guests of Oticon, Inc. with expenses for lodging and most meals being covered by Oticon, Inc. For those students flying into Denver International Airport (DEN), we will provide complimentary bus transportation between the airport and Keystone (a two hour ride) on Saturday, July 28th and departing on Thursday, August 2nd. Once you have received notification of acceptance to camp, more detailed information will be provided about making your travel arrangements. In addition, upon arrival at the camp, Oticon will provide a $150 travel reimbursement stipend to all attending students.
