A Great Novelty Ballad—
Ten Commandments of Love

- FIRST—You must believe that everything is for the best.
- SECOND—Do what you'd have others do to you.
- THIRD—Don't be conceited. You're no better than the rest.
- FOURTH—Be human.
- FIFTH—Be grateful you're still living too.
- SIXTH—You must be loyal to the land in which you live.
- SEVENTH—Fight for what is right and
- EIGHTH—Learn to forgive.
- NINTH—Treat each man like a brother.
- TENTH—Respect your dad and mother.

BIG SMASHING HIT

Electrifies Broadway and Stirs All New York

"WHAT PRICE GLORY"

By Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings, Produced by Arthur Hopkins, Pronounced Most Remarkable Offering in Years

New York, Sept. 7.—Out of the plethora of new offerings at Broadway theaters last week, some fifteen in all, there emerged one play that achieved such instant, surprising and complete success, scored such a great big smashing hit, a hit of such magnificent proportions and colossal magnitude that it has already stood the hard-boiled habits of the Radio on their heads with excitement and plunged Times Square into a ferment of extravagant prediction and speculation. The whole town will be sitting up and manifest-

Campaigning Against Guild

Actors' Association and V. A. F. Both Fighting "Scab" Union

London, Sept. 7 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—The meeting of the Trade Union Congress passed off quietly as regards the interunion quarrel between the Actors' Association and the Variety Artists' Federation, the president of the congress refusing to allow either party to air its grievances; so the threat of the Actors' Association to have the V. A. F. expelled fell flat.

Alfred Lugg, speaking on the resolution concerning the unionization of the actors, made a violent attack on the Stage Guild as a scab organization. The Actors' Association also circulated a pamphlet among all the delegates and certainly got a sympathetic hearing on this score. No hostile resolution was made to the Variety Artists' Federation. The resolution was carried.

It is alleged that Sir Alfred Butt and P. J. Nettleford have done $150,000

COOL WEATHER BRINGS RUSH OF BUSINESS ON BROADWAY

Box-Office and Ticket Agency Men Say Present Rate of Sales Gives Promise of Prosperous Season for Broadway Theatricals

New York, Sept. 6.—A prosperous season is in the offing for Broadway, the opening week being the most propitious enjoyed by legitimate attractions generally in some years, according to box-office reports obtained tonight.

On the heels of the advent of cool weather this week and the invasion of some fifteen shows came a rush of business at the theater box-offices and Broadway ticket agencies. Managers of ticket agencies, regarded as the most reliable barometer of business conditions on the street, agreed that the sales of the current week ending tonight give promise of a big season, the advance sales being far ahead of those obtained last season at this stage of the game.

Tickets for musical comedies, they say, seem to be the greatest in demand, with the big-hit holdover dramatic shows going as strong as ever. The majority of the shows that opened this week are doing a heaping business. All the shows that closed during the Equity run and opened this week are getting back into good form with the exception of one to be found on the circuit counters.

The agency men attribute the rush of business to the fact that this had been an unusual hot summer, and the arrival of cool fall weather has sent them scurrying to the shows which they have been anxious to see. Besides, they say, seem to be more ready to spend their money on amuse-

Committee Favors Show License Cut

$75 First Day, $50 Each Day Thereafter for Carnival and Dramatic Tent Shows in Los Angeles—New Parade Ordinance Passed

Los Angeles, Sept. 4.—The special committee appointed by the Finance Committee of the City Council to investigate and make a report on carnivals and dramatic shows under canvas in the city of Los Angeles, so far as licenses are concerned, has completed its work. The report reads:

"In compliance with the instructions of the Finance Committee, a conference was held by the City Attorney, Mr. Seymour and the Efficiency Director, and, as the result of this conference, it was decided to recommend the following solution for your consideration:

"1st. For every person, firm or corporation conducting, managing or carrying on any theatrical performance under or surrounding or partially enclosed by canvas, such as comedy, spoken drama, opera or concerts, $75 for the first day and $50 for each additional day.

N. Y. Operators' Strike Is Comic Opera Affair

Wage Demand Went by the Board at Showdown —Some Exhibitors Signed Both Ways, Union and Non-Union

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The end of the first week of the motion picture operators' strike in Greater New York finds about seventy-five theaters using non-union men—theaters which were previously union houses. About half of this number are owned by members of the Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce, the rest independent. A great many of T. O. C. C. members who were prepared to install non-union men, some of them even having had them in for a few days, signed up with the union on their own terms.

The union first demanded a 30 per cent wage increase and the inauguration of the double-shift system, which would have caused the employment of two men in most of the houses where only one operator is now used. The last year scale for operators averaged about $56 a week. The adoption of the union's full demands would have brought down the operators' work to six hours a day and left their wages, with the 30 per cent increase, at about the old level.

Before the expiration of the old agreement on August 31, however, the union, Moving Picture Operators' Union, Local 308, agreed to reduce its demands for a wage increase to 5 per cent. This raise, in conjunction with the double-shift system, would have reduced the operators' pay to around $10 weekly.

August 31 came, the agreement expired, and the Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce still officially rejected the union offer. The owners had made arrangements for non-union operators and had also engaged private detectives to insure the protection of the theaters using strikebreakers. Nevertheless, when Labor Day, September 1, came around conditions were chaotic. Some non-union exhibitors who had signed contracts with independent operators couldn't stand the worry and strain and signed up with the union, agreeing to give the 5 per cent raise and to put in two shifts of projectionists. As a result, they now have to pay two sets of salaries, to the union and non-union operators. Such cases are rare, however, although there are plenty of instances of the union getting theater men to sign up for a two-year term and paying to the exhibitors, in cash, out of the strike "war chest" the 5 per cent "raise" to the operators.

The aim of the union leaders, according to the way the exhibitors see it, was to get the theater men to sign up, even at the sacrifice of lowering operators' pay temporarily, and so bring practically closed-shop conditions in Greater New York and get all non-union men into the union. Then, say the exhibitors, the union would have tried to raise its wage scales again. The union raised a strike fund among its members which is variously estimated to have amounted to from $75,000 to $200,000, the latter figure being the union's. It is from this fund that the union is reported to be taking the money to pay its own members the 5 per cent increase it had demanded.

The union announced this week that only fifteen theaters in Harlem and the Bronx were not signed up, but these figures are known to be inaccurate. In one case alone in downtown houses are using non-union operators. These are the theaters operated by the Consolidated Amusement Company, most of them along Eighth avenue.

HARDY WITH "CHARLOT REVUE"

New York, Sept. 6.—Sam B. Hardy has been engaged by the Schwyzs to appear in the "Charlot Revue of 1924" as the company starts on its tour of the leading American cities at the expiration of its engagement at the Yale Square Theater. Hardy will join the revue when it commences a two-week engagement at the Majestic Theater, Brooklyn, September 22.

"BLOSSOM TIME" MAY STAY

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The public endorsement of "Blossom Time", at the Ashburn, has already been such in the form of advance sales that it is said the overetta may be kept there all during September, instead of two weeks, as announced.

TO STAGE "ARTISTS" SHOW

New York, Sept. 6.—M. Francis W. Hoon, who directed the dramas, "Box From Loo" and "Artists and Models", of last season, has been engaged to perform a similar service for the new edition of the latter show. Weldon has staged a number of Shubert productions.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

Is Nearing 400th Performance at Studebaker, Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 6.—With the 400th performance of "Abie's Irish Rose" drawing near in the Studebaker Theater, Frank A. P. Gazzolo, manager of the house, announces that the low scale of summer prices inaugurated some time ago will probably remain in force all winter. Only the fact that the play is showing to capacity practically all the time enables this low scale to be maintained, said Mr. Gazzolo. He said there has not been a vacant seat in the Studebaker at any matinee performance since last April.

The second season for "Abie" opened Labor Day with every seat in the house sold. Both Anne Nichols, owner of the attraction, and Mr. Gazzolo state that the amount lost by low prices has been more than made up by the record-breaking patronage and the enormous number of people attracted to the play from outside of Chicago.

Business Holds Up at Atlantic City

Showmen and Others Still Carrying On—Carnival Attracts Thousands to Shore

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 7.—The cobd spell that set in here last Friday has meant little so far, and neither has the fact that the season was supposed to have closed with the finale at Atlantic City's greatest annual pageant. The showmen are still carrying on, so are the ride managers, the concessionaires and the privilege men generally.

Clear skies, calm weather and a bright sun, combined with numerous conventions are keeping shore business up exceedingly well. It is not equal to that of August, it is at least equal to and perhaps a little better than that of July.

Lifeguards report that the number of bathers shows little decrease and the walk fashion parade is as dazzling as ever. The rush was somewhat slow in getting under way, but it finally started in August and closed in a blaze of glory. All in all, the season was probably as successful as any other, and the resort has no reason to complain, although many small business houses hit during the early part of the season may have difficulty in completely recovering.

The carnival attracted thousands to the shore and undoubtedly advertised the resort as no other agency ever succeeded in doing. Many of those who came here for the five days remained over the week-end, and many others here for the summer, who ordinarily would have departed at the close of Labor Day, stayed for an additional week. It is said the last week-end measured up to almost any week-end during the entire summer.

The showmen and concessionaires are all going to fare much better on the week-end, they expected to toward the end of July. The small showkeepers, they may not in many instances make the gross showings they hoped for, but they built up their averages rapidly during August and are still improving them. Furthermore, each and every one of them is to do the home during the early days of the season and those that hold their expenses down thereafter will show a net profit on this season that will compare very favorably with that of last year.

NEW M. P. THEATER FOR OAKLAND, CALIF.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 6.—A. P. Kaskal, of San Francisco, former owner of the Royal Theater there, and Louis Kaskal, of this city, have taken title to the land on which the M. P. Prokaryon Church stands and will build there at once a modern motion picture theater at an estimated cost of $250,000. Red Brothers, of San Francisco, who have built many of the amusement places here, are the architects and are already busy on the plans for the new house.

The land is near the head of Lake Merritt at the junction of Lakeside, Everside and Lake Park avenues and fronts 100 feet on Grand avenue.

The proprietors of the new theater are both experienced theater men. Kaskal having been owner of the Strand and Rialto theaters, Alameda. The projected playhouse will seat 2,000 persons. There are to be eleven shops in the building.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR FIGHT FILM CARRIER

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 6.—H. W. Host, charged with interstate transportation of films of the Dempsey-Tyrone fight, was sentenced to ninety days in jail here last week by Federal Judge James C. Wilson. Host was arrested in Fort Worth May 20 and the prize-fight pictures seized. He has been in jail ever since and was given credit for the time served amounting to four days more than the sentence. Host is also under indictment in Little Rock, Ark., on a charge of transporting the films from Texas to Fort Smith, Ark.

In presenting the case, Assistant United States District Attorney Taylor told Judge Wilson that Host had paid fines of $100 in Oklahoma City and New Orleans under similar charges.

HELEN MENKEN BACK EAST

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Helen Menken, who will play the leading female role in John Golden's "Seventh Heaven", which will begin the new season at Edman's Grand September 14, announced here this week on her way to New York to begin rehearsals for the Chicago engagement. Miss Menken has been playing a starring engagement at Hitch's Garden, Denver.

BUY ERK HOLDINGS

Hon. N. Y., Sept. 6.—The Hon Theaters Company (William Erk and his son, R. V. Erk), has sold its theater holding, which include the Hon Opera House Block and its interest in the Temple Theater, in the Odd Fellows' Temple, to Ben Young and Frank C. Whitney. The new owners will take possession October 6, the Temple Theater, in the Odd Fellows' They have started clearing the Osego street site, recently purchased, for the erection of a large business block and theater. Mr. Young was formerly owner of the Hon theaters, selling out to Messrs. Erk about two years ago.

FOUR COMPANIES OF "EXPRESSING WILLIE"

New York, Sept. 7.—Mary Kirkpatrick has secured the road rights to "Expressing Willie", the Rachel Crothers comedy now current at the Forty-Eighth Street Theater. The Equity Players will not be interested in Miss Kirkpatrick's managerial efforts and will adhere to the policy established when the organization gave Carl Rodd the right to present "Why Not?" on the road. The Equity Players will confine their activities strictly to Broadway. Miss Kirkpatrick intends to send out four companies of "Expressing Willie".

"AUNTY JAYWALKER" IN THE SAFETY FIRST PARADE

The figure of Auntie Jay turned from side to side as the float on which she appeared moved along in the Safety First Parade, staged recently in New York City, the operation being accomplished by means of an electric motor, using current from the truck batteries. The changing signs in the center were operated by levers controlled by a boy in uniform. The float was designed by W. F. Larkin, of the John Wanamaker Company.

TWO CHARGE IDEAS USED IN "TEN COMMANDMENTS"

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 5.—Mrs. C. F. Thompson, of Atlanta, announced, after viewing "The Ten Commandments" at a local theater, that it is modeled after a scenario she wrote in 1918 and submitted to Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. She declared that she has engaged attorneys in Atlanta and New York and will bring suit charging plagiarism.

New York, Sept. 6.—Officials of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation were disposed to pay little attention to the report from Atlanta that a Mrs. Thompson was bringing suit, charging that "The Ten Commandments" was based upon a scenario she had written.

It is known that a suit was filed in Berlin, Germany, by a film man who also claims the picture was made from his writings, which he charges he also submitted to Lasky.

HARRY ASHTON PLAYING IN HIS OWN SHOW

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Harry Ashton's Commandments are playing at the Beckwell Theater, on the South Side. In the cast are Jack Young, George Carl, Eddie Lorraine, Frances Riley, Charles Nelson and Harry J. Ashton. Mr. Ashton is re-creating Ashton and Mack's "Commandments of 1923", which has twelve people and looked on Larry Hyatt's Time in the East. The play has new words and scenery.

GLORIA SWANSON SUES JOSEPH SCHENCK, LANDLORD

New York, Sept. 6.—When Gloria Swanson came to New York last summer with her two small children, she rented from Joseph Schenck, picture producer, his home at Bayside, Long Island. She signed a lease for the place to run from June to December, six months, for which she paid $1,000 rent in advance. Besides the $1,000, Miss Swanson spent $1,500 on house furnishings, which became the property of her landlord.

This week, when Miss Swanson left for Europe, her lawyers filed suit against Schenck for $2,500. The complaint states that this amount is for that part of the six months when Miss Swanson and her family left the Schenck house cold, just because it was so cold, despite the furnace, that they couldn't stand it. Schenck, the complaint avers, agreed at the time to refund the money, but has not lived up to his promise.

"SHAME WOMAN" TO LEAVE CHI.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—"The Shame Woman" will leave at the Princess until the end of next week and will then give way to "In the New Room", a melodrama by Mrs. August Belmont and Harriet Ford.

SHERMAN'S NEW OFFICES

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Robert J. Sherman, author and play broker, has opened his new offices in the Raleigh Hotel. He has a handsome corner location on the street floor.

“Greater Movie Season” Ball a Roaring Success

Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles Packed to Capacity — Probably Largest Gathering of Film Stars Ever Seen in One Group

LOS ANGELES Sept. 4.—What was beyond doubt the most dazzling array of beauty, as well as the greatest gathering of the motion picture industry and the public combined, was the “Greater Movie Season” ball, held at the Ambassador Hotel here August 27. The immense ballroom was far too small to accommodate the 5,000 who were eager to be part of this magnificent gathering.

If you could not find your favorite star it was your fault, for not one of them was missing from the floor. The lighting effects were the greatest ever seen and the immense Kleig lights not only shone thru every window, but from every nook came the colors of the rainbow until the kaleidoscopic effect was that of the fairyland outdone. The cameras were there taking pictures of what was perhaps the largest gathering of picture stars ever seen in one group. Not only was the ballroom packed to capacity, but every corridor and avenue leading to the room. The grounds outside were lighted until it was hard to say if it was night or day, so bright was the scene. The decorations were rich and the million dollars worth of gowns produced a sight that will live forever in the minds of those who were fortunate enough to be there. The affair was strictly formal and not one incident of disorder was noticed during the entire evening.

Besides the ball, which was, of course, the feature, the dances were interspersed with acts of various kinds and the program was long and interesting, altho the chairman told a Billboard representative that it was very hard to omit many of the good things that were offered for the entertainment. Charles Murray was master of ceremonies and he did his work with a master hand, keeping his hearers in a war of laughter thruout his announcing. The entertainment, which was under the direction of Jeff Lazarus, of the Metropolitan Theater staff, was as follows:

Alexander Oumansky and Fay Adler, in the “Dance of the Wooden Soldiers”, were quite a novelty. Milton Sills addressed the throng on the purposes and success of the “Greater Movie Season” and made a masterful talk on the subject most paramount in the minds of all. Harry Carroll, in songs of his own composition, was just as big a hit as he has been thruout the States. Walter Hiers was next and proved to all that he is a real comedian. “Big Moments at the Warner Bros. Studios” was the next number, with a scene from the picture, “Narrow Streets”, in which Dorothy Devore, Matt Moore and David Butler took part. Then another scene from “This Woman”, in which Irene Rich and Marc McDermott took part. Donald Keer and Eddie Weston appeared in a sketch, “The Flip and the Flapper”, from the Orpheum Theater. Next was the greatest spot on the program, the first public appearance of Betty Bronson, from the Lasky studios. This young lady, whom James Berrie picked from the population of Los Angeles to play the part of Peter Pan in the scenic of personality; in fact, she is irresistible in every way and captured the entire assembly without any speaking part whatever. The guests were still talking of her when leaving the ballroom. She is the very definition of personality. Ernest Ball, playing and singing his own compositions, went over big. The knickerbocker symphonians, from Lewis State Theater, filled their place on the program in good style. George Whiting and Sadie Hart, from the DeWitt, offered songs that were pleasingly rendered. Dorothy Jordan, in operatic selections, got her full share of appreciation. “The Court of Fashion” next was a scene from the B. DeMille’s production, “Feet of Clay”. Vera Reynolds, Julia Faye and Anna May Wong took part and more than a half million dollars’ worth of costumes, was exhibited; this was received with great favor. Art Landry and his band from the Metropolitan Theater received a tremendous ovation for the excellence of their music and not many could keep from beating time with some motion or another. Charles Murray auctioned off a box for the children’s hospital and received a huge sum for his efforts. Fanchon and Marco, in dances and songs, got an abundance of applause and then some encores. Max Fisher and his Cincinnati Grove Orchestra did not pause longer than one minute between any of the dance numbers and it was late in the morning when he finished. Among those noticed in the boxes were: Joseph M. Schenck, Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge, Colleen Moore, John McCormack, Rupert Hughes, Bert Lyell, Clair Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Moreno, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, Marion Ay, Clara Bow, Vera Steinhilber, Marie Helman, Irving Blumberg, D. B. Smith, Chester Franklin, Tom May, Al Kaufman, Kenneth Harlan, Marie Prevost, Faylis Hayer, Louis B. Mayer, Harry D. Arthur, Ben Frank, John Bowers, Earl Williams, Monte Blue, Betty Blythe, Sam Wood, Buster Keaton, Solney Chaplin, Dorothy Mackaill, Margaret LaMont and so many others that space will not permit listing them all.

The dance floor was crowded to capacity and it was difficult at times to dance comfortably, but the crowd came to give its approval to the movie ball and this is what made it so big and successful. If you wanted to shake hands with any particular star you could easily do so, as the boxes were arranged along the floor so that you came in contact with everybody. The ceiling was one mass of balloons of all colors and when the dance of balloons came it was a magnificent sight, and to hear the chatter among the popping of those same balloons was fascinating and amazingly entertaining in the extreme.

The “Greater Movie Season” was voted the most successful of all events held in connection with moving pictures and it was voted that the idea become an annual event in moviedom. The committee in charge had a great task in its arrangement and they gave all an evening of great pleasure.

Shows Doing Well in Tall Grass of West

Items Gathered From Jim Wingfield’s Central States Circuit of Theaters Office

Chicago, Sept. 6.—James Wingfield has closed with the new Laporte Theater, Laporte, Ind., to book two road shows a month in the States. “So This is London” was the only road show ever played in the house about two years ago, the house having had a picture and vaudeville policy. The theater seats 1,337 on one floor and is one of the most beautiful playhouses in that section of the State.

The Oliver Theater, South Bend, Ind., will play no popular approved productions in the future and will cater only to high-class road shows and pictures. Mr. Wingfield books the house.

Reports from Mr. Wingfield indicate that the George M. Streets are doing a wonderful business in Michigan and Ohio. The show is working well. The “Bringing Up Father” companies are all reported to be getting the money. E. J. Carpenter’s show of that title opened in the La Salle Theater, La Salle, Ill., Labor Day, to capacity.

Another capacity opening, August 30, was that of Betty Gaskill and W. E. Patton’s “Shepherd of the Hills” Company, at the Grand Theater, Lancaster, Ws. The theater, one of the handsomest in the State, is owned and operated by the municipality.

The Dayton Players will play the Majestic Theater, Fort Wayne, Ind., indefinitely, on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The house will be open to road shows the rest of the week.

Charles Evans, comedian, with the “Wages for Wives” Company, at the Cort, is preparing to celebrate his sixty-eight birthday anniversary this evening after the performance. Mr. Evans made his first big hit just forty years ago when he was a member of the team of Evans and Hoy, costers in “The Parlor Match”.

CHICAGO LIKES “NANETTE”

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The latest announcement from Mr. Frazer’s office says that “No, No, Nanette”, long opulently current in the Harris Theater, will hardly leave until Thanksgiving at the earliest. “Rain”, which has long been seeking entrance at the Harris is, therefore, still in the far offing.

HERK’S CO-OPERATION CAMPAIGN PROGRESSING

Sends Letter to All House and Company Managers on Mutual Circuit — Many Congratulatory Telegrams Received

New York, Sept. 6.—From the congratulatory telegrams and letters received concerning the campaign in the interests of mutual helpfulness and respectful conduct between the artists and employees of the Mutual Bursome Association’s companies and theaters, President I. H. Herk is convinced that his action has met with certain and cordial approval. Some of the letters and business cards bearing congratulations had undergone such radical changes in a few days as to cause wonder and surprise satisfaction.

“I was amazed,” wrote the manager of one of the companies, “to find on my inspection of the stage and dressing rooms of this theater, on one arrival, that they were in perfect condition and in a state of absolute cleanliness never observed in any house. The stage hands were marked in their attitude of courtesy to our company members, who will surely try to do their utmost to contribute to their comfort and convenience during the run.”

“This selection of songs and letters I have received,” said Mr. Herk, “is reflecting the same spirit of cooperation and desire to improve working conditions. It would seem that all concerned are vying with one another to reach the point of absolute helpfulness at which we were aiming.”

In his letter to the managers urging them to cooperate better relations between the performers and employees, Mr. Herk said:

“I want you as a manager of the theater to see that your conduct around the theater’s most valuable asset, your performers, is shown to the performers that as possible for you to show. When addressing the performer, that proper language be used; that you do not overstep your authority in issuing orders to the performer that should be given to the manager of the company and that, in turn, be given to the performer. I want you to see that the dressing rooms and everything pertaining thereto are kept in first-class shape and probably add to them by their cleanliness that you know would help so much. I want you to see that the stage hands and musicians employed by you use the same degree of decorum that you do yourself, and that when it becomes necessary that they have anything in common with the performer that they treat them as ladies and gentlemen, and as they would wish to be treated themselves.

“Now don’t misunderstand this letter. This is not a sermon that I am preaching to you. It is strictly a business proposition, brought to my attention most vividly. I am convinced in my own mind that if everything is done that can possibly be done to make the engagement of the performer pleasant at your theater that he will in return do everything that he is able to do to give you one hundred per cent service and in that way create patronage.

“I am sending a letter to each company manager, which I am going to ask him to place on the call board for his people to read, advising them of what has been written to you and explaining to them that in return for what I am trying to do for them they must in return give us one hundred per cent service and conduct themselves in a manner that will encourage you, in turn, to give them even more to make their lives worth while.”

CHICAGO EXHIBITORS

Refuse Stages To Defense Orators

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Jack Miller, president of the Exhibitors’ Association of Chicago, has refused the local Defense Test Day Committee permission to place four night speakers on patriotism in the 216 movie theaters represented in the Exhibitors’ Association on Defense Day, September 12. Mr. Miller is quoted as telling representatives of the defense test committee that the speakers would annoy the audience. He offered to run stages for the committee, but the offer was refused.

MAY CALYEA RECOVERING

New York, Sept. 6.—May Calyea, who last appeared as Grand in “Mary the Third”, is convalescing from an illness at Permonont-Holmes and will probably not appear on the stage this fall. Miss Calyea, whose long career has been associated with many Broadway successes, was seen with Franklyn Dyer in “Lady 44” and in “The Day”.

TO STAR IN NEW DUGAN PLAY

New York, Sept. 5.—Francine Lawrence will have a new starring vehicle, in William F. Dugan’s comedy, entitled “Sunshine”. This announcement from the office of Jones & Green, who will sponsor the production, dispels the report that Miss Lawrence had contracted to appear in a special company of “Seventh Heaven”, which John Golden contemplates presenting in Boston.

Dubious Methods of Wembley Co. Exposed

Laycock & Bird Have $500,000 Liabilities and Practically No Assets

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The B.I.I. board).—The repeated allegations made to “The Sun”, one of The Billboard’s special London representatives regarding the outrageous concessions and dubious financial methods relating to Laycock & Bird’s concessions at Wembley Amusement Park, at the British Empire Exhibition, were dramatically justified this week by the appearance of an article disclosing the financial tactics of Laycock & Bird, who are the sole life directors of the Wembley Construction Company, Ltd.

“The Sun”, the popular weekly journal, pleaded England with this scandal article, asserting that the contractors were unpaid by the construction company. The liquidated assets, says the article, are $530, and the liabilities $500,000.

The original capital of the firm, it is asserted, was only nominal—$5,000—yet the couple undertook enormous liabilities. These men were originally associated with Bussy and McAlpine, but later operated this and other companies alone. As “The Sun” reported the reckless profiteering it kept was shown off and made profitable business almost impossible for others and The Billboard claims credit as being the first to draw attention to this crippling of showmanship at Wembley which resulted in grave losses to many proprietors of game and rides.

JESSIE REECE FOILS TWO HIGHWAYMEN

New York, Sept. 6.—Jessie Reece, prima donna, who recently closed an engagement with the “Peck-a-Boo” Company at the Casino, Brooklyn, August 25, foiled two highwaymen by her quick presence of mind recently. Miss Reece had just left her apartment to take her car to the garage late at night when two highwaymen jumped on the running board and pointed a gun at her. She, however, started suddenly and threw them off the board. Summoning a janitor to her aid she drove to the St. George District police station and Ed J. McManus, “the guerrilla-getting cop”, picked up the gunmen within two hours of the attempted holdup. Miss Reece, who has joined the Jack Reed “Record Breaker” on the Columbia front, will arrange to be present in this city when the case is tried.

DANCER WILL FLY

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Constance Evans, dancer in “Artists and Models” at the Apollo, will fly from here to Detroit when the show moves there, September 14. She will ride in a Curtiss plane, piloted by Lieutenant Lester Henderson of Dayton. The landing in Detroit will be made at Meekard Field and Miss Evans will be the guest of honor of the Aviation Town and Country Club. Miss Evans is an Australian and began her stage career in pantomimes. Her father, Buddy Evans, is one of England’s foremost jockeys.

BALTIMORE SEASON STARTS

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 5.—With two of the so-called legitimate houses open, Baltimore’s theatrical season may be called under way. Ford’s Theater started things going last week with “The Top Hole”, with Ernest Henkle playing as the star. Manager Harry Honkel, with Treasurer John Little, and the old staff, continue in charge of the playhouse.

The Auditorium opened Labor Day with “Blackmail”, a new Willard Mack play, in which Lowell Sherman is starred. Manager Leonard McLaughlin supervised the renovations which the house underwent during the summer.

CHORUS GIRL SCHOOL

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The problem of chorus girl shortage has been solved to a great extent by schools similar to Dolly’s Village Dancin’ School here. This institution trains girls to chorus work and has successfully supplied talent to the Betty Jones act, “Bringing Up Betty” company, Charles H. Best, Nat Phillips, Zernain and many others. The girls in many instances are doing specialties.

SULLIVAN IN NEW YORK

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Edward J. Sullivan, formerly manager of the St. Louis Theater, under the banner and DeWitt team leasehold, is now manager of Martin Beck’s new legitimate playhouse in New York. After leaving Chicago Mr. Sullivan was touring manager for Sara Bernhardt in this country.

Two Broadway Managers May Produce Same Play

Curious Situation Arises Over "The Mask and the Face"—Legal Conferences Now on Between Frohman and Pemberton Representatives

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—What promises to be a duplicate of the curious situation which arose some years ago over the production of "The Devil", where two managers produced the same play, may arise over "The Mask and the Face", which will be seen first on Broadway at the Bijou Theater Wednesday night.

The play was announced for production by the Charles Frohman Company. Brock Pemberton, having first announced William Faversham in "The Ostrich Man", now says that he will produce "The Mask and the Face" with Faversham instead, while the date of the Frohman production of the same piece is unknown.

Pemberton held a rehearsal on "The Mask and the Face" all the time it was announced that he was rehearsing "The Ostrich Man". This fact was kept very quiet, the Shubert press department even sending out an announcement for the Saturday and Sunday theatrical sections of the dailies that "The Ostrich Man" would open at the Bijou Theater Wednesday. Evidently there is a mixup over the rights to produce the play, at any event they are sufficiently clouded for each of the two producers to think that he has the authority to produce it.

"The Mask and the Face" is an Italian play, written by Luigi Chiarelli. It was first

Withdraw Demand for Wage Boost

Chicago Movie Musicians Satisfied With Extension of Yearly Period of Employment

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Following on the heels of the settlement last week of the threatened strike of theater musicians in dramatic, musical comedy and vaudeville houses, comes the announcement that movie musicians have withdrawn their demand for a 10 per cent advance in salary. For several days negotiations have been pending between the Chicago Federation of Musicians and owners of outlying movie theaters. It is said that representatives of fifty movie theaters agreed to extend the yearly period of employment from thirty-five to forty-four weeks and that with this arrangement the demand for 10 per cent increase in pay was withdrawn by the musicians. The musicians employed are drawing around $50 a week. It is also reported that the organizers asked the Federation to allow them to remain outside of the demand for an increase while negotiations were pending.

"G. V. FOLLIES" LINEUP

CO-OPTIMISTS BEGIN SEASON

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—The co-optimists began the new London season at the Palace with every appearance of undiminished popularity despite considerable changes of the original composition of the company. Dave Burnaby remains the indimitable composer of all his fellows, and among the newcomers Hermione Hodgeley scored in a sketch. A good run is likely.

Last week there were 39 companies in process of formation on Broadway or about to open. It kept the staff at the Equity offices on the jump.

MEMPHIS THEATERS

Give Performances Without Music When Union Musicians Strike

Memph. S. Tenn., Sept. 7.—For the first time in many years Memphis' two vaudeville theaters and two leading motion picture houses gave their performances Monday without music as the result of the strike of union musicians. The musicians are asking for a reduction in number of working hours in the vaudeville theaters, Lewis State and Pantages, from five to four hours a day, and are seeking to force the non-unionated theatres, operating Lewis's Palace, Strand and Majestic Theaters, to place five musicians in the latter. They are also asking for a 50 increase in wages for men over ten than the leaders at the vaudeville theaters.

Lawyer Hinton, noted Memphis song writer, had employed an orchestra to aid the Shrine Quartet and two singers to give his last number "I've Given All My Life for You", at Lewis's Palace Monday. The local union cancelled the musicians' part, so the Shrine Quartet and the singers gave the number without orchestral accompaniment at a late hour Monday afternoon, and the feature picture, "The Covered Wagon", was given without music.

HARRY NORTH STOCK CO. MEETS WITH MISFORTUNE

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Harry North, of the stock company of that name, had had luck at Hammond Ind. last week. He had moved his stock from Springfield, O., after a long and prosperous run and was to open in Hammond last Monday. He had all his paper up, his lobby display in and was all in readiness when it is said a disagreement between the lessees and the owners of the theater occurred. The result was that Mr. North lost his contract for a stock season and, of course, all of his people.

"SHUFFLE ALONG" OPENS

The fourth edition of "Shuffle Along", the colored attraction that established the Negro in musical comedy, opened at Albany, N. Y., in the Capital Theater Labor Day. Billy Mills and Andrew Tridale are in the comedy roles made famous by Miller and Lyles. The Tribble has been playing female parts for a number of years, to great immediate favor, according to local reviewers.

Anna M. Daniels, a member of the Wintz company last season, is leading lady. Gertrude Samplers, who created the jazz songbook part in the original production, is back in the same part. Norman Astwood has the juvenile lead. Tom Brown is in charge of the orchestra. A fast dancing and comedy Negro chorus is a feature that won praise on the opening night.

"DECAMERON NIGHTS"

British Superfilm Enthusiastically Received by Drury Lane Audience

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—The Wilton film production of the Drury Lane success "Decameron Nights" was shown at that historic playhouse September 1. It is a magnificent production, brilliantly directed, staged and acted, and was received with enthusiasm by a huge audience and also by the critics. It is hailed as the first big British superfilm.

The late Julia Reinhardt said among other things "I had used to new ideas. The radicalism of today is the commonplace of tomorrow." This spirit is in the air. It pervades the thinking of everybody. The people have seen woman's suffrage arrive, the Volstead law an accomplished fact and a Labor Government in Great Britain without the slightest tendency on the part of civilization to collapse, so they are unimpressed when both the old parties throw fits over La Follette's radicalism.

ACTORS SHOW INTEREST IN COMING ELECTION

Eddie Cantor Heads Davis and Bryan Theatrical League—Movement To Put La Follette Over Grows

New York, Sept. 8.—Actor folk on Broadway are showing a leap of enthusiasm for the coming Presidential election and are going ahead and organizing campaign clubs, fostering the various party candidates. A Davis and Bryan Theatrical League, with Eddie Cantor as president, has been formed to promote the Democratic ticket among the members of the stage. Clem E. Smith, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been made a member of the League to inaugurate the league and among the vice-presidents of this organization are Robert E. Ross, Anita Stewart, Jack McCall, William B. Mack and Louis A. Joy, the last named of whom is already lining up the motion picture stars of the coast.

Patrick Henry will work from the Chicago headquarters. Although the Actors' Equity Association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which has already endorsed the candidacy of Robert W. La Follette, has refused to declare itself in favor of any party or candidate, there is a growing movement among stage folk to put the third-party candidate over.

FIRST PARIS RODEO CONSIDERED TAME

Paris, Sept. 7.—A crowded stadium of Parisians saw their first rodeo yesterday afternoon, but it was a tame exhibition, totally devoid of thrills, according to American witnesses. All that goes to make for the popularity of the great Western sport in America was absent, with the exception of trick riding for cowboys and cowgirls.

The French spectators thought it a great performance, however. They were wildly enthusiastic over such stunts as lassoing calves and like feats of daring. There was no steer roping, however. There were lassoed and the rest were ridden in a most careful manner. Nothing was done to provide grounds for a charge that the sport was not humanitarian.

PRINCE FAILS TO "SHOW" AT PERFORMANCE IN HIS HONOR

New York, Sept. 8.—If any of those who helped pay $1000 at the New Amsterdam Theater last night to witness a performance staged in honor of the visit of the Prince of Wales to America expected to see His Royal Highness in the audience, they were mistaken. He didn't "show". However, the performance was enacted by an all-English cast and was well worth the price of admission. The receipts go to the Free Milk Fund of the Mayor's Committee of Women.

COLD WEATHER CUTS CONEY'S ATTENDANCE

New York, Sept. 8.—This part of the country's record cold snap for this time of the year caused attendance at Coney Island yesterday to drop from 200,000, the mark of the previous Sunday and Labor Day, to just about half that number. While the boardwalk was still crowded and the bathing beach not entirely deserted, cool weather, nevertheless, took its toll of gate receipts.

QUEEN'S MANAGEMENT DISSOLVED

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—The association of Basil Dean and Sir Alfred Butt in the management of the Queen's Theater was dissolved following the failure of "Pansy's Arabian Nights", which was withdrawn tonight. It ran only a fortnight. This is Dean's third successive failure of the Queen's, all blamed entirely on the bad choice of plays. The dissolution is reported to be quite amicable and no meet on has been made as yet regarding the Butt-Dean management of the Drury Lane Theater. It is confidently predicted that the latter partnership also is destined to an early termination.

CYRIL MAUDE SAILS

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—Cyril Maude sailed on the Olympic Wednesday to retake his part in "Aren't We All", vacated owing to his wife's illness and death. He expects to return here and may retire from the stage and settle at his 15-year-old home.

Owing to circumstances beyond anybody's especially managerial control, Broadway had fifteen openings—or was to have had when they were written.

And New York theatrical managers cannot understand why the public holds their judgment in such low esteem.

Georgia Minstrels a Hit in Detroit

Rusco & Hockwald's Outfit Said To Have Done Better Than $10,000 on Week

Detroit, Sept. 6.—The Cohen Brothers, managers of the Colonial, vaudeville and picture theater, located far above the Motor City's theatrical district, made no mistake when they booked Rusco & Hockwald's famous all-colored Georgia Minstrels for the week starting Labor Day. The minstrels supplanted the regular vaudeville bill. It is said that the show did better than $10,000 on the week, with a sixty-cent top.

For years this town has been without a minstrel show, and the way Detroiters stormed the Colonial both afternoon and night demonstrated their keen desire and love for this form of old-style entertainment.

Opening in the traditional fashion of all minstrel shows the curtain ascends on the usual half-circle seating arrangement with a fine orchestra of twelve pieces under the direction of George Bryant, elevated above and backed by a silver-silk drop of metallic cloth that is a treat. The company appears in purple full dress, and the end men are dressed in green and cream-colored tuxedos.

While singing the poppy opening chorus the company executes a series of clever and difficult military drills that wins the admiration of the audience from the very start. J. C. Johnson essays the role of lieutenant in a pleasing way and introduces the members of the company in a distinct and commanding manner. Johnny Woods and Manzie Campbell are the funny and men. Their blues numbers and eccentric dancing keep the audience howling for more and more. "Big Boy" Anderson and Arthur Malone, comedians, keep close on the heels of Woods and Campbell for piling up laughs. J. S. Reeves, tenor singer, puts over a pretty ballad number that takes well with the audience, and the same is applicable to Elliot Scott, tenor, and Major Daniels, bass singer.

While the show boasts of no outstanding voices, it surely is not lacking in comedy and dancing. Tim Toswely, delivering a funny monologue on the weaker sex, is a scream. Johnny Woods does a clever ventriloquist act, putting over a line of new and witty comedy that received a big hand. Lassie Brown and Ed Lett offer a screamingly funny sketch called "Fun in a Chinese Laundry" that is hilarious of such comedy, singing and clever dancing.

The show is brought to a close with "Big Boy" Anderson and Arthur Malone, the leading comedies, in a hilarious piece, entitled "Twenty Minutes in Hades", that proved a positive knockout for laughs. Ed Anderson should be credited for his acting ability in the role of Satan.

The costuming and scenery are new and right up to the minute. The performance moves along at a swift pace and all appear to put forth their best efforts in making the show a success. The snappy band of sixteen pieces gives a concert both afternoon and evening in front of the theater and presents a fine appearance with smart, brightly colored blue and gold uniforms.

This organization of twenty-five members travels in its own special seventy-foot, all-steel Pullman coach. Arthur Hockwald, manager and sole owner is accompanied on tour by Mrs. Hockwald and their thirteen-month-old

"POPPY" WELL RECEIVED

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—Thursday, at the Gaiety, the American musical comedy, "Poppy", was well received, with W. H. Barry, as dull as ever, leading, ably assisted by Eddie Morris, who made a distinct impression on the audience. Imelda Gear also captured the house by clever comedy, and Annie Croft by charming acting and singing. The chorus worked hard, adding materially to the effect of a probable highly successful production.

MASONS TO GO AHEAD WITH $5,000,000 CHI. TEMPLE

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Harry J. Powers pointedly denied a widespread report that the Masons had fallen down on their financing of the proposed $5,000,000 Masonic Temple in Randolph street, and that he will take back the Colonial Theater, which is included in the plans for the temple. Mr. Powers said that there is no truth in the report, and stated that the Masons will go ahead with their proposition.

Frank Ellmore continues to improve and it is hoped that another month or two will see him sufficiently recovered to travel.

"Keith Board of Strategy Bookers" Is Hit by Agents

Object to Use of Name and Other Desirable Acts as Pinch Hitters To Stimulate Receipts, Fight Opposition or Mold Certain Type of Patronage

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Big-time agents with name, and other desirable acts on their books, are "up in the air" over what is termed ever-increasing juggling of offerings by the "Keith board of strategy bookers", which is using such attractions as pinch hitters to either stimulate falling box-office receipts, fight opposition or mold a certain type of patronage into a certain house.

But for the fact that much too often does the high-priced act in question go into a cut-salary theater, no particular kick would be made, according to the agents, who sympathize with their clients as well.

Few of their acts, complain the agents, ever work thru a season as per original route, and allowances for unforeseen developments are usually made. This year, however, early in the season as it is, no end of jugglery has been in practice by the bookers who have the backing of the powers that be, which relegates the kick of the agents into the background.

Another cause of complaint is that the bookers, with the flexible, moving-around policy in vogue, have purposely held up bookings and refrained from giving usual long-term contracts to offerings generally accustomed to receive them.

As an instance, it is pointed out that one booker suddenly announces that he must have this and that act for the Palace, with several on the same order to follow. It is because he wants to keep a certain kind of patronage coming to that house. Certain patrons must be kept away from the Hippodrome, according to the conference he has just attended.

The same is expected to be the case with the Royal and Alhambra theaters later on. And, again, it suddenly develops that Pantages' opposition in Newark calls for a name offering or two or a well-known favorite, and they are penciled in forthwith.

Booked week to week, with a definite route always in the offing, the acts so used are not in position to complain except to their agent, who in turn placates them with promises of action as soon as the bookers get settled in their so-called "strategic" arrangements.

Two of the bookers concerned in heavy juggling declare that the fault is not theirs and that whatever big acts are switched are so handled for the good of the circuit.

W. V. M. A. NABBING WEST COAST HOUSES

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Western Vaudeville Managers' Association, which recently set out to extend its operations thru the Southwest and along to the coast, is reported as making serious inroads upon the territory controlled by the West Coast circuit, quite a number of independent houses booked regularly by the W. V. M. A. have recently broken away, it is said, and joined the ranks of the W. V. M. A. The success of the agents of the W. V. M. A. are having in Pantages territory, if any, can not as yet be ascertained. The line of battle, which Eastern vaudeville men say is inevitable, cannot be drawn for at least another year, when the sum total of the W. V. M. A.'s expansion of operations will be felt by the other Western circuits.

FROM TABS. TO VAUDEVILLE

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The Crystal Theater, Anderson, Ind., which has been playing tabloids, will start with Gus Sun acts, supplied by Billy Diamond, of Chicago, September 14. Mr. Diamond said his circuit has added six new houses during the present season.

Pantages Vaudeville Draws Capacity First Week in Newark House

Newark, N. J., Sept. 8.—Capacity business marked the first week of Pantages vaudeville at the Newark Theater despite the opposition of Proctor's Palace (Keith booked) and Loew's State, each located within an area of two blocks. The Newark Theater opened Labor Day with a bill of six acts, headed by the Watson Sisters. At the Palace the top-line attraction was Clark and McCullough, with the Loew house playing an exceptionally high bill.

It is from the Palace that the new Pantages stand may expect the stiffest competition, however. The Proctor house is getting its headliners direct from the Palace, Broadway, New York. Thus this week they have Frances White and the Avon Comedy Four topping the bill, while the headliners on the local Pantages bill are "Russian Scandals" and Scanlon, Deemo Brothers and Scanlon. It looks as if Newark vaudeville fans are in for a great break this season.

The Newark was converted during the past summer from a picture to a vaudeville house. It has been completely renovated and redecorated, in fact practically made over into a new theater at a cost of $140,000. An entirely new stage, with a proscenium opening of forty-two feet and a depth of thirty-four feet, has been built, and the latest back-stage equipment installed.

There are fourteen spacious dressing rooms, each outfitted in modern fashion with circulating ice water, electric fans and other conveniences provided for the artists. The entire house, up and down, has been tastefully decorated and every comfort for the patron provided, new seats in both the orchestra and balcony having been put in.

The seating capacity of the theater is a trifle more than 2,500, with 1,400 of this number on the orchestra floor, and 300 logs and boxes.

The acts thrown around the Watson Sisters on the opening bill included Alexander and Linnore, Harry Gee How, the Andre Sherri Revue, Jewells' Manikins and Carl Rosini.

The Adams Brothers are the owners of the Newark, and Henry A. Finter manager.

SAMPSON MANAGING REVUE

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Roy Sampson is managing the Gus Barick Musical Revue, a twenty-piece act, which he is booking independently at present. The presentation opened in Marion, Ind., August 21. Mr. Sampson said the act is making a decided success and that the new costumes and scenery make a splendid appearance. He said the act will go on the Butterfield Tour in October.

CLEMENTS TAKES TO WOODS

New York, Sept. 6.—Larry Clements took to the Maine woods this week for a little vacation. He recently launched a sketch on the Keith Circuit thru Lewis & Gardou, who usually produce most of his work.

FERDINAND UELTZEN

AMERICAN ARTISTES' FED. OPENS ST. LOUIS OFFICE

New York, Sept. 6.—The American Artistes' Federation (White Rats), of which James William FitzPatrick is president, and Harry Montford, executive secretary, has opened an office in St. Louis. The A. A. F. quarters in that city are located in the Calhoun Building and are in charge of William Hebert, who has been appointed chief deputy organizer for Missouri and the Southwestern States.

This is the second office the A. A. F. has opened in the past month. Several weeks ago the vaudeville actors' union established quarters in Chicago in charge of Jim Hughes. It announces that it will open offices shortly in Los Angeles. Since moving into its new headquarters in the Bonax Building the A. A. F. appears to have taken a new lease on life. A country-wide campaign for members is now being conducted by Montford.

TWO-WEEK STANDS FOR VAN AND SCHENCK

New York, Sept. 6.—Van and Schenck have been signed for a complete tour of the Orpheum Circuit and open September 21 at Kansas City.

Like "Chic" Sale, they will play two weeks in most of the cities of the Orpheum Time, and three weeks in some, according to the Orpheum office here. Sale's route, secured thru Frank Evans, was the first of its kind to be issued by the Orpheum people.

FITCH'S MINSTRELS OPEN

New York, Sept. 7.—Dan Fitch's Minstrels, augmented during the past summer to include a company of twenty-five people, opened this week at Passaic, N. J., to whip into shape for the Keith Circuit. In the cast are Jack Kelly, Charlie Childs, Emmett Miller, Johnny Meek, Billy Everett, Ray Hart, Trevor Lewis, Fred Barnes, Art Haynes, Russell Senter, Fred Campbell, Louie Kelly, Cliff Howse, Jack Lewis, Louie Carr, Del Val, George Anderson and Frank Chase.

E. W. ROETTER A BOOKER

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Elihu W. Roetter has engaged in the booking and producing business, with offices at 25 South Dearborn street. He announces among his early bookings Eddie Elliott's Blue Melody Boys for thirty-eight weeks at the Alhambra Dance Gardens, Winnipeg. He has also booked a revue for a long run in the Rialto Theater, Winnipeg.

NO MORE HLDOVERS AT THE PALACE, N. Y.

Booking Order Follows Complaints From Year-Round Patrons

New York, Sept. 6.—Acts will not be held over for a second week at the Palace Theater in the future, according to a new rule put into effect by the Keith Circuit on recommendation of Oscar Reesor, manager of the house.

The order discontinuing this Palace custom came about following complaints registered by regular subscribers who demand strictly new shows every week, according to officials of the Keith office.

Edward During, chief of the bookers, who supplies the bills for this Broadway stand, has been instructed to book no attractions, irrespective of their drawing power, into the Palace for two-week engagements.

Major head-liners open star: Ruth Draper, Corina Loftis and others who are slated for appearances at the Palace this fall are not to be exceptions to this ruling. It is declared.

The last act to be held over for a second week was the Mosconi Brothers who played the house recently. Altho the new regulation was not put into effect until the opening of this season, the past summer has seen fewer fortnight bookings than in former years.

There have been more frequent repeats during the summer in its stead, owing, it is said, to the scarcity of available acts for the Palace.

Orpheum, Brooklyn, May Become 3-a-Day House

New York, Sept. 8.—After many years as Brooklyn's best known big-time vaudeville house, the Orpheum Theater faces the possibility of either being closed or having its policy changed to that of small time with a continuous show. This is brought about by the new Albee theater being completed a few blocks away from the Orpheum, and scheduled to open early next month.

Just what will be done with the Orpheum is occupying an important place in the Keith's plans, inasmuch as no opposition by their own house is wanted when the Albee makes its debut. This newest of Keith houses is being finished as the last word in theatrical and is intended as a memorial to E. F. Albee.

The most favored contemplated policy for the Orpheum is said to be similar to that now in vogue at Moss' Broadway, New York, where the State-Lake policy of one act missing a show is in effect, with a general run of intermediate-time turns and at least one of larger caliber.

SWIMMING CHAMP. ROUTED

New York, Sept. 8.—Henry P. Sullivan, the first American to swim the English Channel and well known in aquatic circles as a long distance swimming champion, has been signed up by Alf. T. Wilton for appearance in vaudeville. A route on the Keith Time has been laid out.

BEN PIAZZI IN FRISCO

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Ben Piazza, formerly with the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association here, later manager of the association's theater in New Orleans and next in Los Angeles in the same capacity, is now in charge of W. V. M. A. interests in San Francisco.

DOUBLE BOOKING FOR ORPHEUM

New York, Sept. 6.—The Four Camerons and the team of Sargent and Marvin have been booked for a joint tour of the Orpheum stands, opening at the Orpheum, St. Louis, week of September 21. They will do their acts separately and together.

GENERAL STRIKE ORDER FOR PANTAGES CIRCUIT RESCINDED

Eleventh-Hour Concession on Part of Spokane and Seattle Managers Averts Walkout of Union Musicians and Stage Hands

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—An eleventh-hour concession on the part of the managers in the Spokane and Seattle houses led today to the rescinding of the general strike order against the Pantages Vaudeville Circuit issued by the American Federation of Musicians. The order was to take effect Monday, September 8.

Immediately following the receipt of word that the Pantages managers had agreed to withdraw their demand calling upon musicians to waive the minimum orchestra personnel clause, International President Joseph N. Weber dispatched telegrams instructing union heads in Pantages towns to lift the strike call.

Similarly word was sent out by the general office of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees that the ordered sympathy walkout was all off.

In announcing the recall of the strike order, President Weber took occasion to warn the Western vaudeville managers that such a attitude as revealed in the Seattle situation would not be tolerated. In other words, Weber intimated that other circuits, particularly the Orpheum Circuit, had had much to do in bringing about that state of impasse in the Seattle negotiations and that their method of dealing with the union was, to say the least, hypocritical.

"Had we permitted," he said, "the abrogation of this minimum clause in the signing of the Pantages contracts the victory would have been followed by a series of other demands that would in time not only lower our working conditions, but undermine the very future existence of the American Federation of Musicians."

Weber let it be known that the federation was well aware of the fact that other Western circuits were behind the Pantages organization in the fight to force the repeal of the minimum clause and he said he hoped this issue had been settled for all time. Taking a backslap at the insinuating methods used by the other Western circuits in dealing with the Seattle situation, he said:

"You may say that these managers and circuits must once and for all understand that they can't be friendly in one town and antagonistic in another."

Vaudeville house and circuit managers thru-out the West. It was learned, have organized into local, district and State gatherings in the campaign to force the musicians' union to back down on the minimum theater orchestra personnel clause.

Contracts, Weber said, had not been actually signed between the Pantages managers and union members, all this depending on the final settlement agreed upon at Spokane and Portland.

But, he added, there wasn't the least doubt that the two groups would come together on all points involved, including the matter of wage increases, in both cities. The adjustment of contracts in these cities will practically clear up all now wage agreements in which the national office was concerned.

SHELburne EXTENDS SEASON

New York, Sept. 8.—The management of the Shelburne Hotel at Brighton Beach has decided to break precedent. Instead of ending the summer season Labor Day, it will keep the resort open thru the fall, with dancing and a high-class revue as attractions.

According to present indications business will warrant keeping the hotel open, and a well-known orchestra will be used thruout the year and revues changed every now and then. Another feature will be Amateur Nights for local talent.

BRIDE AND GROOM DINED

Detroit, Sept. 6.—Phyllis Bookie and Paul T. H. of Ted Healy's act, "Synopated Toss", were married here Wednesday in St. John's Episcopal Church by the Rev. R. E. Charles. Ted Healy gave the bride away, and Kenneth Larky of Healy's company acted as best man.

Following the show at the Temple Theater Wednesday night, Ted and Betty Healy tendered a little supper on the stage of the theater, thru the courtesy of the manager, in honor of the bride and groom.

All artists on the Temple bill were guest, and various little gifts from them were presented the newlyweds by Ted Healy. In addition to Ted and Betty Healy and their company, the guests included Fisher and Glavin, Peppit and Company, Margaret Ford, Burns Brothers, Haggart and Sheldon, Gattison Jones and Elsie Elliott.

REUNITED AFTER 20 YEARS

Houston, Tex., Sept. 6.—Frank O. Colby, president of the Salesmanship Club here and his uncle, Guy Oliver, character man with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, who arrived here to begin work on "North of 36", were reunited after twenty years of separation. The two had not seen each other since the days when the Colby family, then one of the well-known acts in vaudeville, played a season with the Fenberg Stock Company.

FROM BURLESQUE TO VAUDE.

New York, Sept. 6.—Uno (Josh) Dreano, who has been appearing in burlesque for the past three years, will open on the Loew Time September 15. This will mark his thirty-fifth year as a professional and his forty-sixth birthday. He started as a boy of eleven with the old Haviland Minstrels.

New York, Sept. 8.—Jean Acker (former wife of Rabely Valentin), who recently returned from Europe, opened today at Keith's Hamilton in "The Christmas Seal", a one-act playlet by Isabel Langdon. The supporting cast includes Jay Russell, Blanche Wilcox and Fred Eckhart. Bert Robinson staged the sketch and Lewis & Gordon have produced it.

BLUE BLOWERS IN NEW ACT WITH ISABELLE JASON

New York, Sept. 6.—Isabelle Jason is returning to vaudeville soon backed by the Mound City Blue Blowers, a quartet of musicians who recently were at the Palace Theater. Ray M. B. discovered the Blue Blowers and promoted them to the vaudeville ranks, with Alf T. Walton handling booking arrangements.

CLARK AND REARDON AT LIDO

New York, Sept. 8.—Dorothy Clark and William Reardon open tomorrow evening at the Club Lido, where they will render new dance specialties. Miss Clark will also do a monolog. The team recently returned from Europe, where they played the capitals on the Continent as well as various resorts.

HENLERE A RIOT

London, Sept. 7 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—Herseal Henler was an associate riot at the opening of the new Oxford Music Hall, September 1. Nora Hayes, Charles Austin and George Bass were ringer-up. Business has been turnaway at every performance.

ZENA KEEFE IN VAUDEVILLE

New York, Sept. 8.—Zena Keefe, motion picture actress, made her appearance in vaudeville today at Keith's Bigby First Street Theater in a special singing and dancing revue, during the course of which she relates some personal stories of her career in the films.

COREY OPENS NEW ACT

New York, Sept. 8.—Arthur Corey, dancer, opened in a new act today at Keith's Majestic Theater, Paterson, N. J. The offering is called "American Act" and the company includes Corey's Five Synopaters and Elsie Wanda.

IS E. R. HINES DEAD?

Frances Redding, corresponding secretary of the Professional Woman's Club, writes that she would like to have the address of Earl Huntington Hines, of the vaudeville team of Hines and Romington. Information, she states, has been received of his death, but it is not positive and needs confirmation.

GERMAN UNION AND MGRS. COMPROMISE

Former Win Extra Pay for Sunday Matinees—U. S. Bookings Delayed

New York, Sept. 6.—With the new contract between German managers and artists finally settled and the theatrical business of that country gaining promise of prosperity this winter, American representatives of Berlin vaudeville booking offices this week resumed their out-of-town activities.

However, contained in the dispatches from Germany, to the effect that the theaters were prepared to start booking operations again, was the information that the booking offices would not be in a position to sign American acts before the first of January.

Conditions in the German amusement market has been unsettled for some time, due both to the booking jam and the controversy raging between the managers and actors over the signing of a new contract. The contract negotiations have been settled, with the managers conceding payment of extra salaries for Sunday afternoon performances and the actors abandoning their demand for traveling expenses from one town to another of a distance up to 500 kilometers.

Tentative agreements with scores of acts were reached by the German bookers' representatives here during the summer and all have been waiting for final confirmation. As a result of the present situation these acts will have to defer their trip to Germany until after the first of the new year.

German bookers are, it is said, anxious to bring over certain American acts they feel certain would create a hit, but hesitate because of only one thing—lack of money. The German bookers have advanced such large sums of money to acts imported from England, following the signing of the entente cordiale between English and German amusement worlds, that they find they are unable to bring over from the United States the acts with which they have been negotiating.

As soon as the ban on American acts is entirely lifted it is expected that there will be a general rush to contract typical vaudeville and cabaret revues, including jazz bands in their personnel. Already several colored cabaret and band troupes have been put under tentative contract to take the trip as soon as there is a letup in the prevailing booking jam. Harry Stoddard and His Band and Yvette and Her Orchestra are scheduled to make a tour of Germany some time during the current season.

FRANKLYN AND CHARLES SPLIT AFTER 11 YEARS

New York, Sept. 6.—After a partnership of eleven years, in which they lung up a performance record for an acrobatic act, Franklyn and Charles have split and each will do the same act as presented by them in the past, with new partners. Franklyn, whose off-stage name is Franklyn D'Amour, will play the Delmar Circuit under the billing of Franklyn D'Amour and Company, and Charles (Charles Douglas) is rehearsing a new partner for the Keith Time.

The split arose from differences growing out of D'Amour's appearing with another partner while Douglas was on vacation without the knowledge and consent of the latter. Douglas appealed to the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association and received a favorable ruling from it whereby D'Amour and he were permitted to split and both continue doing the same act.

The Franklyn and Charles act made such a hit at the Palace on the occasion of its initial appearance that it was held over for three weeks. Year before last the act played "seventy weeks" in fifty-two by doubling eighteen weeks.

FLORENCE WALTON RETURNS

New York, Sept. 6.—Florence Walton, dancer, and her husband, Leon Ledram, returned to this country yesterday aboard the new French liner De Grasse. Miss Walton and her husband have been dancing in France. Another passenger was George Felix De Grasse, vaudeville actor and a direct descendant of the famous French actor, after whom the liner was named.

SANDUSKY THEATER OPENS

Sandusky, O., Sept. 6.—The Sandusky Theater opened its season Thursday with Miss Hill's Honey Boy Minstrels. The theater has been thoroughly renovated. J. Hummelstein continues as owner and manager of the house, which plays road attractions and vaudeville.

WHITEMAN TO PLAY AT SOB SISTERS' BENEFIT

New York, Sept. 8.—A benefit performance will be given at the Earl Carroll Theater next Sunday evening for the purpose of enriching the new clubhouse fund of the News-paper Woman's Club. Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra will be the feature. The regular concert program will be rendered by Whiteman with his entire band and stage crew, plus scenic effects. Tickets will be sealed to a $3 top.

CORRECTION

New York, Sept. 8.—By way of correcting an item in last week's issue to the effect that Bessie Wynn had been signed for a special engagement of four or five weeks on the Keith Circuit, it now develops that Miss Wynn is playing a few weeks of the smaller time for break-in purposes preparatory to beginning a route which is now being arranged by the Keith bookers. Jean Pannell has written the special numbers Miss Wynn uses in her new offering, and Miss Harcourt is violinist and orchestra director.

MME. GADSKI ARRIVES

New York, Sept. 6.—Mme. Johanna Gadski arrived here on the Stuttgart this week and will inaugurate her vaudeville tour with a two weeks' special engagement on the Orpheum Circuit playing St. Louis the week of September 14 and the Palace, Chicago, the week of the 21st.

Mme. Gadski's route on the Keith Circuit begins at the Palace, Cleveland, following the Orpheum dates. She is reported to be signed at a salary of $1,500 a week. Floyd Stoker is handling the opera star's tour.

SWITCH OFFICE LOCATIONS

New York, Sept. 8.—The auditing department of the Keith Circuit and offices of the B. S. Moss Theatrical Enterprises switched quarters in the Palace Theater Building this week. The Moss departments, formerly located on the tenth floor, have been renovated to accommodate the accounting department under J. J. Maloney, who was on the seventh floor, now occupied by Moss.

"MARRIED BY TELEPHONE"

New York, Sept. 6.—A new production to be presented in Keith vaudeville soon by Charles E. Maddock, called "Married by Telephone", a one-act farce by Captain Leslie T. Pearce, has as its cast Cliff Workman, Genevieve Frizell, Boyce Kennedy and Margaret Daly. Robert T. Haines has staged the act.

WHERE IS ALICE GURNETT?

John D. Gurnett writes that his father, who is very ill, wishes to hear from his daughter, Alice Gurnett. He states that she is rumored to have married a circus performer named Herzer, who taught her bare-back riding and other stunts of the big top. He thinks she also may be in musical comedy vaudeville or the legitimate. Anyone knowing of her whereabouts may communicate with him, care of The Portsmouth Times, Portsmouth, O.

GILPIN OPENS LOEW TOUR

New York, Sept. 8.—Charles Gilpin, well-known Negro actor, whose characterization of "Emperor Jones" brought him considerable fame, opened today on the Loew Circuit at the Greeley Square Theater. He has been signed for a tour of the Loew houses, and offers a "single", rendering several dramatic recitations and closing with humorous stories of a Negro's impression of a rare track.

HERB. WILLIAMS AND COMPANY

New York, Sept. 8.—Herbert Williams and Hilda Wolfus have definitely sold, according to the latest reports, and Williams is gone out in his old act, "From Soup To Nuts", billed merely as Herbert Williams and Company. He will be seen within a few weeks in Keith's New York houses.

Orpheum, St. Louis

(Reviewed Sunday Evening, September 7)

An excellent bill loaded with laughs that will please the patrons of this house all week.

Aesop Fable and Topics of the Day. M. Alphonse Berg in "Creations". Berg is a wander in creating gowns from uncut material with which he dresses two very pretty and stately models.

Bobby Barry with Dick Lancaster dispensed fast pure and simple lokum comedy but in a manner that it went over big with the house.

M. Tucker and His S. J. City Orchestra, in trap costumes, played a repertoire of late song numbers in syncopated style, acquitting themselves well.

J. Francis Dadey and Corinne Sales, another "hook" act. A little singing, a little dancing and a lot of good, clean comedy consisting chiefly of a woman kidding her hubby.

Robert Warwick and Company in "Bonds That Separate", a one-act dramatic playlet by Ann Brooks in two and a half scenes.

Chick Olson and Chie Johnson with the aid of every performer on the bill, excepting those in Warwick's troupe, kept the house howling from the time they took to the stage until the final curtain.

ALBERT DWIGHT.

Newark, Newark, N. J.

(Reviewed Monday Matinee, September 7)

The bill on display this week lacks none of the power that characterized the opening show Labor Day, when Pantages' vaudeville made its first appearance in this city.

Les Kinks inaugurated the show with a bang in their marionette novelty, "The Enchanted Forest", which, to the knowledge of the writer, is the only act of its kind.

Truck and Cnn, in an acrobatic-contortion novelty, "Twists and Twirls", ran away with the debut spot, collecting one of the biggest hauls of the afternoon.

Samuel, Donna Brothers and Scanlon, steppers of exceptional merit, followed in a neatly laid out routine of dances, relayed here and there by songs.

The feature of the bill, "Russian Scandals", presented in four scenes of old and new Russia by a large company of players led by D. Makaroff, who occupies a position in the orchestra pit, and apart from directing the musicians makes a brief announcement of each scene.

John King and Dave Irwin swept the house in their black-face classic, "Tom and Jerry", and while they didn't take any applause away from the act that preceded them, their reception was certainly most satisfying.

The Vardell Brothers, who feature a wooden chute dive with feet-to-feet catch finish, rounded out the afternoon's entertainment in great style.

ROY CHARTIER.

Grand O. H., St. Louis

(Reviewed Sunday Matinee, September 7)

The bill this week, while not up to the standard, is much better than last week's.

Hippodrome, New York

(Reviewed Monday Matinee, September 8)

Business was off at the Hippodrome this afternoon, the balcony resembling the great open spaces, with the orchestra floor showing plenty of vacancies in the rear. The gallery was closed as usual.

The performance as a whole was ragged, cues being missed backstage and in the orchestra pit. The standard of entertainment is considerably below that of the first two weeks of the new season.

Weldanos' Sensation, billed as "Europe's Greatest Thriller", opened. In this act two men perform acrobatic feats on one arm of a revolving crane, with a girl attired in aviatrix costume in a toy airplane suspended from the other.

Dippy Diers, the Hip, clown, performed his conventional capers in the spot following. Substituted in place of his shadow-chasing bit is a "slow motion picture" dance.

This bill is programmed as "The Deauville Circus", has three newcomers. Two of the latter turn work on the stage at the same time with Powers and Mitchell.

Aunt Jemima, hefty songstress, sang her way thru the next spot to scattered applause. She didn't break her routine this week, running off her repertoire of hot and pretty ditties in quick succession.

Harry Rose, "The Broadway Jester", proved himself a rather jolly person, and drew a flock of laughs with his songs and patter.

Mme. Tenkatsu closed intermission with virtually the same program she offered last week. For further details see "New Turns" in this issue.

The Briants, Walter and Paul, just back from England, were the comedy bit of the afternoon with their screechingly funny pantomime, "The Dream of the Moving Man".

Orville Harrold and his daughter, Patti, are back on the bill. They offer an entirely new repertoire, with the exception of the "Alice Blue Gown" number from "Irene".

Huston Ray and His Symphonic Band offer several unique novelties in which a mechanical piano figures. Ray is an exceptionally fine pianist and his handsomeness excellent.

The Hickey Brothers, next to closing, kidded their way into a good hand with a routine of nonsense and stepping.

Elaine Lettor and the Hippodrome ensemble closed the show.

ED. HAFTEL.

A lot of comedy numbers that hit big. Special, in three; five curtains, two encores and prolonged applause.

Polly Moran, an old favorite in Mack Sennet, Fox and Keystone comedy pictures. She had her audience with her during fifteen minutes of comedy.

The Three Whirlwinds, a name that typifies one of the fastest roller-skating acts the reviewer has seen in some time.

B. S. Moss' Regent, N. Y.

(Reviewed Thursday Evening, September 4)

be replaced with a newer one containing more melody.

Harry Hart and Murray Rose, in high-brown makeup, sang several songs in the next-to-closing spot. Either the boys have heavy colds or they have voices that could stand much improvement.

Jack Kennedy and Company, in "Wild Cats", proved to be a poorly written sketch productive of a few laughs at times.

The Four Diamonds, starting their new season, proved a sparkling turn indeed, in which clever singing and dancing was ever present.

Harry Rose, in the next-to-closing spot, moved along better than at any other time we've ever seen him in vaudeville.

Tamaki Duo closed the show, the man and woman giving a great exhibition of broadsword fencing and jiu jitsu.

S. H. MYER.

Fox's Audubon, N. Y.

(Reviewed Thursday Evening, September 4)

A bill that seemed to satisfy the folks and that's all. Bob Nelson, a hoodover from the first half, was the only entertainer that succeeded in working up the folks to a high state of enthusiasm.

Hap Hazard and Mary, a diverting pair of youngsters, opened the show with a tight-wire skipmangle. Hap kept the folks chattering and smiling with his script of yoked chatter and wire clowning.

Eddie and Grace, a handsome pair of youngsters, followed with a sprightly offering of singing and dancing, the former stirring up a series of handclaps with his finished jingling.

A fluttering ovation was accorded Francis Williams, she of the brilliant blond locks and the shivering shoulders and the dazzling pink gown.

Browne and Rogers' expose of the supposedly artful tricks practiced by the every-day gold-digger got a hearty response.

Assigned to close the show, Bob Nelson turned out to be the strong favorite of the evening.

Honorary Membership

In Actors' Equity Association Offered Maude Adams—John Drew Presents Letter

New York, Sept. 8.—The Actors' Equity Association has offered honorary membership in the organization to Maude Adams. This action was taken by the executive council this week when B. C. Whitney notified it that he had completed arrangements with Miss Adams to present her on a tour of the country in Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan". Whitney accompanied this information with a query as to what the council would do regarding Miss Adams' return to the stage. She is not a member of Equity or any other players' organization nor has ever been. Whitney wanted to know whether, he being an independent manager, it would be necessary for her to become a member of Equity or not. The council replied by offering her honorary membership in the following letter:

"September 2, 1924.

"Dear Miss Adams:
"The council of the Actors' Equity Association has instructed me to inform you that at its meeting today a motion was unanimously passed offering you honorary membership in the association. This was done not only in recognition of your wonderful career, but also to welcome you back once more to the American stage, which we all feel to be a most auspicious event.

"The council sincerely hopes that you will see your way clear to accepting honorary membership in the Actors' Equity Association, which has worked so hard to protect and benefit the actors and the theater of this country.

"With kindest personal regards, I am,
"Most sincerely yours,
"GRANT STEWART,
"Recording Secretary, Actors' Equity Assn."

By resolution of council this letter was entrusted to John Drew for delivery in the following words:

"September 3, 1924.

"Dear Mr. Drew:
"The council at its meeting held on Tuesday, September 2, had a letter brought to its attention written by B. C. Whitney, informing the council that he had completed arrangements for Maude Adams to play the part of Saint Joan in Bernard Shaw's play by that name.

"After a discussion the following motion was passed: 'That Maude Adams be tendered the offer of a honorary membership in the Actors' Equity Association.' A second motion was passed 'That the recording secretary be instructed to draw up a letter to Maude Adams and that John Drew be asked to present it to Miss Adams.' That is the reason this letter is directed to you. We are accordingly acting on the instructions received from the council and enclose herewith the letter addressed to Miss Adams, signed by Grant Stewart, our recording secretary, and ask you if you will have the kindness to present the enclosed letter to her. Her address is 247 Fifth avenue.

"Hoping that you will be able to comply with this request, and assuring you of the council's thanks and appreciation, we are,
"Very truly yours,
"ACTORS' EQUITY ASSN.,
"Paul Dullzell, Assistant Executive Secy."

This action of council was interpreted in certain quarters as meaning that Miss Adams was to be prevented from returning to the stage by Equity. The Billboard is pleased to present correspondence in the case, which speaks for itself. Up to the present Miss Adams has not replied to Equity's communication.

NEWARK FILM HOUSES

In Operation Last Sunday Night

Newark, N. J., Sept. 8.—Motion picture theaters in the outlying districts of Newark again opened their doors last night after several unsuccessful attempts during recent months to give Sunday shows. No official action was taken by the police, but Director of Publicity Safety Brennan had men stationed at the places and had them report to him today. This is regarded by the police as a test of the Sunday film law.

SHAW PLAY RELEASED

London, Sept. 6 (Special Cable to The Billboard).—The censor has just released Shaw's "Mrs. Warren's Profession" from the ban and it is expected to have an early first public presentation here of the eighteen-year-old piece.

PARSON'S OPENS SEASON

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 6.—Parson's Theater, Hartford's only dramatic house, opened its season Labor Day with Vera Gordon playing the part of Grandma Levy in "The Golden Spoon".

COLUMBIA BURLESQUE COLUMBIA THEATRE NEW YORK

FRED CLARK'S "LET'S GO", WITH MANNY KING "SOLOK"

(Reviewed Monday Matinee, September 8)

THE CAST—Manny King, Nan Polan, Walter (Pep) Smith, Mae Janese, Jim Buckley, Florence Kane, Andy Price, Helen Flynn, Rosalie Brumm, and George Stevens, with his wrestling bear, "Little Jim".

Review

Fred Clark after a successful summer run of four weeks at the Columbia, supplemented by a summer run of four weeks at The Gayety Theater, Boston, has returned to the Columbia on his regular season with "Let's Go", a production that is practically the same as during its summer run with no apparent wear or tear of its costly and attractive scenery, lighting effects, gowning or costuming, all of which appear like new.

There have been several changes in the cast but not noticeable change in the presentation outside of a novel and unique act down in the second part when a drape parts on a full-stage set of Oriental drapes, showing a billiard room interior of class in which the McGood-Leman Company, two men and a woman, appears, the men in Tux. attire and the woman in fitting habiliments for a novel and unique pantomime a robotic act that is a classic of its kind and which was rewarded with continuous rounds of applause.

Manny King, the comique-in-chief, is one of the very few comiques now in burlesque who can appear in ordinary street attire, clean face, and at the same time appear funny. For he has mastered the art of facial registrations and an individual mannerism that is laugh-evoking at his every appearance. Add to this his ability to humor his lines and he is in a class of light comedians seldom found in burlesque.

Walter (Pep) Smith has succeeded Les Dunne as co-comique. His modified Harold Lloyd characterization is likable, and he adds to his singing in good voice and dancing intricate steps that make his audience welcome his every appearance and applaud for more of his talent and ability, individually and in cooperation with the other principals.

Jim Buckley has succeeded Burton Carr as straight man and carries himself well in bits and scenes, supplementing with a laughing song that was well received.

Nan Polan is the same pleasingly plump, ever-smiling prima donna with a sweetly modulated voice that carries the proper intonation in scenes in which she appears to good advantage frequently. Nan has adopted a new style of dressing her hair that sets off her blond beauty to greater advantage than heretofore.

Mae Janese, with her brunet beauty and modelsque form, makes a stunning soubret, and it is very evident that Mae has been taking dancing lessons or putting into effect dances that she has not done in other shows, for she stood out distinctively in several numbers, in which she introduced Russian aerobic and Southern strutting steps not heretofore used by her. That Mae can step out of a soubret role was evidenced in one scene when she appeared in a gorgeous gown of silver-green brocade cloth with tulle effect admirable.

Florence Kane, conceded to be one of the youngest, prettiest and most petite ingenue-soubrets in burlesque, is just as personally attractive and evidences more talent and ability than she did in the summer show. Verily, this youngster has made rapid strides in her chosen profession and 'tis perfectly safe to predict her future success both in burlesque and on Broadway, for she has everything desirable for an ingenue-soubret role in any show.

Helen Flynn, a pretty-face, slender, symmetrical, bobbed blonde, is given more opportunities, for she appears in five dances, including toe, Egyptian, Colonial and Hawaiian.

Rosalie Brumm, a pretty brunet with flowing hair, was the personification of gracefulness in a Hawaiian costume and a dance that was admirable.

Andy Price, a clean-cut juvenile, also has more to do in the opening a la light comedian and later in juvenile characters, and in the opening of the second part leads a number in song that could stand repeats.

Sonny Thompson and his colored band, supplemented by Mabel Kemp, are as popular as ever. Sonny is full of pep and personality, and the same is applicable to Miss Kemp, who sings three numbers, making lightning changes of costly and attractive gowns for each number to the harmony of the musicians.

George Stevens and his wrestling bear, "Little Jim", have added to their act by the bear's dancing to the tambourine-playing accompaniment of Stevens. This act differs from most circus acts in burlesque, due to plants to the audience, one a clean-cut juvenile and one a nondescript comic, who keep the audience in an uproar of laughter and applause at their funny antics.

The choristers are remarkable for their youth, beauty, talent and ability, and this is especially applicable to their singing in harmony and dancing in unison. If there are any English dancing girls their equals we haven't seen them as yet.

Comment—Fred Clark is one of the youngest producers of "Columbia Burlesque" and he has set a standard for class, comedy and cleanliness in his production and presentation that can be copied by other Columbia Circuit producers with profit to themselves and "Columbia Burlesque" in general.

ALFRED NELSON (NELSE).

WEAVER MINSTRELS RESUME TOUR WITH NEW EQUIPMENT

Rocky Mount, N. C., Sept. 8.—The entire outfit of Weaver's Famous Green River Minstrels was destroyed in a storm which struck this city Thursday evening, August 28. The wind and rain completely demolished the big tent, swept the big block of seats far from the lot and wrecked a piano. The show canceled bookings while awaiting the arrival of new equipment. The minstrels were scheduled to open today, however, in the Hippodrome Theater at Richmond, Va., playing a vaudeville engagement.

LESLIE AUSTEN RECOVERS

New York, Sept. 8.—Leslie Austen motion picture actor, who was struck by the same bolt of lightning that killed Raymond Crane, last Friday afternoon on the golf course at Jackson Heights, L. I., has practically recovered. After the accident it was found that Austen's legs were paralyzed, but yesterday he regained their use.

MAJESTIC, HARTFORD, REOPENS

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 5.—The Majestic Theater, one of the leading local picture houses, reopened yesterday. A large orchestra is featured, with Henry Tussock as director. Harry Pierce is manager, and the house continues under the ownership of A. C. Morrison.

SEASON ON IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 8.—The Walker Theater opened today for the season with "Runnin' Wild". The house, one of the chain of Trans-Canada Theaters, is managed by C. P. Walker.

"EQUITY SHOP" IN FULL FORCE HERE

Actors' Equity Informs English Actors, Managers, Etc.

New York, Sept. 8.—In order that all actors and managers in England may be informed fully on working conditions in the theater on this side, the following letter has been sent by Equity to the Actors' Association, West End Managers' Association, Stage Guild, Touring Managers' Association and the editors of The Era and The Stage:

"September 4, 1924.

"For your information we are sending you herewith copy of a letter which has been sent to all independent producing managers as well as the members of the Managers' Protective Association, who produce both in and outside of New York City.

"We feel that you and your members should have knowledge of the ruling particularly as it establishes the fact that the Equity-Shop policy is now effective and in full force in the United States.

"We will thank you for word that you have received this communication, and by so doing we will feel that our effort to have a thorough understanding as to the conditions has succeeded.

"Very truly yours,

"ACTORS' EQUITY ASSN.

"Paul Dullzell, Assistant Executive Secy."

FRANCES GRAY SHOWS PROMISE

Frances Gray who recently made her professional debut with the Stuart Walker Players at Cincinnati in the premiere of "Three Roses", will leave shortly for her home at Chapel Hill, N. C., before going to New York to make final decision on offers resulting from her promising stage start. Miss Gray, one of Stuart Walker's "discovers", played her role in "Three Roses" so creditably that she was given the part of Martin Summer in "The Boomerang". Her stage presence and the Southern richness of her voice received favorable comment from the reviewers. She is the daughter of the editor for The North Carolina Geological Survey and has appeared in amateur theatricals at college.

BROWN LANDS AFTER DELAY

New York, Sept. 6.—Martin Brown, author of "Colera", who arrived from Southern France this week, was detained by immigration officials because of an irregularity in his passport. After a delay of twenty-four hours, Brown was permitted to land. He made straight for the Langens Theater to witness a performance of his play for the first time. Brown is also the author of "Great Music", which will be presented this fall.

NEW BRIGHTON CLOSES

New York, Sept. 8.—The New Brighton Theater at Brighton Beach, according to its usual custom, put up its shutters for the fall and winter tonight. The theater is reported to have enjoyed a successful season from every viewpoint. It will remain in darkness until early next May, when the summer resort reopens.

EARLY FALL WEATHER HURTS ENGLISH BEACHES

London, Sept. 8.—Early fall weather has resulted in failure for bathing beaches at the seaside resorts, many of which are going broke. At Eastbourne, Bourne Mouth, Brighton and Torquay many concessionaires have "gone to the wall".

QUITS "G. V. FOLLIES"

New York, Sept. 7.—Amazar, formerly associated with the Chicago Opera Company and prima donna of the Opera Comique in Paris, will not appear in the cast of the "Greenwich Village Follies" when it opens Monday night in Atlantic City. No reason was given for the opera singer's sudden withdrawal.

Sir Geo. Tallis Outlines New Tivoli Circuit Plans

Williamson Organization in Australia Will Follow Policy of Musgrove Circuit, With Which It Recently Amalgamated, He Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Amalgamation of the J. C. Williamson Vaudeville Circuit, Ltd., and Musgrove's Celebrity, Ltd., into an organization bearing the title of "Williamson's Tivoli Vaudeville Circuit", with all the recently acquired Tivoli theaters entirely devoted to vaudeville and the retention of the Musgrove policy, was announced this week by Sir George Tallis, governing director of the Williamson interests, in an exclusive interview with The Billboard. He also made it known that his organization would make an effort to popularize a combination picture and vaudeville policy in Australia and New Zealand by primarily playing "suitable" acts in Williamson picture houses.

Sir George's statement of the virtual elimination of one of the circuits from the Australian vaudeville field came as a confirmation of a similar report carried by The Billboard several issues ago. The Australian theatrical magnate admitted that the Musgrove management of the Tivoli vaudeville interests had been a success and it was agreed that it would be most beneficial for the new operators to adhere to the old Tivoli policy. The Williamson interests, he said, are operating twelve theaters under a strictly vaudeville policy, these houses including the Tivoli theaters in Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, Brisbane, Perth and two in New Zealand.

However, the new management, Sir George pointed out, will make every effort to obtain big vaudeville attractions from the United States instead of concerning itself with the English market, as was the practice of the Musgrove directors. The British field, he said, will be pretty well exhausted before long and it is necessary that the Williamson organization concentrate its scouting for new material in the American vaudeville theater. At least twenty-two American acts are scheduled to sail from the Coast to Australia within a short space of time, he said.

To Increase Holdings

The directors of the Williamson Tivoli Vaudeville Circuit plan to increase its holdings, "roping in quite a number of houses in outside centers," as Sir George expressed it. The circuit at the present time is being extended out of the leading cities so that it will eventually embrace every part of Australia and New Zealand. Harold A. Bowden, who originally came here to scout the legitimate market for the Williamson organization, will be in charge of looking American acts, while Jack Musgrove will be indefinitely retained in his post of general booking manager, Sir George said.

Vaudeville for Movie Houses

In addition to the Williamson vaudeville and legitimate interests there are eighty-six moving picture theaters operated by the organization. W. F. Thring, managing director of J. C. Williamson Films, is here with Sir George looking up films and entering into exchange arrangements for these theaters. It is now the intention of the Williamson directors to inaugurate a definite combination picture and vaudeville policy in many of these houses. The combination policy was never strongly developed in Australia, but it is the opinion of Sir George that such a policy can be made a profitable one. Acts booked to play the Tivoli vaudeville theaters will be engaged to play the picture houses for a week only. Thus the Williamson bookers will be in a position to give at least four weeks in the Sydney and Melbourne movie houses in addition to the twelve to fourteen weeks offered in the Tivoli vaudeville houses.

Other than the conversion of an old theater in Wellington, N. Z., into an up-to-date vaudeville house and the construction of another in Auckland, the Williamson organization, the governing director said, does not contemplate building any new theaters for its vaudeville circuit.

Extensive broadening of its legitimate production business is planned by the Williamson-Tallis combine, the largest single producing organization in the world.

Sir George said that his associates are seriously thinking of sending legitimate and scientific attractions to the Pacific Coast. His organization, he added, is almost on the point of sending the Melba Grand Opera Company to America. At the first favorable opportunity to the Williamson-Tallis combine, Sir George stated, contracts will be signed for the presentation of at least two Australian-produced shows in San Francisco.

The Australian theatrical magnate plans to remain in New York attending the new legitimate openings until the end of September, when he will sail for a lengthy tour of England and the continent with his family. He expects to return to America in April.

OPERATIC "TABS" FOR VAUDEVILLE

M. Milman Incorporates To Present "Mme. Butterfly" and "Carmen"

New York, Sept. 6.—Plans for the production of condensed versions of well-known grand operas, in addition to high-class musical and staging acts on a large scale, were revealed this week with the granting of incorporation papers to the Milman Production Company.

Morton A. Milman, who has been identified with musical and vaudeville circles for a number of years, head the concern, while P. Wachtel and L. Berkowitz are the other officers named in the incorporation paper. The capitalization of the project is $80,000.

Among the operas which are to be put down this season for the two-day stage are "Farrar" and "Madame Butterfly." Milman has already made definite preparations for the early launch of the former and as soon as it is on its way "Madame Butterfly" will be produced to full size and put out other operas will follow.

The conditions of these works, in each instance, will run about twenty minutes, while the casts will range from fifteen to twenty people.

A number of well-known operatic and concert artists, who heretofore have not appeared in vaudeville, have been contacted for engagements this season. Milman states "time" will be an important factor in the production of his operatic one-acts, and that while most of those who have already been signed are slated for this type of production, there are some who will be launched in straight singing and musical acts.

The Keith Circuit and affiliated time is said to be in the market for the operatic tabs, provided they are up to the standard of the one-act version of "Abba", which was produced early this season and played for a tour of the big and small-time theaters of the Keith chain.

At present "Abba" is playing the Poly houses. George A. Pol, says the attraction is proving a very satisfying draw, and that their circuit is open for others, but that vaudeville cannot stand too much of the operatic type of act.

The running time of "Abba" as an act according to Mr. Pol, is about thirty minutes.

Josiah Zurro, who produced the two-day version of "Faust" last winter for the Hippodrome, where it played two weeks, as in negotiation with Milman at the present time, and it is probable he will tie up with the corporation as director.

HAWKS 24-HOUR MAN FOR CANDIDATE DAVIS

New York, Sept. 6.—Commander Wells Hawks, publicity director for the past two years of Luna Park, Coney Island, and other enterprises, is again the contender for the Democratic nomination for president. Wells was selected by National Chairman Clegg as a twenty-four-hour man for Hon. John W. Davis for the campaigning party that the West and he immediately dropped everything, turning the Luna activities over to his assistant, Eddie Paul, and headed for the timber.

Mr. Hawks' other activities include the American Legion publicity for all States east of the Mississippi, personal representative for Mary Pickford, Nora Bayes and other stars, and he also is interested in the recently organized Brackett-Hawks-Riley Corporation, organizing a company to produce the American version of the London success, "The Dutch Girl".

Scent Intimidation Move in Keith Ban Against Pan. Acts

Wegefath Says He's Not in Position To Comment Upon Reported Order Declaring Entire Pantages Circuit Opposition

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—W. Dayton Wegefath, general booking manager of the Keith Vaudeville Circuit, today declared that he was not in a position to comment on the report that the Pantages Circuit thruout the country and Canada has officially been declared "opposition".

Current opinion in vaudeville circles hereabouts is that the Keith organization would not have the temerity to announce such a move publicly, because of its legal complications, but that there was no question that such an order was broadcast anonymously with the intention of intimidating actors.

To come out in the open and threaten to ban all acts playing Pantages houses would, it was pointed out, refute the stand taken by the Keith counsel at the trial of the Max Hart anti-trust suit that such has never been the practice of the Keith Circuit.

On the other hand, it was disclosed at the local office of the Pantages Circuit that, the heads of the Pantages organization realize the so-called opposition ban has been extended to all Pan-booked houses, no special steps have been taken to cope with the situation. The local office declared itself as little concerned over the fact that Loew agents have been instructed on no account to book acts with the Pantages Circuit.

Until the opening of the Pantages-booked house in Newark, N. J., an act that had played the Pantages Circuit found little difficulty, if suitable, in getting booking on a Keith route in the East. It was not until after the Newark house that the Keith Circuit, as far as could be learned, took cognizance of Pantages' threatened invasion of the East and let it be known, the source being anonymous, that acts playing any part of Pan. Time imperiled their chances of getting booking on the Keith Circuit.

"Old Story" to Pantages

The fact that Pantages was regarded by the powers that be in the Palace Theater Building as "opposition" was taken by the local Pan. office to be an old story. The Pan. executives, it was said, have always been aware of the fact that there are a large number of prominent standard acts which could not be offered to Pan. bookers and that the booking of such acts in Pantages theaters would automatically bar them from getting time in any Keith house.

Summed up, the stand taken by the Pantages Circuit on the situation prevailing between the two organizations is as follows:

There are enough worth-while acts willing to play any circuit if work is offered them, no matter how strict the ban on the part of the Keith Circuit.

The vaudeville business is still a competitive game, with the acts ready to take the highest price offered them. If they can't get their price from the Keith Circuit they'll naturally turn for an offer to the Pantages Circuit. Consequently the stricter the "opposition" the higher remuneration for the acts.

The only serious move on the part of the Keith organization would be the launching of a price war, but Pantages, it was said, was prepared to fight such a battle to a finish.

It was denied at the local Pan. office that Pantages, to offset the loss of material threatened by the opposition ban, would change his contract, eliminating the five "cut" houses on the circuit. "The other fellow has scores of 'cuts'; we have only five," was the retort to this question.

One report has it that the Pantages Circuit is backed by the powerful Bank of Italy and that in the event of a real fight between the Keith organization and Pantages this institution, to protect its holdings, would be prepared to support the West Coast theatrical magnate to the limit.

It is commented, believed that the "opposition" pronouncement said to have been issued by the Keith office would not in the least faze Pantages in his plan to build up an extensive string of theaters for his circuit in the East.

RAY BAND HAS CONCERT TOUR BOOKED

New York, Sept. 8.—Horton Ray and his orchestra of fifteen pieces, booked into the Hippodrome this week, is being handled by James Plunkett while in vaudeville. Ray is lined up for a number of concert engagements this fall, but it is said they will not interfere with his two-a-day bookings.

GOLDEN'S NEW FLASH ACT WILL HAVE 14 PEOPLE

New York, Sept. 6.—Meyer Golden is producing a new flash act for vaudeville to be called "The Crow". It will have a company of fourteen people and is staged in five scenes, with special lighting and other effects. The production is to open soon to try out for the Keith Time.

OBSERVE COMPOSERS' NIGHT

New York, Sept. 5.—Composers' Night was observed this week at the Ambassador Theater when Oscar Bradley, conductor of "The Dream Girl" orchestra, entertained a party of the leading music comedy and revue composers. The occasion called for the best selections from Victor Herbert's other operettas besides "The Dream Girl".

BOOKED FOR PAN. TIME

New York, Sept. 6.—Walace and Cappo were booked for a tour of the Pantages Circuit, opening the middle of November, thru a showing arranged for them by Lew Golder. The act had to be kept at the Regent Theater here last week.

"HONEYMOONING" OPENS

New York, Sept. 6.—"Honeymooning", with Earl Cavanagh and Al Lester featured, opened this week at Passaic, N. J., to break in. Later it will be seen in regular Keith houses. The Vogne Sisters, Ruth Cavanagh and Irene Russell are also in the act. M. Thor is the producer.

KENNEDY IN NEW ACT

New York, Sept. 6.—William A. Kennedy is set for opening September 15 at Passaic, N. J., in a new Irish skit, with a supporting company of three. The billing will be William A. Kennedy and Company.

ST. LOUIS PAPERS PRAISE LOEW PRESS AGENT

New York, Sept. 8.—Newspapers of St. Louis as well as business establishments of that city have joined in paying a compliment to Terry Turner, publicity director for the Loew Circuit, for his excellent work done in connection with the recent opening of the new State Theater.

Among other things Turner got out a sixteen-page section in The St. Louis Star devoted exclusively to the opening of the house. At the theater a stopping film, done by Clara Windsor, was shown.

One large department store not included in the film ran an advertisement in The St. Louis Globe Democrat praising the film and the work of the publicity manager who engineered the film and opening. This was entirely unsolicited by Turner.

MOBILE HOUSE REOPENS

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 7.—The vaudeville season opens here tomorrow with the following bill: Jovita, Frederic Santley and Marion Simpson, Mabel Harper, Clifford Wayne Trio and Farnell and Florence.

The Lyric, local home of Keith vaudeville, has undergone its usual summer rejuvenation, and M. A. McDermott, owner of the house, anticipates a good season.

DANCE HALL WAR LOOMS ON B'WAY

Stiff Competition Leads Proprietors To Sign Special Attractions

New York, Sept. 8.—Competition for the ballroom trade of Broadway will result in local dance fans hoping to the best orchestras in the country beginning next week with the opening of the new Arcadia one block from the former establishment the Roseland.

The Arcadia has signed Ray Miller and his Brunswick Orchestra and for the opening week especially several visiting orchestras, including Isham Jones, are expected to appear. Miller also promises his Mound City Blues Blowers and another crack combination surprise which he has up his sleeve. Several big-time vaudeville acts, like the Mosconi Brothers, will also be seen at the Arcadia.

To offset these attractions it became known today that the Roseland management has contracted for Vincent Lopez's Orchestra for four days, beginning next week, and will follow that band with Jan Garber for three weeks.

In addition to these two new orchestras built up by Sam Laman, who has been scouring the country for star soloists, will be a standing feature at the Roseland. The Fletcher Henderson Orchestra, now at the Roseland, goes into the new "Passing Show".

At the Cinderella Ballroom, two blocks from the other two contenders, Willie Croager and Louis Katzman have a novelty combination designed as a comedy outfit as well as dance orchestra with unusual arrangements by Katzman and Croager. The former arranger was with a well-known publisher for years and turned out many big hits. Also as a surprise orchestra the Cinderella has just signed a combination new to New York which will be heard next week.

With Jan Garber at the Roseland the Victor record company will have an orchestra on Broadway for the first time since Paul Whiteman closed last spring at the Palais Royal. The Brunswick is backing Ray Miller and is lending its artists to make the Arcadia a success. The new dance palace is said to be the last word in such places and has recently been completed.

With such orchestras on Broadway, local dance patrons will be able to show their favoritism for any one of several orchestras, and which will outdraw the other is a matter of speculation in professional as well as lay circles.

This competition, which comes to a head next week, was first foretold in The Billboard some weeks ago. The various ballroom managers are determined to get the best orchestras at any cost. It is pointed out that all three ballrooms will hardly survive, and also that real dance orchestras have been comparatively scarce in Broadway dance establishments.

Vaudeville Notes

RUTH DRAPER began her vaudeville tour at the Palace Theater, Cleveland, this week, and will jump to New York for the following week, where she will be headlined, according to present plans, at the Palace Theater. The Cleveland and New York engagements are all that MISS DRAPER has accepted so far.

TOM BARRY is rushing to the defense of the business man, flayed by H. L. MENCKEN and SINCLAIR LEWIS, having written a sketch for vaudeville called "Just Another Babbitt". It is at present in rehearsal and will open within a fortnight.

EARL MOSSMAN and ALICE TURNER are playing a Keith route this season in their singing and dancing offering labeled "Broadway Tid-Bits".

Alice Turner

TED LEWIS is at the Palace Theater, New York, this week, headlining the bill with his Jazzy-Jazz Clowns. He was at the Palace last spring and during the past summer has been playing at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City.

The engagement of WILLIAM FAVERSHAM for a new play, "The Ostrich Man", to be produced soon by BROCK PEMBERTON, has caused the cancellation of FAVERSHAM'S vaudeville engagement. He opened only two weeks ago in Newark.

HELEN EVANS and GEORGE HOEY opened recently to break in an offering called "Typists-Writers". They are booked on the Keith Time.

JACOB BEN AMI opened Monday at the Franklin Theater, New York. He is doing the second act from "Samson and Delilah" and is scheduled for the Palace Theater the week of September 22.

JUSTINE JOHNSTONE, stage and screen star, who recently returned from London, is rehearsing a one-act playlet for presentation in Keith vaudeville. The piece will be ready for opening the latter part of this month.

NELSON KEYS, of "Charlot's Revue", is considering an offer to enter Keith vaudeville. He is a veteran of the English music hall.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU is said to have signed for another tour of the Orpheum Circuit in "Bracelets", the playlet she toured that circuit in last season.

DOROTHY GALLAND, in a new single act, entitled "Just Growing Up", opened at the Norumbega Park Theater, Boston, September 5.

CHARLES JUDELS and JEAN FORD opened at Milwaukee Monday for a five weeks' engagement in Orpheum Circuit houses. Additional time is pending.

DONALD BRIAN, VIRGINIA O'BRIEN and LIEUT. GITZ RICE opened at the Orpheum Theater, Brooklyn, Monday, in a new singing, dancing and piano act. The trio will "team" together for an eight weeks' engagement.

JULIA SANDERSON and FRANK CRUMIT played their last Keith vaudeville engagement last week at the River-Idle Theater, New York. They are going back into musical comedy.

SAM HOWARD and LILLIAN NORWOOD are doing a new act this season over the Keith Time, entitled "Esther From Pittsburg".

Lillian Norwood

E. DON SANG and J. AD CHUNG, the latter formerly of the CHUNG LA FOUR, have teamed together in a new singing and comedy act.

"Tangerine", the tabloid version of the musical comedy, has closed on the Pacific Coast after a tour of the Pantages Circuit.

The EIGHT LENORA GIRLS, a new dancing revue in which each girl does specialties, opened last week at Proctor's 125th Street Theater, New York.

JACK DONNELLY and BEN SMITH opened recently on the Keith pop. time in their offering, called "Bean Brummels of Songland".

The WILTON SISTERS start their Keith route for this season at Toledo the week of September 22.

MURDOCK and the HENNESSY SISTERS have been routed for a tour of the Delmar Time and open the week of September 22 at Norfolk, Va. LEW GOLDER made the booking.

MIACAHUA, Brazilian wire walker, opened last week at the Brighton Beach Theater, New York, starting a Keith route of thirty-two weeks arranged thru the office of ALF. T. WILTON.

KELSO BROS., FLORENCE DARLEY, MAURICE KELLY, BILLY DELISLE, FRED DELMAR and his Fighting Lions opened at Poll's Palace Theater, Bridgeport, Conn., in several scenes from a show, working singly in specialties and then altogether in their "Crazy Quilt Revue" as four acts of the six-act bill.

A. F. of M. May Insist Upon Standard Contract for Bands

Arbitrary Type of Agreement Issued by Leaders and Booking Offices Leads Union Officials To Consider Standard Form for All

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Growing discontent with the arbitrary type of contracts issued by orchestra leaders and booking offices manifest for some time among national officials of the American Federation of Musicians and heads of various union locals has developed into a movement looking for the establishment of a standard contract drawn up by the union, it was learned this week.

The situation was brought to a head this week when a federation official intimated that charges would be brought against a prominent orchestra leader for abrogating to himself thru clauses in his contract certain prerogatives assumed by the union, such as firing its members. The organization is expected to make official objection to the continued signing up of its members on long-term contracts, not of the play or pay variety.

Some time ago the federation and the various leading locals started a campaign among its members urging them to sign on nothing but union-certified contracts, issued free of charge at the national office and local headquarters. However, a large number of men tied up by the various orchestra booking offices failed to avail themselves of this offer and are now getting out of what they say are unreasonable contracts.

The orchestra leader who makes it a practice of sending out scouts to sign up young aspiring musicians in small-time jazz bands this week complained to the union that one of his men signing with a unit in a Philadelphia vaudeville theater was threatening to break his contract to join a jazz orchestra combination on Broadway two weeks hence.

The lad complained of next day got in touch with the federation office and asked whether the union would back him up if he took the new job offered him. He said that he had signed up for a year at a comparatively small salary without any assurance of salary in the event the contractor failed to get him work.

An examination of his contract with his present employer revealed a clause to the effect that if he failed to appear and so forth would make him liable to a $100 fine. This brought forth the heated retort that this clause was in flagrant violation of the federation laws and both the musician and his employer, also a member of the union, had no right to sign such a contract.

The national official then tried to get in touch with the orchestra leader with a view to questioning him on the matter and if no satisfaction was obtained bring him on charges before the federation trial board.

At the headquarters of the Associated Musicians of Greater New York, Local 802, the young musician was told that he could not be counseled either way and that the only manner the issue could be settled would be for him to break his contract and present his side of the case before the local's trial board at the proper time. It was also declared at the local 802 office that the orchestra leader had no authority to insert the fine clause in his contract and that should he bring charges against the band player it was doubtful whether the board would uphold him.

OBJECTS TO BILLING OF "PALAIS ROYAL" ORCHESTRA

New York, Sept. 6.—The Barney Rapp Orchestra on a barnstorming dance tour thru New England, has been requested by Paul Whiteman to refrain from billing his band as the Palais Royal Orchestra. Whiteman, in his letter to Rapp pointed out that he owned the cafe and took up the name of Palais Royal for three years, and that he was entitled to use of the name inasmuch as Rapp had only filed in for him at the cafe for two weeks. Whiteman also said that he would take legal steps if necessary to have Rapp desist from the use of the name Palais Royal Orchestra.

SOUSA LEADS PRISONERS

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—John Philip Sousa gave a concert Wednesday at the Eastern Penitentiary where he led "the prison musicians." The band played four numbers, two of them being compositions by Sousa. The famous band leader was insistent upon having just the right expression at every point and on two occasions stopped the band and had them do it over. A box of cigars and a cane made by the institution were presented to the bandmaster.

Whiteman Plays for the Prince

Uses Thirty-Five Men at Fete—Starts World Tour September 19

New York, Sept. 6.—Paul Whiteman and thirty-five musicians left this afternoon for a chartered bus for the estate of Clarence M. Kay at Roslyn, Long Island, where a dinner and dance will be held in honor of the Prince of Wales.

Whiteman took his regular concert band of twenty-five pieces as well as the orchestra led by his leader, Mel Morris, who has ten men under his direction. The entire stage crew and scenic effects used by the Whiteman concert orchestra on the road also were taken along.

After a number of big orchestras volunteered to play for the prince gratis, it is understood that Whiteman expressed a desire to renew his acquaintance with Whiteman, which started when the leader played London last year. Lord and Lady Mountbatten, also friends of Whiteman, concurred with the opinion of the prince that Whiteman was the most desirable one, and a worth-while contract was given him by Clarence Mackay, whose only restriction was that no publicity would be given out until the event took place in order to avoid embarrassing the prince. Eight hundred guests are expected to listen to Whiteman's jazz and concert numbers.

On September 19 Whiteman resumes his concert tour as an engagement that is expected to take him all over the world and last possibly two years. He opens at Cumberland, Md., under the direction of Francis F. Thomas, concert manager. The concert will be held at "Experiments in Modern Music."

The United Orchestras, Inc., of which Paul Whiteman is president, will continue to book orchestras and supply them for high-class social and dance occasions. Melville Morris will be in charge of the booking, while James F. Gospage will act as Whiteman's personal representative, doing some advance work ahead of an orchestra. Gospage was until recently with the Lopez organization.

Zee Confrey, Brooke Johns, Alvin Curran and the radio orchestra "The Mazouk", will be available as well as other first-class combinations. The addition of the Brooke Johns orchestra takes place shortly and is the first time that the entertainer has been booked for some work.

MUSIC Industries Chamber of Commerce, through its Better Business Bureau, conducted by C. H. Dennis, announces that the song sharks operating in and around Chicago have been pretty well cleaned out. The last of the offenders, according to the complaints of amateur writers to the post-office authorities, were fined in Federal Court by Judge G. A. Carpenter, who imposed a fine of $750 upon Lester E. Simmons, and one of $250 upon Mary F. Letgers, both of whom operated under various names including Frank Radner, Dean L. Haylor, Edward Trent, Marvin Morry, Thomas Merrin, Ideal Publishing Company, Warfield Music Service and Letgers Music Company, as well as others.

Reason why they were let off with fines plus costs is that restitution was made as far as possible and some $3,000 was refunded to the legitimate writers. This was done by the offenders playing safe and going thru their entire list, writing each customer who had complained to the authorities.

An invalid woman in Brooklyn, who had been separated from $300 received all of it back, while still another crippled woman in Indiana received a rebate. The latter wrote to the Chamber of Commerce, thanking it for its efforts, and told how she received the refund, after complaining to the postal inspectors. Also included among the victims was a helpless girl in a small Ohio town, whose pathetic case aroused the sympathy of many when it became known. One publication raised some money by subscription among its readers and the girl was able to replace the hole in her savings, which were intended for a much-needed operation.

Most significant thing about the Chicago situation is that the postal inspectors, working under Frank N. Davis, have followed up all the complaints and removed the amateur-milking sources. Davis succeeded in securing a conviction in every one of his cases. It was thru his efforts that all customers of the song sharks who expressed dissatisfaction with their dealings received some money by way of restitution.

In New York several indictments against song sharks are pending, while others are out on bail. The Chamber of Commerce has not relaxed its vigilance to safeguard the amateur writers and free the legitimate publishers from a most undesirable parasite on the sidelines.

Co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce is the Music Publishers' Protective Association, which, under the direction of E. C. Mills, chairman of the executive board, is doing all it can to keep the alleged publisher from getting the amateur's money, with ultimate, detrimental effects on the legitimate music man.

Much literature is being continually distributed by the Chamber of Commerce and to this will be added shortly additional pamphlets put out by the M. P. P. A., in which will be incorporated a recent interview given by Mills on song sharks. It is hoped, in time, that all amateur and aspiring song writers will be sufficiently acquainted with the literature intended for their benefit and that all will read about the swindler and his methods.

The Gene Rodemich Music Publishing Corporation has been formed, with New York offices at 150 West 46th street and St. Louis headquarters in the Grand Central Theater Building. Larry Conley is general manager.

Rodemich, who is well known as an orchestra leader and generally credited with originating the wow-wow technique for brass instruments, is starting his operations with two songs, one of them an Oriental fox-trot novelty entitled "Shanghai Shuffle", and the other a Hawaiian dance tune, "Honolulu". Rodemich and Conley are the writers of both songs.

Inasmuch as the concern believes it has excellent material on hand ready to follow the two initial numbers, an extensive advertising and song exploitation campaign will soon be under way. Rodemich plans to go into the publishing business on a scale that will be gradually larger and larger until he has it on a big basis. On the opening day last week, many congratulatory telegrams and letters were received from various sources throughout the country.

Chas. Bayha, who for the past few years has been connected with Shapiro, Bernstein & Company in the capacity of advertising, band and orchestra head and other things, is making his connection with the music to go into the real estate business at Coral Gables, near Miami, Fla. The project is one of the largest of its kind in the country. While there he will act as personal representative for the Jan Garber Orchestra, which will open under his direction at the Coral Gables Hotel.

Bayha, who was unusually active during his two years with the S. B. concern, is given credit for having induced the firm to publish "Yes, We Have No Bananas", and also was first to see such hits as "On the Beach Parade", "Rose of Washington Square", and others. He brought Jan Garber to the front and also discovered Brock Adams, who received a New York Learning at his recommendation.

Since the learned Berlin professor, Adolph Melsch, announced the secret of making something out of nothing in an action of self-defense, local songwriters in that city have started a "gold" cycle of songs. Among the new Berlin song titles we find "Golden Dreams", "The Hunter for Gold" and "Golden Gallops". These songs, having reference to the meekness of metal, are heard on the radio, in cabarets and other resorts where songs might be plugged.

At the same time jazz has actually invaded the fashionable Gramwald section of Berlin, causing consternation among the residents. Many of the Gramwald mansions, most of them small-sized castles, have their own pipe organs, electric pianos, radio and other up-to-date music-producing devices and the owners are indignant at the jazz artists.

Would be kind of tough to find a song-plugger at the back door paying off the organist to put on a new tune just in from America.

Billy Lang, president of the Orpheum Music Company, has closed his offices in Boston, and announced intentions of going into the music business on the Pacific Coast. James Walsh, who was associated with Lang, will remain in the East, with offices in Providence, R. I., where his last song, "After a While", is still going strong.

Agar, Yellen & Bernstein Music Company got a nifty break last week when a columnist, whose stuff is syndicated, featured the song, "Hard-Hearted Hannah", for the whole works. The series of wise cracks are funny and one of them quotes Jack Yellen as saying that when Hannah was five years old they found her on the roof with a shotgun waiting for Santa Claus.

Eugene West is getting under way again with two plug songs with big publishers. One of them is a comedy number, "She's Such a Nice Girl", with Shapiro, Bernstein & Company, which is different from his usual style, and "She Was a Good Fellow", with Fred Fisher, Inc. The Fisher concern published West's first ballad success, "Broadway Rose".

Philadelphia may soon have a new music house, one started by Will Fraley, who will publish his own numbers. Fraley, in the past has written numerous special numbers for vaudeville acts, and also illustrated title pages of songs for various publishers.

Popular numbers to be released during the month of September by the Brunswick record company are: "Adoration—Georgia Lullaby", "Scissor-Grinder Joe—Wondering Blues", "Beets and Turnips—Weary Blues", "Tatty—I Don't Know Why", "Please—Charleston Caidin", "Charley, My Boy—Pleasure Man", "Follow the Swallow—Not Now, Not Yet, But Soon", "Put Away a Little Ray of Golden Sunshine—You Know Me, Alabama", "Wanted, Someone to Love—Go, Humaline", "Too Tired—Doelle Doo Doo", "Honest and Truly—I'd Love You All Over Again", "Memory Lane—Nightingale".

Others not on the schedule may be added to the releases.

Lourence Melvyn's new composition, "Dream House", which is published by E. B. Marks Music Company, will be in the repertoire of John Charles Thomas, tenor, in his forthcoming concert tour. Miss Methven, it may be remembered, wrote the war-time hit, "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose", with Marien Gillespie, another youthful writer.

"That's Tre Papa, I'm Gonna Give You Air", is the title of a new song that starts the Majestic Music Company off on its career, with quarters at 118 West Forty-sixth street, New York. The number is by Thomas Waller and Stanley Williams, and will be featured by Jane Green when she opens in the new Ed Wynn show.

Bernie Pollack, sales representative for Jack Mills, Inc., returned last week from a six months' trip thru the West, from whence he brought with him a staggering amount of orders for sheet music. After two weeks in New York, Pollack will go to the Coast where he will manage a branch office for the Mills concern.

Bob Le Page, Eastern representative for the J. W. Jenkins Music Company, reports that the consistent plug being given "Kiss Me Good-Night", by the Ben Bernie Orchestra, which wrote the song, is resulting in a gratifying demand for the number every day. The concern's "Adoration" waltz song continues to sell steadily.

The Tivoli, New York motion picture house, greatly stimulated business last week by putting on a series of song-writer nights, when well-known writers appeared and sang their own numbers. Such shows have been given at amplexible houses, but the motion picture plug on this order is comparatively new in the city. Songwriters always seem to draw a house and the songs they sing, usually being new ones, are readily heard by the patrons.

While the writers are able to plug their songs and the catalogs of a house to which they are attached, it is no easy matter to put on a show after the usual day's work is done. Whatever results they get in the way of increased sheet-music sales are surely deserved.

of the doorway of a special drop bearing the legend "Times Square Bachelors' Club", and is assailed by the happened-to-be-passing "meal hand" or gold-digger. Brown's prissy air and the girl's display of her repertoire of tricks made up the humor of their chatter exchange. The stuff got a bunch of solid laughs when reviewed.

For an epilog the girl warbles a few verses of "It's a Man" and her partner flings in his share of song. A melody of modern hits brings their routine to a close. Both are diverting in their fashion and should gain due favor in medium time. B. B.

EDDIE AND GRACE

Reviewed Thursday evening, September 4, at Fox's Audubon Theater, New York. Style—Singing and dancing. Setting—In one. Time—Twelve minutes.

A fine precision and grace marks Eddie's seemingly effortless forte for jingling, while Grace contents herself with corolling mammy songs and a "Many" ballad and a brace of steps on the close. These two youngsters make a diverting deuce-spot turn and appear to be the sort bound to win high favor with a pop-house audience. B. B.

SEMION, CONRAD AND CO.

Reviewed Thursday afternoon, September 4, at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theater, New York. Style—Singing, dancing and comedy. Setting—Special drop, in one. Time—Sixteen minutes.

Primrose Semion and Arthur Conrad offer a diverting act of patter, songs and dances, done before a drop representing the stage door entrance to the Palace Theater. They engage in a lively crossfire on the opening. Conrad being attired in the uniform of a taxi chauffeur who has just driven the actress (Miss Semion) to the theater. Conrad doubles for the part of the stage manager as the scene goes to the dressing room of the actress, who is being fixed up for the performance by a colored maid (the company).

Miss Semion comes out before the house "olio" to do her act. It consists of a jazz song and dance and an imitation of Eddie Cantor singing "She's Just a Nice Girl". With the special drop returning, Conrad offers "They Call It Dancing", and after a short patter between him and Miss Semion they both do a little dance. For the close a double version of "Some Night" is offered.

The act got over to a fine band when reviewed. R. C.

THE FOUR BRADNAS

Reviewed Thursday afternoon, September 4, at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theater, New York. Style—Acrobatic, dancing, novelty. Setting—Specials, in full. Time—Nine minutes.

In the routine done by the Four Bradnas there is a little bit of everything and all of it done well. Outstanding in the routine is the tumbling and acrobatic work on the part of the little girl, who certainly is no mean artiste in this line. The elder man, who clowns through the act, gains a few laughs and a smattering of applause, while the other girl and her partner execute some dance steps of a diverting order. A couple dogs brought on at various stages of the act do a few simple tricks, breaking balloons and taking part in the acrobatic stunts. On the finish the elder man and woman do a few hat-throwing stunts, closing with one of the dogs catching the hats as they descend to the stage floor.

The offering is suitable for the family time. R. G.

TENNY AND WHITE

Reviewed Thursday afternoon, September 4, at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theater, New York. Style—Singing. Setting—In one. Time—Fifteen minutes.

Tenny and White aren't far from being a pennant-winning battery of songland. Both boys have an admirable style of delivery, possess good voices and make a fine appearance. One of the team functions at the piano but doesn't give any solos on that instrument.

The men open with "California, Here I Come", to which they have added a lot of interesting lyrics. "Hard-Hearted Hannah" is put across in grand style by the young chap who leans on the piano, and "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" follows with both of the boys getting in a lot of the harmony. The pianist complies with "I Wonder What's Become of Sally" and the other chap returns to do a comedy number, "Has Anyone Seen Helme". A melody of comic ditties leading up to "I'm Goin' South", which altho quite shopworn by this time, got across to a hefty hand when reviewed and brought up the close.

Tenny and White can hold down the dance spot on any bill. They're of big-time caliber. B. C.

Five Independent Booking Offices Reach Agreement

Rules Drawn Up Expected To Put Agents on Businesslike and Systematic Basis

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Negotiations begun several days ago and perfected yesterday by the agreement of five independent vaudeville booking offices, will have the effect, it is believed, of putting the independent booking agents on a businesslike and systematic basis. By the terms of the agreement it is said that a number of the agents are out entirely.

The booking offices included in the agreement are the Pantages office, represented by Charles Hopkins; Jones Linnick & Smeafer, represented by John J. Jones; International office, represented by George Webster; Gus Sun office, represented by Billy Diamond; Ascher Bros' Circuit, represented by Harry Beaumont.

It appears that much confusion has been caused in the past by alleged slipshod methods of several of the independent agents. The five agencies drew up several rules to be followed by the agents. Some of the important points are, in brief, as follows:

If any agent in representing an act that proves unsatisfactory the agent must assume the responsibility for the contract, saving the booking office from all liability or forfeit his right to book with those offices. No agent booking with those offices will be allowed to act as booking representative of any theater, club or movie house unless he books the acts thru one of the five agency agencies. No agent will be allowed to book acts for trunks and charge such acts a commission or accept a fee of any description from truant performers. In the event more than one agent submits the same act authorization in writing must be had from the act as to their legal representative. Priority of submitting same will not count.

Morris Gest Announces Plans Returns From Europe With Many Foreign Novelties

New York, Sept. 5.—Morris Gest, who returned Tuesday on the Majestic from a ten-week tour of Europe, gave out last night the announcement of the plans of the firm of F. Day Comstock and Morris Gest for the coming season. Mr. Gest, during his stay abroad, visited Paris and London twice; Berlin, Salzburg, Vienna, Venice, St. Moritz, Gardone, the country seat of Gabriel D'Annunzio in the Italian mountains, and Asolo, where Eleonora Duse lies buried.

Plans for his "The Miracle", now in its second season at the Century Theater, came first in the announcement. "The Miracle" will remain for nine more weeks, dating from next Monday and will bring its run to a close on the evening of Saturday, November 8.

Lady Diana Manners, who returned to the east in the roles of the Madonna and Nun last Monday night, is under a brief contract. On her return to London, Mary Garden will be seen for a few performances in the role of the Madonna.

"The Miracle", Mr. Gest definitely announced for the first time, will be transported to Cleveland following the close of its run here, to play a limited engagement for three weeks only beginning Monday evening, December 22, in the Public Auditorium. The same guarantees who made possible the successful engagement of the Metropolitan Opera Company in Cleveland last spring have subscribed a fund of $317,000 to insure the success of this project. Eight weeks will be required to remove the cathedral structure from the Century Theater, transport it to the Lake City and set it up again.

While abroad Mr. Gest arranged for the first production in Reinhardt's home city of Salzburg of "The Miracle". When "The Miracle" is produced in Salzburg August 1, next year, it will be seen for the first time in an actual church, the Kollegienkirche. Lady Diana Manners will be the Madonna in this production.

Immediately after the Salzburg production of "The Miracle", Mr. Gest has arranged for the second London production of "The Miracle" in the early fall of 1925. Rosamond Pinchof, the American girl who created the role of the Nun in New York, will play it also in London, alternating with a young English actress not yet determined upon.

After negotiations which have extended over many months and which came to a head while Mr. Gest was in Europe, the permission of the Soviet Government has been obtained for the release from Russia of the dancer, Mikhail Mordkin. Mordkin will have his own company, including three young ballerinas never before seen outside of Russia, and his own scenery and costumes designed by Russian artists.

While in Paris, Mr. Gest arranged for the opening of the new season of Balloff's Chauve-Souris at the Theater Femina on the Champs Elysees, October 1. The Paris engagement is for six weeks only, to be followed by a six weeks' stay in London. Balloff and his entire company will arrive in New York about Christmas time to play a limited engagement of six weeks. Thereafter Balloff's Chauve-Souris will go to Washington and Montreal and produce direct to California.

Reinhardt is not coming to New York, said Mr. Gest. Mr. Gest has arranged with him, however, to return to New York next season to put on for him another engagement. What this production will be has not been decided on, but it is likely that it will be the new and as yet unfinished play by the foremost Italian dramatist, Gabriel D'Annunzio, the rights to which Mr. Gest holds. Ida Rubinstein, one of the foremost artists on the European stage, will be seen in the leading role in this production in addition to appearing also in a repertory including "Camille" and the two D'Annunzio plays with which her artistic reputation is most notably allied and which have never been seen in this country, "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" and "Pisanello".

One of the most important contracts Mr.

Gest signed was with Vladimir Nemirovitch-Danchenko, cofounder with Stanislavsky of the Moscow Art Theater, for the sending to New York intact the Moscow Art Theater Opera Studio, which has held the parentage during the two years when the dramatic company was in this country. Danchenko came from Moscow to Paris purposely to discuss plans with Mr. Gest. The company will include 125 people with seventy-five additional members to be recruited from this country. The repertory will include: Aristophanes' "Lysistrata", "Turandot", "The Daughter of Madame Angot" and their latest sensational success, "Carmen". All these productions will be given by a new method which involves no scenery in the accepted sense but requires a revolving stage. At least nine months will be necessary to make the preparations in Moscow and New York for this engagement which will require the stage of the Century Theater, if it is possible to arrange for it.

In Vienna, Mr. Gest started negotiations for bringing over to this country for the first time the foremost light opera prima donna of Europe's contemporary stage, Fritzi Massary, and her husband, Max Pallenberg, most celebrated comedian in Central Europe, who was the original partner in the London production of "The Miracle".

An unusual novelty on Mr. Gest's schedule for this season is the Russian Gypsy soloist, Jean Goulesko, who has played before Russian royalty and who is the sensational success of the hour in Paris. He will bring with him his own little orchestra and will be heard here at private performances only.

In London, Mr. Gest came to an agreement with Oscar Asche, the eminent English actor-manager, to come to New York and for the first time in this country play the role he created in his great spectacle, "Chu Chin Chow", which Mr. Gest produced here in 1917, and which he plans to revive on a large scale.

While abroad Mr. Gest carried forward to a substantial certainty arrangements for the production in Europe of the greatest plays by his father-in-law, David Belasco, "The Girl of the Golden West" and "The Return of Peter Grimm".

Mr. Gest reports that while he had many sessions with the directors of the Comedie Francaise in Paris, looking toward his bringing to this country the oldest and most respected theatrical organization in the world, the difficulties which lie in the path of this project are so great that no definite decision has yet been reached. The by-laws of the organization require that its home stage be occupied every night, and Mr. Gest is unwilling to bring the company to this country except in full force as he did with the Moscow Art Theater.

"HASSAN" HAS BIG CAST

New York, Sept. 5.—"Hassan", James Elroy Flecker's colorful play of ancient Bagdad, will be presented by A. L. Erlanger at the Knickerbocker Theater Monday, September 22, in five acts and ten scenes. The large company engaged for the spectacle includes nearly sixty principals, with a ballet of seventy dancers and an ensemble that will bring the total number of players to more than two hundred. Foremost in the cast will appear Mary Nash as Yasmin. Others are Violet Kemble Cooper as Pevanah, an inmate of the Caliph's harem; Randle Ayrton as Hassan, the confederator; James Dale as Haroun Al Raschid, the Caliph of Bagdad; Douglas Burbridge as Rafi, the King of the Beggars; Doering Wells as Selim, a lover; Arnold Lucy as Jafar, the Vizier, and Murray Kinnell as Ishak, a poet, and many others.

The music of "Hassan" was composed by Frederick Delius, and the ballets are being arranged by Michel Fokine, who went to London to stage the ballets of the original production. The production, because of its magnitude, will not be tried out on the road but will open "cold" after a series of dress rehearsals.

NYDIA WESTMAN

This winsome little actress is making her first Broadway appearance in "Pigs", John Golden's newest American comedy, at the Little Theater, New York. Miss Westman began her stage career as a child in vaudeville with the Westman vaudeville family.

LEO CARRILLO SIGNS UP WITH PROVINCETOWN GROUP

New York, Sept. 5.—The management of the Provincetown Playhouse and the Greenwich Village Theater announces the personnel of the permanent company to appear at these houses during the coming season and the names of the opening plays.

Early in October "All God's Chillun Got Wings" will move to another theater and "The Saint", a play of Mexico and the Southwest, by Stark Young, will take its place at the Greenwich Village Theater. The Provincetown Playhouse will reopen at the same time with "The Crime in the Whistler Room", an American play by Edmund Wilson.

Leo Carrillo joins the permanent company to be maintained at the two theaters and will play the leading part in "The Saint". Mme. Maria Ouspensky, the leading character actress of the Moscow Art Theater, will also appear in Stark Young's play. Mary Blair, now in "All God's Chillun Got Wings", will play the leading role in "The Crime in the Whistler Room". Besides Carrillo and Miss Blair, the repertory company will include Helen Freeman, Frieda Inescort, Mary Morris, Stanley Howlett, E. J. Ballantine, Charles Ellis, Walter Abel, Allen Nash and Perry Ivins.

At each theater subscribers will be offered five plays during the season. Following "The Saint" at the Greenwich Village will be Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms", Bostand's "The Last Night of Don Juan", "Much Ado About Nothing" and Cheapeau's dramatization of "The Brothers Karamazoff".

The plays at the Provincetown will include Congreve's "Love for Love", a revival of the old English morality play, "Everyman"; to be presented around the Christmas holidays; "The Great God Brown", by O'Neill; "Beyond", by Walter Hasenclever, and "The Colonnade", by Stark Young.

The stage direction will be in the hands of Robert Edmund Jones and James Light. Jones and Leon Throckmorton will design the settings. Milla Davenport will design and execute the costumes. The two theaters will be directed by Kenneth MacGowan, in association with Eugene O'Neill, Jones and Light, Throckmorton and Eleanor Fitzgerald.

TO DIRECT "SOFT MUSIC"

New York, Sept. 5.—David Burton has just returned from Philadelphia where he conferred with Philip Goodman relative to starring Dorothy Parker's new play, "Soft Music". Production will commence after Goodman has safely launched "Dear Sir", the Selwyn-Parker-Kern musical comedy, which comes into the Times Square Theater on September 22. Burton directed "The Swan" for Charles Frohman, Inc.

Nydia Westman, Broadway's Newest "Find", Comes From Theatrical Family

Radiant little Nydia Westman, daughter of Theodore Westman, Sr., and Lily Wren Westman, well known in vaudeville, has made an overnight hit on Broadway in "Pigs", John Golden's newest comedy presentation.

And small wonder that she has made a hit even if she did make it entirely on her merits as an actress. Her family on her mother's side has been on the stage in America and England for five generations. Moreover, she has a charmingly sensitive and expressive face, with a nose that should interest plastic surgeons, a model of good lines, and a gloriously clear speaking voice.

And, furthermore, inherent talent found early expression and cultivation. The Westmans, father, mother and children, have been in vaudeville for a decade, in sketches and plays, written by the mother. According to mental calculation, Miss Nydia has been on the stage since toddling age.

When we finally managed to reach Miss Westman, after an argument with an adamant doctor, on "bloody" bent and chivalrous intervention on the part of Frank Craven, who happened along just in time to listen to our little tale of woe, we found her chatting gaily with Priscilla Platt, lately of "Lightnin'".

They were discussing the Westman family, so we learned the following:

That Daddy Westman, who writes music and has been in the music publishing business, as well as on the vaudeville stage, has just recovered from a serious illness that necessitated a blood transfusion, and that Mother Westman, who writes playlets, etc., has been playing the role of the ministering angel to her husband.

That brother Theodore, Jr., and sister Neville are touring in vaudeville, and that Miss Platt adored the costumes Miss Nydia designed for Miss Neville.

That Lolita Westman has retired temporarily from the stage to write stories and that Miss Nydia is studying art (illustration and portraiture) for the purpose of illustrating Mrs. Lolita's stories.

We "listened in" for quite a while, because listening gave us an opportunity to watch Miss Nydia's violet eyes, alternately sparkling with mischief and limpling with pathos, and the golden glints in her very blond hair.

When the conversation died down we asked Miss Nydia when she began her legitimate stage career.

"With George Tyler's 'On the Hiring Line', followed by the never-to-be-forgotten 'Lightnin'', in which I played the daughter, with the company headed by Milton Noble," replied Miss Westman.

According to information from the Golden offices, John Golden is following the same procedure in Miss Westman's case as he did in Helen Menken's, giving her a small role as preparation for a leading one. But on second thought, the part which Miss Westman plays in "Pigs" is far from a small role. It is a splendid part which serves to air her adorable little ways and to show that she has mental and physical endowments that will carry her to the top.

Best of all, to our mind, is the fact that she is thoroughly unspoiled—just a lovable youngster, singularly gifted, who confided that she misses the jolly games of baseball she used to play with her brother.

"Never mind," we consoled, "it won't be long before you will be playing baseball with some other girl's brother."

"Oh, that would be lovely," she replied artlessly.

Whereupon, we took our leave, and the conversation in the dressing room was taken up again. We were almost tempted to go back and play cardsharp to hear more about that interesting Westman family. Isn't it great to be one of a large family?

ELITA MILLER LENZ.

KUSELL'S PLANS FOR SEASON

New York, Sept. 5.—Dandel Kusnell announces his first production of the season a spectacular melodrama by Langdon McCormick, called "Shipwrecked", scheduled to make its Broadway appearance early in October. Following this Kusnell will present George Jessell in a musical play to be entitled "The Girl From Killybegs". The book is authored by Kusnell with words and music by Gus Kahn and Lou Rivers. The New York premiere for this production is set for Thanksgiving week. The producer also promises to do his dramatization of James Oliver Curwood's "The River's End", already tried out last season.

If you have not already sent your biography to The Billboard please do so. Address it to Biographical Editor, The Billboard, 25-27 Opera Place, Cincinnati, O.

THE opening of the season brings some familiar faces to Broadway again. As for example, Rollo Lloyd, just returned from directing a stock season in Denver. Rollo says he had a great company and did fine business. Hal Crane is another who is back. He has been playing stock in Birmingham, Ala. He tells Tom that it is a pleasant engagement and the heat not too intense. We also ran into Irving Caesar, who is busy doing the lyrics for some musical shows. Among them is the "Greenwich Village Follies" and Irving divulges the info that it will be a whole of an entertainment. We note that Fred J. McIsaac is the new editor of The Evening Bulletin. Fred hails from Boston and we wonder if he remembers the time he was a producer? Recall "Steam Roller Brender", Fred? Same show, even if it did last but two weeks. Edward G. Robinson stopped for a moment to tell us he is with "The Firebrand". This is the show in which Horace Liveright busts into the show game. We hear excellent reports of L. B. Wilson, the chief motion picture impresario of Covington, Ky., and brother of Hansford Wilson, came here on a visit and took us to luncheon. L. B. tells us the m. p. business is good in Kentucky. We expect he will be a colonel next time we see him. Several people have asked us who John Irwin is? Well, well, well. Jack, who has made a whacking big hit in "The Haunted House", has been playing the two, three and more-a-day for many a year. Now he steps into a Broadway show, does what he learned to do in vaudeville and knocks them cold. It takes a vaudeville training to make them see a chance, grab it and put it over. We are glad that Jack, a friend of ours for a long time, has made so handsomely good. TOM PEPPER.

CAST OF "MY SON"

New York, Sept. 5.—"My Son", by Martia Stanley, is definitely scheduled to open during the week of September 15 at the Princess Theater. The play is described as a vivid drama of the Portuguese fisherfolk of Cape Cod and their New England neighbors. Herbert Clark will have the title part with other important roles in the hands of Martha Madison, Jean Gordon, Sarah Tinnax, Margaret Shackelford, George MacQuarrie, Claude Cooper and F. I. Fernandez. Gustav Blum is directing the rehearsals and Sheldon K. Viede is doing the settings.

WILBUR HAS PLAY ACCEPTED

New York, Sept. 5.—James P. Henry has accepted a new play by Crane Wilbur, author of "The Monster". The piece, as yet untitled, will have Edmund Bruce in the leading role. This will be the actor's first appearance on Broadway since "So This Is London". Henry is sponsoring "I'll Say She Is" at the Casino Theater.

WALSH TO ABANDON SCREEN

New York, Sept. 5.—George Walsh, motion picture star, will make his first appearance on the dramatic stage this fall, according to recent announcements. Walsh appeared with Mary Pickford in "Rosita" and was in the screen version of "Ben Hur", which is being filmed abroad.

BARON HAS THREE NEW ONES

New York, Sept. 5.—Henry Baron will offer three foreign plays on Broadway this season. They are "The Man Who Killed", from the French of Pierre Frondaie and Claude Farrere; "Comedienne", a comedy of the theater by Armand and Bousquet, and "The Stroug", already seen as a special matinee production.

SAVAGE PLACES ENGLISH STAR UNDER CONTRACT

New York, Sept. 5.—Flora Le Breton, the young English stage and screen star, has been placed under contract by Henry W. Savage for a term of years. Her first American appearance will be in the title role of "Lass o' Laughter", a recent London comedy success. Miss Le Breton is now completing a film contract as star of "Such as Sit in Judgment". She played in London with Sir Herbert Tree, Sir John Bate, Gerald du Maurier and was seen in the leading roles in five editions of "Andre Charlot's Revue".

REVIVING "THE DIBBUK"

New York, Sept. 5.—"The Dibbuk", presented last season by the Yiddish Troupe, is to be revived by the Yiddish Art Theater in Madison Square. Maurice Swartz, director of the organization, has engaged Lea Rosen for the leading feminine part. Miss Rosen was long associated with the Reinhardt productions in Germany.

NEW FIRM TO THE FRONT

New York, Sept. 5.—Comes another producing firm to Broadway headed by Richard Grady, one time owner of the Silver Slipper Cabaret; William Collier and John Meehan, now stage director for A. L. Jones and Morris Green enterprises. The firm announces its intention to offer several new plays in the course of the season.

CRAVEN HIS OWN PRODUCER

New York, Sept. 5.—For some time Frank Craven has been treading a path to retire from the stage and become his own producer. Such an action to the world, the star announces that he will assume the financial risk of presenting five new plays this season, including one from his own pen, entitled "Paul's Hat". Craven has a play written jointly by George Abbott and James Glendon, called "The Fall Guy", which he plans to do in October.

"STARLIGHT" ON THE COAST

New York, Sept. 5.—Bert Ellis has left for California to direct the production of "Starlight", the new play by Gladys Fenger in which Doris Lane will appear at the Pantages Theater, San Francisco, on September 22. It will be presented by Frank Egan, under whose management Miss Lane has appeared in other revivals of "Romance" and "The Garden". "Starlight" is listed for a Broadway showing later in the season.

BELLE ISLE-EN-MER TO BE BERNHARDT MUSEUM

Paris, Sept. 5.—Belle Isle-en-Mer, off the Breton coast, is to become a museum dedicated to the memory of Sarah Bernhardt. The plan to convert the island into a summer resort was presented by a Parisian, who at present prefers to remain incognito. His intention is to fill the tragicienne's island studio with souvenirs and to make a gift of the beautiful manor house to the Comedie Francaise.

Coming to Br'dw'ry

New York, Sept. 5.—There will be a let-up in the number of productions to be made next week on Broadway as compared with last week. In all, there are to be four.

On Monday night Sam Harris will present "Fouringwood", a comedy by Lewis R. Lilly and Sam Harris, at the Vanderbilt Theater. Mr. Harris also directed the production and the leading roles in it will be played by George MacQuarrie and Ann Harding.

On Tuesday A. H. Woods will show his new "The Mask and the Face", at the Hudson Theater. This play has been known by all sorts of names but it is believed to be finally christened. The author of it is Willard Mack and Lowell Sherman will have the leading roles. Fred Bronson will make his first production of the season on Wednesday night at the Edison Theater. The play will be "The Mask and the Face", adapted from the Italian of Luigi Caporali by Chester Bayly Perault. William Faversham will have the star role and the cast will include Lamsden Lane, Austin Fairman, Horace Braham, Charles Hampden and others.

The last opening of the week will be on Thursday, when A. H. Woods will present "Conscience" by Don Mullally, at the Belmont Theater. This is the play which was to have been done at the Cherry Lane Theater last week but was deferred by Woods after he had witnessed a dress rehearsal of it.

"GREAT MUSIC" ON THE WAY

New York, Sept. 5.—Mindlin & Goldreyer are paving the way for their new production, "Great Music", the work of Martin Brown, author of "Cobra". The firm has engaged James Crane for the role of the composer and Christine Norman for the leading feminine part. They hope to fill the rest of the cast in short order and then proceed to put the play in rehearsals. Mindlin & Goldreyer made their lucky strike several seasons ago with "The Last Warning".

HERNDON TO DO MUSICAL SHOW

New York, Sept. 5.—Richard Herndon will try his hand for the second time in the lighter form of entertainment. He promises to present in the fall a musical comedy by Will B. Johnson, Winthrop Cordelien and Eugene Salzer, entitled "The One Best Betty". Norman-Bel Geddes, who designed the production of "The Miracle", will do the stage settings. Herndon's first attempt at things lyrical was "Peg o' My Heart", the musical version of "Peg o' My Heart".

day criticism deals with the play and the dramatist and the one-tenth that deals with acting shows little understanding of that part. The great critics—Lamb, Hazlitt, Lewis, Sorely, Archer, Archer, Wadley, Winter—were just as keen judges of acting as of the drama.

"Hassan", by James Elroy Flecker, is announced to open in New York at the Kaleidoscope Theater September 22. The leading roles in this spectacle, one of the current hits in London, will be played by James Dale, who was seen in "Loyalists" and "We Moderns", and Mary Nash, who starred last season in "The Lady".

"Hell Bent for Heaven" played Stamford, Conn., before it played Broadway. That was last season. Stamford evidently didn't think so much of it, for exactly $84 was paid by the good burghers of the town to look it over. It played Broadway, opening at a special matinee and all the "first-string" critics of the dailies passed it up. Then word got round that it was a fine play and it went on for regular performances at night. Then it was awarded the Pulitzer prize. Now it has played Stamford again and $1,000 came into the box-office for one performance.

It takes time, sometimes, but merit seems to win out in the theater, even from the box office angle.

The Cherry Lane Theater, New York, will open its season with a dramatization of Frank Swinnerton's novel, "Nocturne". Kny Laurell. (Continued on page 12)

DRAMATIC NOTES

Following a brief tour in "Cyrano de Bergerac", Walter Hampden will be seen in New York around Christmas time in "Othello".

William A. Brady has temporarily deferred production of "The Sable Cont", which he tried out this summer. With revisions in the script completed, Brady will resume operations in addition to giving the play a new cast.

Grace Stafford is playing the part of Lily in "The Shame Woman", which opened recently in Chicago following its successful New York run. Her interpretation of the role, originally created by Thelma Paige, has been highly commended by Chicago critics as one surrounding the character with new strength and importance.

L. Lawrence Weber announces that "High Tide" (formerly called "The Clam Digger"), by Eleanor Holmes Hinkley, will go into rehearsal September 17. William B. Friedlander, general stage director for Weber, will stage the play. A prominent male star is being sought to play the leading role, and negotiations are expected to be concluded next week.

John Irwin has made a big laughing hit in "The Haunted House" at the Cosmopolitan Theater. New York and Broadway wants to know why John Irwin is where he came from and why he hid his light under a bushel so long. One of the eulogists says his performance is "Moscovartish". Some of these admirers might have discovered John Irwin long ago in vaudeville if they had looked around on the small time. Mr. Irwin learned the business of being funny in that hard school, where, if you're not funny, they get another guy who is. And don't apologize or waste any time doing it, either.

Helen Hayes says she refuses to be a one-part actress. She accuses the writers on the theater of forcing players to become specialists, along with the managers. She is right and so long as critics persist in confusing the part with the player, so long will that obtain. What the theater stands in need of is a keener understanding of the player and his problems by the critics. Nine-tenths of present-

Somerville Players Open

Crack Company Received With Great Enthusiasm in Season's First Offering, "Polly Preferred"

Boston, Sept. 2.—Clyde McArdle, manager of the Somerville Theater, Somerville, has been called the man who brought Broadway to Davis Square. He well deserves the title, as a visit to his playhouse will prove. There are players of real Broadway caliber in this season's company, and the plays to be offered the patrons during the season are all recent Broadway hits.

The first bill, "Polly Preferred", which opened yesterday, was received with great enthusiasm. There were long and loud demonstrations of welcome to the starring players, Frank Thomas, Philip Sheffield, Busby Berkeley, William Florence and Frank Peck, while the new members also were given a hearty greeting. There were flowers, and speeches flowed freely.

The new leading players, Edward Clarke Lilley and Mary Ann Dentler, are a sure-fire combination. Lilley is a widely experienced, well-seasoned actor; quiet, smooth and convincing; a thoroughly likable fellow. Miss Dentler is bound to be liked under any circumstances. She is pretty, winsome and appealing, and her acting is clear-cut, intelligible, fascinating. Her performance as "Polly" fully bears out the reports that she is one of the best leading women in stock.

Another outstanding new member is Harold Moulton. He is an excellent type of the dashing, romantic matinee idol, with a manner, appearance and voice that distinguish him and undoubtedly will carry him to the heights in due course.

Frank Thomas, Somerville favorite, is one of the main features in the current offering. As the effeminate and eccentric moving picture director, Thomas does a remarkable piece of characterization. Everything he does or says is good for a reason. Edw. Murray and Philip Sheffield add to the comedy along, and there are capable part-players by Peggy Bannard, Harry Lowell, Francis J. Minto, Frank P. K. Halbert Brown, William Florence and Busby Berkeley.

The program does not give the scenic artist's name, but he deserves a word of commendation for the attractive and appropriate sets. Laurence Herbert Brown and Assistant Director Frank Peck also are to be praised for the thorough excellent staging of the play.

There is a pleasant atmosphere of freshness about the theater, which has been newly decorated and lit up with another attractive curtain. Music of considerable quality is provided by Al Pataloni and his orchestra.

DON CARLE GILLETTE.

SCHAUFLELE'S SUCCESS

New York, Sept. 3.—There is seldom a week goes by but that we receive one or more communications from Cliff A. Schaufele, commenting on various articles that appear in this department.

Mr. Schaufele is lessee and general manager of the Temple Theater Stock Company, Hamilton, Can., and, although he has a resident manager in N. A. B. Whitford, Schaufele attends to his own correspondence, which is always interesting and instructive.

A communication from Mr. Schaufele commends us for our article featured in a recent issue relative to the value of house programs and house organs. He advises that he is now arranging to issue a house organ, titled "The Temple Tattler", which will be different from most house organs of its kind, inasmuch as he has engaged a real editor to handle the publication. It will be entirely free of reprisals. A special feature of the paper will be columns of the plays and players. "The Temple Tattler" will be mailed to patrons as well as others whom the editor hopes to make patrons of the Temple Stock Company.

Another innovation will be a novelty orchestra, under the personal direction of Earl Lee, who will give to the patrons a repertoire of music seldom heard in dramatic stock houses.

It is just such attention to details that has made Schaufele successful.

During their fortnight vacation the company spent their time, viz.: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bond motored to Montreal and Quebec; Jane Seymour visited relatives and friends at Berkeley, N. Y.; Jane Marbury at Madison, N. J.; Lou's Allison became an anchor at Staten Island; Herbert Ashton, Jr., became Admiral of a new motor boat and a golfer on the links; Barton Matney resorted to his vacation days, or maybe it was only the simple life; and last night we saw up in Northern Canada; Lester Paul was seen gliding along frequently on Broadway; Gaudes O'Connell mingled with the literary folks in and around Boston, N. A. B. Whitford motored on road and sea in search of adventure; Cliff A. Schaufele supervised the renovations of the Temple Theater for unions and played golf afterwards.

Verily, this company was fully entitled to its annual two-week holiday as a fitting finale to a second season, and the producers anxiously awaited their reopening labor day.

JESSIE BONSTELLE POLITICAL PROPAGANDIST

Boston, Sept. 3.—Jessie Bonstelle gave an interesting and instructive talk over the radio not long ago, urging all voters to register and record their opinion of their sacred duty and obligation to vote at the coming election.

Miss Bonstelle's speech was quoted in the local papers and incidentally secured a heap of valuable publicity for herself and company. They have closed after a four-week summer stock engagement at the Garrick Theater.

Eddie Edwards is putting on "Neptune's Daughter", a ten-people act in vaudeville.

JEANNE DEVEREAUX

A protegee of the late Frank Bacon, on the Pacific Coast, Miss Devereaux has been engaged to the Helen Robinson Artists' representative to succeed Frances Woodbury as leading woman with the Harder-Hall Players at the Palace Theater, Staten Island, N. Y.

JEANNE DEVEREAUX

New Leading Lady for Harder-Hall Players at Port Richmond, Staten Island

Miss Devereaux was born in Berkeley, Calif., and is the first of her family to adopt the stage. She made her debut at an early age as "Ye Old Liberty", going from there to the Alcazar, San Francisco.

It was there that Miss Devereaux played under the direction of the late Frank Bacon, and later appeared with him on the Coast in his play, "Me and Grant".

It was on the advice of Mr. Bacon that Miss Devereaux went East, where she has been exceptionally successful in all her ventures, which included "The Melting Pot", under the management of the Shuberts.

Miss Devereaux has been very successful in stock as a leading lady with companies in Bay Hill, Lynn and Malden, Mass.; likewise in Montreal.

When it became known that Frances Woodbury was engaged for a prominent role in support of Margaret Lawrence in "In His Arms", a production, Miss Devereaux was recommended to Messrs. Harder and Hall as her successor.

PRODUCERS' AND PLAYERS' REPRESENTATIVES

Pauline Boyle has arranged engagements, viz.: Roy Elkins, Fred Hargreaves, Fred Morris, Russell Sage, Florence Ravanel, Bernard Burke, Helen Hopkins and Alma Powell, for the Al Luttringer Stock Company at the Music Hall Theater, Akron, O. Anne Kingsley, in private life Mrs. Al Luttringer, is the leading woman of this company. Other engagements include Norman Wendell, Roger Allen, Byron Hawkins, Jessica Page, Esther P'nech, Ada Howard and Evelyn Watson, for the Trans-Canada Theaters, Limited, at Montreal, Canada.

Scott and Tintle

Paul Scott and Laura Tintle have arranged engagements, viz.: Jack Matthews, Patricia Trever, Phil Boland and Arthur S. Smith, with the F. James Carroll Players, at St. John, N. B.; J. Arnold Daicy and Roger Burke, with the F. James Carroll Players at the Fifth Avenue Theater, Brooklyn, N. Y. Others include Arthur Mack and Henry Gurvey for the Trans-Canada Theaters, Limited, with companies in London and Chatham, Can.; Jack Kearney for George M. Galt's "The Unwanted Child" Company, on tour, and Roger Atwell for Walter Baldwin, general manager of the Interstate Amusement Company, at the Palace Theater, Houston, Tex.

Expert Casting Office

Frederic Clayton has arranged engagements, viz.: Alice Bentley and Clifford for Cecil Spencer's Stock Company, at the Metropolis Theater, New York City; Blanche Vogel, formerly in stock at Davenport, Ia., and Stanford Jolley for "Tell It to Sweeney", a vaudeville act.

Georgia Wolfe

Eddie Edwards has arranged engagements, viz.: Irene Sartin, formerly in stock in Jacksonville, Fla., for a vaudeville act with Walter Newman, on the Loew Time; Grace Hayle, formerly of the Harder-Hall Players at Bayonne, N. J., with the Jacob Ben Ami "Samson-Delilah" act, in vaudeville.

SELENA ROYLE FOR BROOKLYN

New York, Sept. 1.—According to Jeannette Sauer, there is to be another stock company enterprise in Brooklyn.

Selena Royle, youthful daughter of Edwin Milton Royle, the dramatist, who has been spending her summer vacation playing featured leads in a well-known stock company in Grand Rapids, will return to New York early in September. She has achieved success along Broadway for her characterizations of Solvick in "Peer Gynt", and as the Spanish heroine in "Rust", and now the directors of the Grand Rapids organization think so well of her histrionic ability that they have taken over a Brooklyn playhouse where their stock company, headed by Miss Royle, will present many of the favorite Broadway hits.

SEEN ON BROADWAY

By ELIZABETH KINGSTON

Juana Allaram, late of the Mission Players, Los Angeles, Calif., has been seen frequently during the past week on the Rialto renewing acquaintances.

Ester Sommers, late Ingenue-leads of the Hollywood Stock Company, is one of the most personally attractive stock players to be seen on Broadway, and many admiring glances follow her as she weeds her way along.

Henry O'Neil, former leading man of the Copley Players in Boston, is now in town preparing to join Billy McCart in vaudeville.

Robert Sherman is evidently as familiar with Times Square as he is with the "Loop" in Chicago, which he recently left to come here for business negotiations.

Mildred Dana is in town in the interest of the Colonial Players at the Colonial Theater, Lawrence, Mass. Her youth, beauty and pleasing personality are set off to great advantage by gowns that enhance her girlishness wonderfully well.

Julie K. Hurley, that grand old lady of productions, stock and films, who has gained an enviable reputation for her "mother" characterizations, is one of the first-stepping footloose along Broadway. Miss Hurley has declined an engagement in a production, due to the inconvenience of traveling, and in all probability will be engaged to play original roles in plays being presented by stock companies in and around New York City, and between times to enjoy all the comforts of a cozy suburban home at New Brunswick, N. J.

Forrest Cummings, late of the Harder-Hall Players, is now playing a prominent role in "The Goose Hangs High". Between performances he is seen on Broadway as an exponent of stock.

Frederic Clayton has started a new fad for the "Beau Brummells" by the adornment of his coat lapel with a violet aster whenever he swells along Broadway.

PERSONALITIES
Here and There

Emily Montrose has been engaged by Henry Day, of Montreal, Can., to play a French part in "Just Married".

Marie Harcourt, violinist, is now in the house. Wynon act at the Broadway Theater, Philadelphia.

If there is any doubt in the minds of stock managers that David Belasco is combing the dramatic stock field for players let them glimpse the program of "KIKI".

F. James Carroll will present "Dolly With a Past" for his opening at the Fifth Avenue Theater, Brooklyn, N. Y., and 'tis said that David Belasco will be there to see the presentation.

Mildred Dana was in New York during the past week, selecting plays and players for the Colonial Players' productions and presentations at the Colonial Theater, Lawrence, Mass., opening September 15.

Shirley Henslip, the pretty niece of Pauline Boye, has come to New York from New Orleans to accept a moving picture engagement offered by a prominent producer who saw her photo on Miss Boye's desk. Some struggle goes on for the opportunity that comes to others unsolicited. Such is life in theatricals.

Adrian Perrin, who released "Irene" to the Bayonne Players at Bayonne, N. J., journeyed there to direct rehearsals. Running into a social affair in which many pretty girls were taking part, he invited them to become actresses for the time being. They declined, but for those more applicants than Adrian could place.

That stock is a fertile field for players and producers to till has been proven many times, and more so recently than ever before. Lillian Hunter, a graduate of stock, has been engaged by Al Woods for a feature role in "Consensus". Mr. Woods saw her in a rehearsal, then handed her a contract.

What Judith Anderson did in stock and what David Belasco did for Judith in contract is now theatrical history.

History repeats itself. There are other prominent producers seeking just the type required for their productions, and they are going to the stock field for their harvest.

CHARLES BERKELL PLAYERS

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 5.—The second summer season of the popular Charles Berkell Players in English's Opera House, Indianapolis, was brought to a close recently. The company enjoyed sixteen weeks of unprecedented prosperity and success in the Hoosier capital. Charles Berkell, owner and manager, concluded to disband his company, temporarily, in order to give attention to some of his other theatrical interests. Some of the members of the company were with him for three years in Davenport, La., and Indianapolis, and he has contracted with most of them to return to Indianapolis next spring, when he will inaugurate his third summer season at English's.

Eddy Waller, leading man and director, went to Toledo, O., where he is heading a big stock company. Jean Oliver, leading woman; Herbert Robbins, character man; Mary Hill, character woman; and William V. Hall, assistant director, went with him. Robert Fay returned to his home in Salem, Mass. Myrtle Stringer went to Chicago. Larry Sullivan and Edwille Arnold to Fort Worth, Tex., and Alexander Campbell remained here.

Mr. Berkell expects to reorganize his company in about six weeks for the winter season, and will probably locate in a city in the Midwest.

UNITED SCENIC ARTISTS

Companies' Openings and Closings

Bainbridge Players

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 1.—The Bainbridge Players reopened their winter season at the Shubert Theater with "The Business Widow". The cast includes: William Thompson, John Dillon, John Todd, Mary Loane, Bernard Suss, Robert Geckler, Jean Dixon, Norman Phillips, Howard Fremont, Helen Keers and Joseph DeStefani. It was produced under the direction of Edwin H. Curtis, and stage management of Bernard Suss, with Victor Olson as the scenic artist.

No less than five people, opening in "The Business Widow", come to Minneapolis direct from the Keith summer stock company in Columbus, O. They are Edwin H. Curtis, the director; Jean Dixon, second woman, Olive Cooper, comedienne; Joseph DeStefani, second man, and Helen Keers, character woman. The two last named popular players are not strangers here, but have been absent for several seasons. During this absence Mr. DeStefani appeared in New York in "It Is the Law". Robert P. Geckler, the leading man, comes to Minneapolis from Kansas City, where he was leading man most of the summer with the Orpheum Stock Company. Miss Phillips, new leading lady, and Miss Loane, ingenue, traveled here from New York. The former has been absent from the stage for a season. Miss Loane played last season with the Princess Stock Company in Des Moines. Bernard Suss, the new stage manager and general utility man, was with the Orpheum Stock Company in Kansas City this summer, playing many prominent roles as well as managing the stage.

Maylon Players

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 5.—After the first four weeks of the opening season of the Maylon Players at the Auditorium Theater here, the company has developed the same old-time attendance accorded other successful companies in Spokane in recent years.

Harry Smith is manager and Harry J. Leland stage director. In addition to Will Maylon, leads, the personnel includes Duke Watson, Edith Mote, Caroline Edwards, Crawford Eagle, Grace Winkle and Leonard Buford.

Stanley James Players

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 3.—Labor Day set the opening of the Stanley James Players, at the Star Theater, with "Turn to the Right" as the first offering. Manager James has gathered together a capable company of artists, including Gretchen Thomas and Owen Cunningham in the leading roles; Irene Daniel and Jimmie Wells, second leads; Agnes Young, ingenue; Ross McIntosh, juvenile; Bona Dean, character woman, and Ray Mack, heavies.

Proctor Players

Troy, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The Proctor Players close a nine weeks' engagement at Proctor's Theater Saturday night. For their final production they are giving "The Gay Young Bride", with Tom Martelle as guest star. Russell Hicks, Olga Hanson and others support him. Local stock patrons regret to see Mr. Hicks go, as they have grown to like him as leading man during his two seasons here. They also regret the departure of Miss Hanson and Joseph Crehan, both of whom were members of last year's company.

Gifford Players

Majestic Players Closing

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The Majestic Players presented "So Like a Woman", a farce by Katherine Browning Miller, during their nineteenth and final week at the Majestic Theater. Their run this year is just half that of last year. Included in the cast were Clay Clement, Dorothy Boardley, Carl Blythe, Hal Dawson, Florence Arlington and Margaret Robinson. All have appeared here for at least two seasons, and several of them for three seasons.

Everett Stock Company

Everett, Mass., Sept. 1.—The Everett Stock Company will open its season at the Strand Theater, September 15, with "A Full House", and a cast that includes Blanche P. Kerr, leading lady; Leona Leslie, second woman; Madeline Hunt, ingenue; Mazie Cecil, character; Joseph Finn, leading man; George Pearson, juvenile; W. H. McLaughlin, character; William MacColl, utility; Warren Burrows, second business and stage director, with Paul Linton stage manager.

Coffer-Miller Players

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 5.—The Illinois Theater Guild (Coffer-Miller Players) will open its theater September 29 with a production of Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" and will offer a weekly change of bill.

The aim of Guild is creation of a classic and modern repertoire, creation of a permanent ensemble to continue an already well-established company presenting the best plays, production of plays by new playwrights.

A notable feature of the Guild will be the combining of short tours with the work of the theater. The first tour will be in November and the second in February.

The achievement of the Coffer-Miller Players is well known. Their tours have taken them into hundreds of communities, large and small, isolated from theatrical performances.

That this Guild activity should be the outgrowth of their tours is only natural. They have created an interest in drama which, have distinguished themselves by faithfulness of production, have founded a nucleus for a permanent ensemble, a group which commands interest, and in their work can be seen the faint spark which if kept alive will ultimately contribute something of value to the theater.

The Guild Theater at Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, will bring to its patrons all the plays for which Coffer-Miller are noted on the road in addition to new plays. The Guild is under the direction of Jess Coffer and Martha Miller.

Brockton Players

Brockton, Mass., Sept. 1.—The Brockton Players will open their second season at the City Theater this evening with Helen Mayton, leading lady, in "Rain". The Brockton Players were a theatrical and social success last season and it is predicted they will receive a warm welcome when they reappear here, for their former patrons have about cleaned out all the floral establishments in town, seeking to outdo each other in their floral tributes to their favorite players.

Stanley James Players' Opening

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 3.—The Stanley James Players opened their season of stock at the Star Theater, Monday evening, to a packed house of pleased patrons who enjoyed their presentation of "Turn to the Right", cast, viz: Isadore, John Flemming; Joe Basson, Owen Cunningham, Mugs, Ray Mack; Gilly, Ross McIntosh; Betty Basson, Agnes Young; Jessie Strong, Irene Daniel; Mrs. Basson, Bona Dean; Sam Martin, J. Norman Wells; Deacon Tillinger, Chummy Causland; Lester Morgan, J. Paul Finch; Elsie Tillinger, Gretchen Thomas; Tom Callahan, John Flemming.

Colonial Players

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 5. The Colonial Players will open the season at the Colonial Theater September 15. Mildred Dana will be leading woman, William Naughton leading man, Barbara Gray second woman, Mabel Cowper ingenue, William Malone characters, Elizabeth Fox character woman, William Blair director of productions, and Charles Cook company manager.

Vaughan Glaser Players

Toronto, Can., Sept. 2.—The Vaughan Glaser Players, who exited from the Uptown Theater several months ago and transferred their activities to Rochester, N. Y., returned here for their reopening last night in "The Alarm Clock", with a cast including Charles Emerson, Corinne Turrell, Fred Kerby, Ethel Mulholland, Elmer Buffum, Vaughan Glaser, Antonette Bochte, Edie Ames, Basil Longhorne, Charles Potter and Forrest Orr. The productions are staged by Forrest Orr.

F. James Carroll Players

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The Fifth Avenue Theater, formerly the playground of the Cool Spooner Players has been taken over by the F. James Carroll Players, who open there September 15.

Jack Soanes' Own Company

Ottawa, Can., Sept. 5.—Jack Soanes, the successful production director of the Ottawa Drama League, is negotiating for a lease of the Hamilton Theater, now vacant, with the view of having a stock company in Ottawa this season. Mr. Soanes has an excellent record through Ontario as a producer and will have the good wishes and support of the Drama League.

Proctor Players Move to Elizabeth

Troy, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The F. F. Proctor Players have had what is conceded to have been a pleasant and profitable season in this city, but owing to previous arrangements they are now preparing to return to Elizabeth, N. J., for their second winter season at the East Jersey Street Theater, where they reopen September 8 with "Just Married". The cast includes: Russell Hicks, Ruth Ricaby, Joseph Crehan, Olga Hanson, Lawrence O'Brien, Thelma Potter, James Moran, Jessie Brink, Harold Barnett, Frederick Going, Charles W. Dingle and Norma Taylor. A J. Edwards is stage director and Anskar Klem is scenic artist. The general manager and booking and casting director is E. M. Hart.

Princess Players

Fort Dodge, Ia., Sept. 2.—As previously announced in The Billboard, the Princess Players scheduled to reopen here last night lived up to all expectations, as set forth in a review in The Fort Dodge Messenger by Dudley C. Letts. But as Mr. Letts has given us a full-column review and we feel that is more than The Billboard can give space to, we are marking several paragraphs which will doubtless prove interesting, viz:

"A change or two has been made at the Princess this season. George Gillman, the theater manager, is now managing his own company and he calls it the Princess Players. The opening is now on Sunday. Four of last year's players are with the company and it is just like welcoming home old friends to have them back. There is Jimmie Williams, who has been playing the part of the meanest man in the world for several seasons and meaner than ever in this play.

"Mr. Gillman is more than fortunate in having his old dramatic director Harry F. Vickery, back with him. Mr. Vickery is frequently a losing figure before the footlights, and he is always the leading figure in the strenuous work that goes on in preparation for each play. It's Mr. Vickery's job to select the plays and direct the rehearsals. Some job, especially when you consider that he takes parts himself. Mr. Vickery is an exceedingly capable hand at the all-important business of directing.

"Another popular player of past seasons who is more than welcome on her return is Marilyn Pink. She has done a great amount of creditable work on the Princess stage and fans know they are going to have a continuation of that same class of work this season. "Roscoe Hutch is the fourth of the old players with the new company. We like all of his work, and when it comes to the part of a breezy salesman, such as he has in this week's show, he simply can't be beaten.

"A line must be drawn about the new scenic artist, Jimmie Johnson. We think those who have seen "Six Under Love" will agree with us that the stage settings, especially the scene in the first act, are worthy of highest praise. Mr. Johnson is an artist of ability.

"Ralph W. Chambers, the new leading man, and other members of the cast are scheduled to make many friends."

Lillian Pickert Company

Miami, Fla., Sept. 7.—Clay Dodson, a prominent property holder and promoter of real estate and theatrics, has completed arrangements whereby he will assume control of the theater in connection with Masonic Temple in this city. Mr. Dodson for many years managed the Lillian Pickert Dramatic Stock Company in various sections of the country—for the most part in the South. Miss Pickert is the wife of Mr. Dodson. They are now in New York city engaging a company to present dramatic stock here, opening some time in September.

Forrest Taylor Stock Company To Continue

Portland, Ore., Sept. 4.—The Forrest Taylor Stock Company, playing at the Hellig Theater, has closed its season. The various productions were big successes, so much so that the Hellig manager has renewed a contract with Mr. Taylor for an extended fall engagement and possibly the entire winter season. The company is to play the last four days of each week.

Better Plays Make Season Successes

Few Failures Along Repertoire Highway When Merit Pre- dominates in Offerings

The 1924 tented season soon will be over. It is near and dear to the memories of many—it is safe to say to the majority—for the trip along the theatrical highway in most instances has been a successful one; there is but little wreckage of failures to be seen as one looks back. True, too true, there have been failures, but failures in all walks of life are inevitable. By the greatest number of companies it is admitted the season for repertoire companies has been one of the very best.

Repertoire companies and traveling troupes have learned more than ever this season that the public, even in the most remote hamlets and towns, can be fooled some of the time but not all of the time; that the "some" time has passed and now the best is demanded when good, hard-earned cash is paid out in exchange for a seat in the tented theater or the house.

And so the type of plays selected at the early part of the season was only the best in about ninety-five per cent of managerial dealings. The result was the reward in the amount of business done at the stands along the way. The result also was the appreciation shown by customers during the presentation, and the satisfied crowds homeward bound after the night's performance. The five per cent manager—the man who bought poor plays, "cheap" in their proper classification—was the person who today will probably disagree with this article, declaring business has been rotten; voicing statements that many townspeople absolutely refuse to patronize the traveling show, the repertoire troupe.

That manager is right in his way, but it is strictly his own affair thru and thru. His failure of the season can be blamed to no one but himself, for he is the one who attempted to put one over on the public by buying cheap, degrading plays and demanding that the people in his roster "sell them" as repertoire offerings of the better kind.

Looking into our files, however, we are pleased to find that there were but few such managers, which brings the rating of company seasonal successes up to a high standard, in fact one of the highest in years. We find the scripts, for the most part, have been those with earmarks of being once a Broadway presentation, frequently a Broadway success. And so we are only too well aware that the Broadway has never been seen by thousands of persons who live "out in the sticks", as the artistic conversationalist says, these people eventually see what Broadway has seen at one time or another, and before many moons come and pass.

We are advocating better plays for repertoire companies for the next season. Presentation of better plays, in our opinion, is one way to uplift, to gain public approval and endorsement of traveling shows. All of which, in the long run, makes for the successful and prosperous repertoire troupe which every company is striving to be.

There are innumerable reasons why better plays should be included in the repertoire of a company, but several are especially outstanding. If good bills are put on, a one-night stand company invariably will be welcomed back into the corporate limits of Pineville to play two or three more nights. If dates are given, Pineville folk will insist the company remain on the lot to satisfy their yearning souls for respectable and inspiring entertainment, and a longer "stand" will result. On the other hand, companies playing week stands have every chance in the world to be invited back to Sunnyside again during the season, to traverse their same route year after year.

We have in mind a repertoire company which played in the Midwest several years ago and still is in the game, but now working new territory. This company started as a one-nighter. Traveling was done by train, and the appearances made in town halls and small theaters. For a season, two seasons, the one-night plays were presented and the usual hurry-up packing of scenery, costumes and make-up took place. Jumps were often short distanced, but train connections, mostly at night, were available, so the troupe rode in coaches and accepted their winks of sleep between local stops.

The company was playing a high-class bill with a cast that had been carefully selected. That it was a one-night favorite and from the start could have stayed in each town along its route for at least two nights was unmistakable if the little local weeklies in their personal, cunning way of handling news was to be accepted as the voice of the people. Everywhere the company was lauded; in each writup the merit of the play was commented upon.

To this particular company those two seasons were known as experimental ones. The management had a purpose in view, he recently told the writer, and he wanted to know, regardless of what the cost might be, just what he had to "give" to be welcomed for a return engagement. He found the answer in clean, modernized scripts and a cast with an air of refinement.

Now this repertoire company is greatly enlarged, but still playing the old routes, alternating every two or three years in the same territory. It carries its own orchestra as an added attraction. The players themselves, years before, were "sold" to the townsfolk who attend their performances every night for a week—two weeks—when Greenville and neighboring towns are visited, and the show travels on its old reputation but continues to build a stronger one with each season's appearance in these communities. And the repertoire of plays today consists of as meritorious a list of successes as many permanent stock companies can boast of.

A show depends upon the public for its success or failure. If the company deals fairly with the public, particularly in its presentation of good, clean, courageous plays, that same public will meet its personnel half way and then some. Let this be a tip for a more successful next season.

PRICE CUT TO 10 CENTS

Opposed by Martin B. Hale, Who Urges Managers To Retain 25c and 35c Admissions

Herewith is given a discussion of the repertoire show business from the viewpoint of Martin B. Hale, Cincinnati. This department welcomes comment of this nature, since very often it is enlightening to people in the profession and enables them to exchange ideas on various subjects. Mr. Hale's letter follows:

"Much has been said about the cheap shows, but not by the men who run them. I am asking the question not because I care what they charge, but why put the price down to a dime when you can get twenty-five cents just as well? You are just helping to kill the good old repertoire game in time to come.

"Another question. Can a man carry thirty people, or whatever it takes to have at least a ten-piece band and a seven-piece orchestra, a real acting cast and a show, for ten cents on the front door and make it pay?

"It is a fact that some shows with just a piano player and a small cast and very little vaudeville charge a dime and keep going. But candy sales instead of vaudeville acts bore audiences.

"In the good, old ten, twenty and thirty days we had people, good teams at from $40 to $60 per week; musicians from $15 to $25, and railroad travel was cheap, the license was cheap and all overhead was reasonable.

"Some managers at present are satisfied with a salary each week as profit and just try to hurt the other fellow by charging the dime. I can point out several shows this season that went on the rocks on account of cheap prices, yet you hear some fellow say: 'I guess I'll have to cut my prices to meet the other fellow.'

"Boys, don't do it. You will cheapen your show and in a few weeks it will be in the shed like all the rest of the cheap shows. Stay with the better prices and offer the better class of shows, and don't bore the audience between acts with candy sales.

"Put the repertoire show in a class by itself so the public will say it's a dramatic show, and the other class will be known as a 'candy show'. Managers of cheap-price shows, let's hear from you. I want to know why, oh, why, will you kill the good game that has lived for years?"

If you have not already sent your ideography to The Billboard please do so. Address it to Biographical Editor, The Billboard, 25-27 Opera Place, Cincinnati, O.

CARL WHYTE

Mr. Whyte, considered one of the best repertoire pianists in the Northwest, recently concluded a forty-week engagement as musical director at the Strand Theater, Winnipeg, Canada.

FUSSNER STOCK COMPANY

Hit by Terrific Wind and Rainstorm in Birdseye, Ind.

The Fussner Stock Company was hit by a terrific wind and rainstorm when it played in Birdseye, Ind., two weeks ago. The tent was blown off the lot while a performance was being presented to a capacity crowd. The storm hit without much warning. It was sheer good fortune, writes Art Newman of the company, that no one was injured. The tent was badly torn, however, and it took four of the boys seven hours to sew and repair the damaged canopy.

The company continued to Huntington, Ind., and there found the townsfolk very kindly and hospitable. The picture theater had been standing idle for some time, so before the troupe arrived it was put into presentable condition by volunteer workers and the Fussner Company was invited to entertain thereon. Needless to add, the theater was used. The Fussners turned away many after all available space, including the aisles, had been turned into seating room. Then, to top it all, the theater owner refused to take a single cent of rent for the two nights the company stayed.

Eddie Cole, Mr. Fussner's partner, suffered a touch of pneumonia recently, contracting a cold the night of the storm. Mr. and Mrs. Fussner played the Rockport (Ind.) Fair with their spiral tower act last week and have been booked for another fair engagement at Newton, Ind.

NEWTON & LIVINGSTON'S "TOM" SHOW OPENS SEASON

Presenting a four-act show with about fifteen scenes, Newton & Livingston opened their "Little Tom's Cabin" Company for the season at Newark, O., to capacity business. This engagement was followed by the Weller Theater at Zanesville, O., and the opera house at McConnelsville, O. At the latter place one of the largest crowds ever gathered for a "Tom" show greeted the performers. "In Beldenville, O., the house was packed before we had the scenery up and could parade," advises Harry E. Lloyd of the troupe.

George Stone is in charge of the company's band, and Mr. Brown directs the orchestra. Thomas Adon is manager. The roster follows: Fred Finley, Earl Wilson, Vic. Ross, T. G. Reed, Mary Reuter, Charles Reuter, Ed James, John Booth, Billy Blithe, Harry E. Lloyd, David Livingston, M. Floyd, Charles Jones, Irwin McMahon, Louise Adams, Mrs. Ross, Ruby Carter, May Wilson, Florence Pullar, Lillian Pierson, "Gyp" Muldoon. Vaudeville specialties are given by Charles Jones, Harry E. Lloyd and Arena Finley.

Galaxy of Talent in Marks Company

Popular Repertoire Company Is Booked Far Into Season Thru Canada

Headed by that "Little Queen of Repertoire", as Arlie Marks is commonly called, the Arlie Marks Stock Company, presented by Lindsay E. Perrin, resumed its 1924-25 season at Winchester, Ont., about ten days ago. Bookings promise a route far into next year, in fact, up to July 1. The company just concluded a season of forty-seven weeks and one day. Fifteen people comprise the aggregation.

Miss Marks is supported by the following people, gathered from the four parts of the States: Paul Brady, leading man, late of the Colonial Stock; Ray Washburn, juveniles, late of the Clint and Bessie Robbins Company; William L. Phillips, characters, third season with the Marks Company; Donald MacDonnell, general business, direct from Scotland; James Day, general business, from the Castle Square Stock Company, Boston; Clarence ("Mickey") Kane, general business and second comedy fourth season under the Marks banner; Lindsay E. Perrin, popular owner and manager of the company, who handles the comedy parts. The company is under the direction of A. Paul D'Mathot, who is handling second business and levities. The ladies include Merida Scott, second business, late of the Scott Sisters' Stock Company; Agnes Stutz, character; one of the Considine Theater Stock at Seattle; Peggy Logan, ingenues, fourth season with Arlie's company; Patricia Ashcroft, the "Sally Lassie" from the Bonnie Heather, and Florence Phillips, pianist.

Ed Thompson is handling the advance. The route extends from Montreal to the far Saskatchewan country and return to Winchester, Ont.

Vaudeville features are Perrin's Scotch Lads and Lassies, with Don MacDonnell, Scotch piper; Jim Daly, Irish piper; Peggy Logan, bass drummer; Mickey Kane and Patricia Ashcroft, snare drummers.

The Misses Logan and Ashcroft double in Irish and Scotch songs and dances. Mr. Perrin does a Scotch comedian turn, while M. D'Mathot presents a monolog. Music is presented by a seven-piece orchestra, doubled by players.

The Marks banner is carried by only one company this season.

KINCAID DRAMATIC COMPANY

Reports Exceptional Business for New- comer Troupe in Far West

For a new-comer troupe in the far West, the Evelyn Kincaid Dramatic Company is prospering, having been playing to exceptional business everywhere since leaving Los Angeles April 30. The company just passed its fifteenth week. Weather, according to H. H. Franklin, who looks after the business details and handles the front door, has been ideal all season. Not a drop of rain was experienced up to August 18 and then it caught the company at a one-night stand. This is the first season for the troupe on the West Coast.

The company is headed by Evelyn Kincaid, who has established a reputation that is undeniable, say those who have reviewed her performances. She is surrounded by a talented cast and the best in scripts. J. Burt Butler, leading man, is well known along the coast. The cast includes Charles Cankins, Clyde Calkins, Ross Higgins, Billy Tripp, Jack Bar, Marie Miller, Margaret Moore, Loraine Crawford and Vida Walters. Libby Walker plays piano, Harry Weingarden violin, Ralph Gibson saxophone and Buster Tripp drums. William Schott is stage carpenter, Nick Nickerson, electrician and Jack Forrest, property man. J. Sam Houston is in advance and picks the towns best for big openers, says Franklin, even the local theater interests sometimes force him to the edge of town, as was the case recently at Klamath Falls, Ore.

HAZEL M. CASS PLAYERS

Show to Large Fair Crowds at Britt, Iowa

George Evers has been engaged for the balance of the season as a special vaudeville attraction with the Hazel M. Cass Players, advises Manager S. G. Davidson. Alma Bunzel has replaced Bonnie Warren in leads. The show played to immense crowds at its fair date in Britt, Ia., and contracts have been signed with the fair board to continue as the feature attraction before the grand stand next year. The company will close its No. 1 show October 1 and the No. 2 show October 25.

The roster: Daisy Del Wiley, Cyril Calkins, Miss Maher, Miss Goodrich, Jack Milton, Bobby St. Clair, Robert Maher, Irwin Ronch, Charles Ohlmeyer, George Kempton. The executive

Drop us a line today.

Where are the William F. Lewis Stock Company and Ted North Players, under can us when last mentioned in the repertoire columns?

Tom Ausley, of Brazil, Ind., modestly admits he hasn't missed a copy of The Billboard in eighteen years. A commendable record, we say.

Iris Newman has joined Tom's Comedians, and reports the company is playing to good business. The Tom's Comedians recently played Bluff City, Tenn.

This department welcomes the receipt of programs issued by repertoire companies playing either theater or under canvas. We keep them on file; often they are valuable for reference.

Maye Blaisdell, of Chicago, who has been with the Blaisdell Players in Marion, O., for some time teaching voice and diction, recently produced a Klan pageant at Marion that was attended by about 3,000 persons.

The Al Lottlinger Players are scheduled to reopen the Music Hall at Akron, O., with permanent stock, although no date has yet been fixed. Anne Kingsley and Roy Elkins will head the cast.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Weitzel were Billboard callers in Cincinnati last week. They recently closed with the Doyle Dramatic Company at Knightstown, near Indianapolis, Ind., after being with the Doyles for two years.

Eddie Hughes and Scotti Grezair closed a twenty-week engagement with the Loranger Stock Company at Toledo, Ia., last week. Mr. Hughes was scheduled to join a musical show as producer, while Mr. Grezair soon opens with Dick Harwood's Oriental Orchestra for a tour of the Loew Circuit.

Elsie and Jack Smith, of the M. M. Dubinsky Company, playing Hearne, Tex., recently, were visitors of the Brunk Comedians' Company when they played Cameron, Tex. Jack and Elsie also visited Mrs. Harley Sadler's mother, who makes her home in Cameron.

The estate of John Kohler was settled in York, Pa., recently, leaving his grandson, John Henry Kohler, professionally known as Jack Kohler, the sum of $30,000, in addition to property valued at $10,000, according to a communication from J. Henry Knopp, of Deepwater, Mo.

Ralph Rae, comedian; Bessie Belt, soprano, and her daughter, Dolly Belt, sixteen years old, doing specialties, joined the Robert McLaughlin Players at Sparta, Ky., playing under canvas but soon to go into theaters for the winter. Mr. Rae called at The Billboard during his Cincinnati visit.

Joe F. Pitts, of the Pitts Bros., and Mullins Motorized Movie and Vaudeville Show, was married in Union City, Tenn., August 17 to Mrs. Sarah Launom, daughter of Mrs. Laura McClarin, nonprofessional, of Puryear, Tenn. The bridegroom is well known in Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Arkansas as a successful showman.

Jimmy Rae, well-known amusement promoter at Chester Park, Cincinnati, for more than seven years, was reunited after two years' separation with his son, Ralph, in the Queen City recently. Ralph didn't know his father

DANIEL FROHMAN SAID:

"That great pageant which I witnessed last night, staged and directed by Geo. J. Lehrer, was a remarkable, gorgeous and edifying achievement. JUNIOR MUSIC CLUB CONTEST

Pronounced a Success at Missouri State Fair

To the State of Missouri goes the honor of being the pioneer in instituting Junior Musical Club contests as a feature at the annual fair. One of the biggest strides that Missouri has shown thru the State Fair this year lies in the inauguration of a contest among the Junior Music Clubs of the State, and according to those in charge of the contest it has been an encouraging beginning. In conducting this contest the State Fair Committee cooperated with the Missouri Federation of Musical Clubs, and Mrs. C. C. Evans, of Sedalia, Mo., was superintendent of the entire program. It was deeply regretted that thru illness Mrs. Evans could not take charge during the fair. Mrs. E. F. Yancey served in her place. The State Fair was held the third week in August, at Sedalia, Mo., and the Junior contest began August 19.

At the opening of the first program several State officials of the Federation of Music Clubs of Missouri made short talks concerning the Junior work in the State and praised the work that had been done by the Missouri State Fair. Mrs. Abbie L. Snoddy, of Mexico, Mo., president of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs, who was one of the judges, expressed her satisfaction with the spirit shown in the contest. "This example," she said, "will be followed by many States in the near future, no doubt." Lucy K. Peery, of St. Joseph, State chairman of the Junior contest, explained that one of the purposes of the contest was to teach fundamentals in music and to give children encouragement to go on. "Such competitions as these have shown recognition of the artistic and spiritual side of life as well as the material." Ordinarily, according to Miss Peery, only children belonging to the Federated Clubs may enter these contests, but in this case the contest was open to all children in the State.

There were twenty-seven entrants in all the contests conducted by the Missouri State Fair, and this, according to those in charge, was a very good beginning and, no doubt, the successful results will cause a large number to enter in coming years. This year's contests were held for two classes in piano, one class up to and including children of eleven years of age and the second class of from twelve to fourteen years of age. There were two classes in violin, the first up to and including thirteen years of age, the second from fourteen to seventeen years of age; one section in musicianship confined to children not older than ten years of age; one section in harp and one in violin choir, the latter open to children of grammar-school age. In each of these sections the children were required to play three numbers from memory.

The judges were Mrs. Anna Huerman Hamilton, State field worker of the Junior work; Mrs. A. L. Snoddy, of Mexico, Mo., president of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. Newkirk, Warrensburg, and Lucy K. Peery, St. Joseph, Mo. In discussing the results Mrs. Yancey stated the contestants showed very good preparation and ability in appearing before an audience and the competition was so keen that in several instances the same prize had to be awarded to two and three contestants.

Winners in the younger piano section are as follows: First prize, $10, Clara Blittz, Kansas City; second prize, $5, Alberta Roach, Sedalia; third prize $2, Winifred Henderson, Sedalia; Christine Rohison, Sedalia, and Barbara Burke, Kansas City; fourth prize, ribbon, Elizabeth Welch, Chillicothe. Several of these children have already won prizes in other competitions and have promised to enter at the State Fair next year.

Winners in the older class in piano are: First prize, $10, Bernice Lach, Kansas City, and Elden LaMar, Kansas City; second prize, $5, Mary Edna Hart, Sedalia; third prize, $2, Ruth Turley, Sedalia; fourth prize, ribbon, Marian Parker, Pleasant Hill, and Arline Laipple, Sedalia.

The contest in musicianship was unusually interesting, and all of the contestants did very creditable work. The winners in this contest are as follows: In the younger class, first prize, $10, Alberta Roach, Sedalia; second prize, $5, Eloise Sims, Sedalia; third prize, $2, Mary L. Stoher, Hugleyville; fourth prize, ribbon, Stephen Hebert, Kansas City. In the older class in musicianship, Jane Pauline Smith, of Sedalia, won first prize of $10; Elden LaMar, of Kansas City, won second prize of $5; Frances Brown, Sedalia, third prize of $2, and Mar-necessity and the advisability for the continuation of the work in the future.

Editor's Note: What has been accomplished by cooperation between the Missouri State Fair and the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs can be done in other States, and the editor of this department, who has recently been made chairman of the Federation's Music at the Fair Department, will be glad to put State and county fair secretaries in communication with the Federation's Junior Club secretaries who will be pleased to aid in conducting Junior contests.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT

Increase in Attendance at Hollywood Bowl Concerts

The 1924 season of summer concerts at the Hollywood Bowl closed with the program presented by Director Hertz Thursday evening, August 30. The season has been the most successful in its history, both in point of attendance and from a standpoint of music. According to Mrs. J. J. Carter, president of the Hollywood Bowl Association, the attendance has been 25 per cent greater than last year. Noted artists and composers have been featured during the summer, among them being Amelita Galli-Curci, for whose concert the huge Hollywood Bowl was not large enough to take care of the enormous audience which came from all sections of California; Arthur Bliss, English composer and conductor, appeared at a concert to direct his "Color Symphony"; Louis Gravelle was soloist at two concerts, and so pleased the audiences that several encores had to be given. A particularly interesting evening was that termed "Community Sing Night" as the program was in the nature of a welcome home to Hugo Kirschhofer, popular song leader of Southern California, who had just returned from the East. The Hollywood Bowl Association attributes to the "Community Sing" held in Los Angeles in the last few years much of the success of the Bowl concerts, and at this special program Arthur Paswell's new music forms were given their first presentation. Mr. Farwell, who is a resident of Pasadena, has originated a new idea for community singing and orchestra and has written a symphony calling for 100 instruments and 10,000 voices, and this composition was presented the first time on this occasion. A more detailed report of this concert will be published in these columns in a later issue.

Extensive plans for the 1925 season at the Hollywood Bowl are already being made and the Bowl Association expects to make next year's concerts even more brilliant than those of the 1924 season.

ST. LOUIS TO HAVE

Sixty-Five Orchestral Concerts by Her Own Orchestra

The orchestral concert season in St. Louis will consist of sixty-five concerts by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Rudolph Ganz, conductor. There will be the usual fifteen pairs of regular symphony programs and the twenty Sunday afternoon "Pop" concerts and, according to the advance subscription sale, the attendance will be increased as the subscriptions exceed those of the preceding season. Many eminent soloists will be presented and among them will be Margarete Matzenauer, contralto; Harold Bauer, noted pianist; Mitja Nikisch, pianist; Julia Claussen, soprano, who is a favorite with St. Louis audiences, and who will appear jointly with Arthur Middleton, baritone, in a Wagner program; Efrem Zimballist, violinist; Carl Flesch, violinist, who has been engaged specially to play the great Brahms violin concerto; Marlon Telva, St. Louis singer, who has achieved success with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and several others. Three of the fifteen pairs of concerts will be full orchestral programs without any soloists.

CIVIC CONCERT BODY

Sponsors Concert Course in Wichita

A Civic Concert Association has been organized in Wichita, Kan., for the purpose of presenting each year a series of concerts at popular prices. The sponsors hope to obtain a membership of not less than 2,000 and arrangements have been completed for the first season with a series of three programs, the first of which to be presented in October. The initial concert will bring to Wichita the Chicago Operatic Trio, which is composed of Myrna Sharlow, soprano; Forrest Lamont, tenor, and Virgilio Lazzari, basso, with Isaac Van Grose as conductor. The second program will feature Riccardo Martin, noted tenor, and Herbert Curlin, accompanist and soloist. The final number will be a joint concert by Vera Poppe, English cellist, and Raymond Koch, baritone.

Helen Stanley, American soprano, who will again sing with the Philadelphia Civic Opera Company, has been booked for an extensive tour the coming season. She will be soloist with several symphony orchestras and will give recitals in a number of cities.

Jorie Carpenter, of Sedalia, fourth prize, ribbon.

There was only one entry in the choir violins, and that won first prize, and was entered by Prof. W. B. Hertz, of Sedalia.

In the younger violin class, Harriette Young, of Kansas City, won first prize of $10. Emmet Peltz, of Kansas City, won second prize of $5, and Margaret Love, of Sedalia, won third prize of $2.

The only entry in the older violin class was Sue Pashan, who won the first prize of $10.

The only entry in the harp section was that of Lois Adele Craft, of Kansas City, who also won first prize.

Each afternoon the contests drew as there was a large attendance by musicians and professional musicians and the interest and spirit evidenced in these contests pointed to

NOTED ARTISTS

To Appear With Portland Orchestra

The sale of subscription tickets for the 1924-25 season of the Portland (Ore.) Symphony Orchestra has been very gratifying, and it is believed the change of the place in which the concerts are to be given has added materially. This coming season the concerts will be given in the Auditorium instead of the Helbig Theater as in former years. There will be nine concerts, beginning in November, when Percy Grainger, pianist, will be the first soloist. Other soloists include Alfred Gustaf, pianist; Royal Dadman, tenor; Alfred Brabant, contralto; Georges Laroche, violinist, and Mieczyslaw Munz, pianist. Besides these three choral programs will be presented.

DE WOLF HOPPER

To Head Musical Stock Company at Boston Opera House

De Wolf Hopper and his company of singers will open a season of musical stock at the Boston Opera House in Boston, Mass., Monday evening, September 15. The opening bill will be an elaborate presentation of Gilbert & Sullivan's famous "Mikado".

AMERICAN COMPOSITIONS

To Be Played at Berkshire Festival

The Berkshire Festival of Chamber Music at Pittsfield, Mass., will open with a recital by the Festival Quartet Wednesday, September 17. Mrs. Coolidge has received requests from music lovers from all over the country, but as only 200 persons can be accommodated at each concert many of these requests must be refused.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

To Inaugurate Traveling Loan Music Libraries

Mrs. Marx E. Oberdorffer, national chairman of the Music Department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has announced that as a result of a decision reached at the recent biennial of the General Federation, the money which had been raised for the headquarters music fund would be used, beginning this autumn, for the inauguration of a series of traveling loan music libraries.

These libraries will give outlines for papers, books for reference in preparing such papers, sheet music for illustrations and player-piano rolls and phonograph records for use when there is available talent. The libraries are only for the use of women's clubs belonging to the General Federation in towns under 5,000 in population. Clubs must guarantee express charges.

In addition to these libraries we also have a series of music-roll libraries, given us thru the courtesy of the QRS Company, for the use of the boys and girls in small communities. Sets will be of five programs of eight rolls each, giving selections from all the great schools of music generally used in music memory contests. Thru the generosity of the Brillens Company, arrangements have been made for the loan of their player-pianos for use in this course of music study.

NEW YORK MUSIC SEASON

Begins With Presentation of "Aida" on September 13

The music season in New York City will be opened with the presentation of "Aida" by the Manhattan Grand Opera Association at the Manhattan Opera House Saturday evening, September 13. During the following week the operetta will be "Traviata", "Gloconda", "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci".

A series of four concerts is announced for Johnstown, Pa., during the coming season by the Board of Education. The soloists announced thus far are Mabel Garrison and Reinold Wert-rath.

BRILLIANT SEASON

Announced for Steinert Concert Series in Boston

The Steinert concert series, which for so many years has been an important factor in the music annals of Boston, will this year again bring to that city the world's most noted artists and a brilliant season is assured. As usual, the programs will all be given on Sunday afternoons in Symphony Hall, and the initial program is listed for October 26, when an orchestral concert will be presented by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, with Willem Van Hoogstraaten as director, and Yolando Moro, pianist, as soloist.

In addition to the series there will be two extra concerts, as Sousa and his celebrated band are to present a program on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, September 21.

NOTED ARTISTS

To Be Presented by Morris Gest

During the 1924-25 concert season Morris Gest will bring to this country several noted artists. The first will be Mikhail Morikin, who appeared as the leading dancer with Anna Pavlova upon her first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1910, also the following season. He will again make his first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House late in October and will be assisted by his own company, and will bring with him from Europe all scenery and costumes. Fritzi Masary, considered as one of the foremost light opera prima donnas of Central Europe, will also be presented by Mr. Gest. Another artist will be Jean Gonosko, Russian Gypsy violinist, who is to bring his own orchestra with him and will be heard only at private engagements.

Concert and Opera Notes

Rene Thornton (Mrs. Richard Hageman) has been engaged as soloist with the St. Catherine Club in Chicago for October 7.

Harold Hurlbert, vocal teacher of New York City, will conduct an early autumn course in Los Angeles before returning to New York City.

On October 3 Edward Johnson will begin his concert season in his native Canada, in Hamilton, Ont. Following this he will give a recital in Bayton, O., October 6.

Charles Wakefield Cushman and the Princess Teatuna have completed their engagements in New Mexico and have returned to Los Angeles. Negotiations are said to be under way for a number of appearances in Europe this season.

Following his arrival in this country for appearance at the Berkshire Festival Carl Friedberg will tour before starting his master classes at the Damrosch Institute, New York City.

Under the auspices of the Portland Musical Bureau Margery Maxwell, soprano with the Chicago Civic Opera, will give a recital in Portland March 3. Miss Maxwell's appearance is of special interest, as Portland is her home town.

Hayrah Hubbard, well-known critic and also famed for his operalogues, has been re-engaged for the fourth consecutive season for four appearances each with the National Opera Club of Chicago, the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences and Columbia University.

The twenty-sixth season of the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, in Milwaukee, opened September 1 with two additional departments and instructors. Louis Victor Saar is teacher of advanced harmony, orchestration and composition, and Hans Hess is instructing classes in cello.

During the first English tour to be made by Gail O'Neil there will be two concerts in London's largest auditorium, Albert Hall. These are announced for October 12 and 13. The noted singer will return to this country late in December in order to fill her engagements with the Metropolitan Opera.

A tour has been arranged by Roger de Bruyn, of New York City, for the Welsh tenor, Rlys Morgan, and there are several appearances with the State Symphony Orchestra of New York included. On October 6 Mr. Morgan will be heard in concert in Carnegie Hall, New York, and will then sing for a number of Welsh societies thru Pennsylvania.

The Symphony season in San Francisco will not be opened until November and all concerts will be given in the Civic Auditorium. Alfred Hertz, director of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, promises an unusually brilliant series of programs. Mr. Hertz also is arranging to present programs for the Spring Music Festival, the first of which was held so successfully early this spring.

The College of Music of the University of Southern California will this month enter upon its fortieth year. From a small department, with an enrollment of but a few students in piano, the college has grown to an institution requiring twenty-eight instructors and an enrollment of more than 500 students to whom is offered every branch of applied and theoretical music. The course includes the study of public

Motion Picture Music Notes

For the current week's program at the New York Capitol S. L. Rothbart has arranged an elaborate list of specialties. Opening with Paganini's "Madame Butterfly", played by the orchestra, under the direction of David Mendham, there are several numbers in which the ballet corps and the principal voices are assembled. Mme. Gambarelli, ballet mistress and premiere danseuse, is seen in an artistic presentation of "The Glow Worm" (Lancke), and the vocal accompaniment is by the Capitol Sextet. A number of popular ballet themes are used for "The Ballet Master", with Frank Moulton in the principal role, assisted by the various dancers. Boris Niles is appearing in an individual interpretation of Cyril Scott's "Soiree Japonaise", and a number of unusual interest is the "Tocata" from Wilder's Fifth Symphony for organ, which has never before been offered in a theater. Melchorre Mauro-Cottene, chief organist, is being assisted in this by the brass section of the orchestra.

Balaban & Katz presented at the Riviera Theater, Chicago, the week of September 1, the Four Piano Girls. The group played "Mandalar", "Unti Tomorra", "Fascination Waltz" and "Knee and Knit". On the same program Virginia Johnson, soprano, was soloist for the week, with the musical program opening with Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" overture.

Interesting solos are featured by Robert B. Donnell, organist of the Plaza Theater, Ocean City, N. J.

A program of much variety surrounds the film feature being shown this week at the Mark Strand Theater in New York City. The overture, "Sakuntala", of Goldmark's opens the program, followed by a charming novelty, "The Sanderers", with Armand Slovik, basso, and Madeleine MacGulgan, violinist. There is a two-part Joseph Plunkett musical ballet, "The Banquet of the Mummies", the music for the first part of which was written by Warner Janssen, a young American composer. This is the first time Mr. Janssen's "itching fingers" has been performed, and the other part is being danced to the strains of Kreisler's "Schon Rosmarin" walse.

Grauman's Metropolitan of Los Angeles recently offered a distinct novelty in presenting Jeannette Rogers as conductor of the orchestra for a week. Miss Rogers is also flute soloist of the organization.

The first of the "famous music master" series of films was shown at Portland's Rialto Theater recently, with special orchestral score played by Francesco Longo's Orchestra.

George Minor, well-known organist of the Pacific Coast, has been secured by the management of the Lyric Theater, Springfield, Ill., to play the large orchestral organ.

The musical program at the New York Rialto includes for the current week a solo, S. R. Ave's "Song of the Timber Trail", by Fred Patton, noted baritone. There is also a dance, "Slopava", by Lordel Kendler.

On a recent program at the Victor Theater, McKeesport, Pa., Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" was played by Ferdinand Lechten, organist, as a solo number. This was followed by a popular melody. For the theme "Love's Greeting", by Klara, and excerpts from Tschakovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" were used.

Beginning August 31 and continuing for the week Joseph Littau opened the musical program at the Missouri Theater, St. Louis, with the overture from Bizet's "Carmen", played by the orchestra, with vocal solo by Catherine Reinert. Lily Kovacs, pianist, was presented for a final week in several solos, and thru the courtesy of the Capitol Theater of New York City a stage presentation, "The Violin of Gramina", with Miss Reinert, was an attractive feature of the week.

Rimsky Korsakov's "Capriccio Espagnole" was featured as the overture at the Tivoli Theater, Chicago, the week commencing September 1.

Ben Blue, comedy eccentric dancer, was an added attraction to the program presented the week beginning August 30 at the Capitol Theater, St. Paul, Minn. For the organ contribution by Leonard Leigh "Sweet Little Yon" was featured, and to open the program for the week the Symphony Orchestra, directed by Oscar P. Baum, excerpts from "Rossem Time" were played.

Under the auspices of the City of New York a concert was given on the Mall, in Central Park, Sunday evening, September 7. This was conducted by Hugo Rosenfeld, managing director of the Bronx, Rialto and Criterion theaters with an orchestra made up of sixty pianos and Vivi Warwick, mezzo-soprano, as soloist. A Wagner-Liszt program was played by the orchestra and Miss Warwick sang an aria from "Die Gotterdammerung".

Musical Comedy Notes

Tony Sarg's Marionettes will re-join Fred Stone in "Stepping Stones" at the Globe Theater, New York.

In rehearsing "Dear Sir" Edgar Selwyn is experiencing his first thrill in putting on a musical production. Selwyn, incidentally, contributed the book for the show.

If you have not already sent your biography to The Billboard please do so. Address it to Biographical Editor, The Billboard, 25-27 Opera Place, Cincinnati, O.

Eddie Buzzell, Helen Ford and members of "No Other Girl" Company participated in a concert recently in aid of the New York Police Benevolent Fund.

Members of the Metropolitan Opera Company attended the opening of Arthur Hammerstein's new musical production, "Rose-Marie", last week at the Imperial Theater, New York, to root for Mary Ellis, who was associated with the opera organization for several seasons.

Nancy Welford has been assigned the ingenue role in "In Dutch", a musical play by the late Aaron Hoffman and formerly known as "The Politicians", A. L. Jones and Morris Green will sponsor this production, in which Gallagher and Shean are the stars.

Eddie Cantor, aided by Marie Callahan, has introduced a new song hit in "Kid Boots", which recently transferred its seat of operations on Broadway from the Earl Carroll Theater to the Selwyn. The piece is entitled "I'd Like To Put You in a Big Glass Cage", written by Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy.

So well has "Poppy" caught on with Boston audiences that Philip Goodman has arranged to prolong its engagement there. The musical comedy, starring Madge Kennedy and W. C. Field, was originally booked at the Majestic Theater for a limited stay. Luella Gear, who appeared with the New York production, will play her role with a London company.

Arthur Wimperis, the English playwright, has just turned over to Florenz Ziegfeld the completed manuscript of "Louis the Fourteenth", which will serve as a starring vehicle for Leon Errol. Wimperis has also disposed of an adaptation of Sacha Guitry's "The Kiss Card", which Arch Selwyn will stage this season.

"LOLLIPOP" TO RESUME

New York, Sept. 5.—"Lollipop", Henry W. Savage's musical production, which was forced to close down last season by Equity, will open its tour of the road next Monday in Hudson, N. Y. Ada Mae Weeks heads the cast, practically the same that appeared at the Knickerbocker Theater. Savage will reopen Mitzi's tour in Alentown, Pa. The producer has required two new Franz Lehár operettas, also two dramas, "Lass o' Laughter" and an Italian play by Nicodemus.

THE TAITS LAND STONE SHOW

New York, Sept. 5.—The Australian rights to "Stepping Stones" has been disposed of to J. & N. Tait. The antipodes producers bought the production from Charles Dillingham, with Harry K. Morton and Zella Russell in mind for the leading roles. As Morton is under a three-year contract to the Shubert management, the Tait's will be obliged to look elsewhere for a star to play Fred Stone's role.

WE ARE IN RECEIPT of an appeal made thru Bert Humphreys of the "Dancing Buddies" Company with reference to the whereabouts of Genevieve Myers. If this comes to Genevieve's attention she is urged to write her mother.

LARRY CHAMBERS advises that the Lew ("Red") Mack Company closed a most successful engagement at the Casino Theater, near Canton, O., the first of the month, and is now getting located in St. Joseph, Mo.

THE STRAND, Kokomo, Ind.; Harris Grand, Bloomington, Ind.; Grand at Salem, O.; Victoria at Steamboat, O., and the Star Theater at Meppesen, Pa., have been opened for the season. They will play Sun tabloids.

"RED" MACK and his "Sweet Stuff" Company concluded its summer stay at the Casino Park Theater, Meyers Lake Park, Canton, O., with a western melodrama, "The Girl from the Flying N". The bill was well received.

BEEHARSALS of the Hal Hoyt "Home Town Frolics" principals were started in Springfield, O. Hoyt will tour the Sun Circuit this season, staging a standard script bill in each town with a local chorus. He will open September 15 at Findlay, O.

HAROLD VANCE, manager of the Starland Theater, Montreal, Can., is largely responsible for the successes achieved of late in that house, due to his efficient and hard work, our correspondent states. He has managed houses in Ottawa for thirty years.

W. L. KENNEY closed recently with the Lew Conn "Comedians" after an eight weeks' engagement in the South. He did leads, specialties and also doubled on the piano. The Conn "Comedians" have closed, he stated during a visit to The Billboard office in Cincinnati, after a season of eighteen weeks in Dixie.

"FROLICS" AND "FRILLS", with Lew Brems, closed at Acker's Strand Theater, Halifax, N. S. after a run of thirteen weeks. This is the longest period any show ever played at the Strand. Frank Soper's "Pretty Nifty" Revue followed into the Strand. Brems moved to the Strand, Malden, Mass.

PLENTY OF PEP, comedy and action characterizes the Marshall Walker "Whiz Bang" Revue, states Harvey Arlington, manager of the Orpheum Theater, Grand Rapids, Mich., where it played recently. The cast of eighteen people has a good wardrobe, the chorus is good and scenery is fair, Arlington reports.

DANNY LUND'S "Revue of 1925" is "entirely satisfactory", Sherry and Laverne, managers of the Academy Theater, Buffalo, N. Y., wrote the Sun Exchange. Danny has a company of eighteen people, with excellent wardrobe, scenery and costumes, according to the report, and the comedy is far above the average.

GRACE BENNETT PALMER, known as "The 1924 Girl", who was injured when a curtain fell in a St. Louis theater last April, was in Cincinnati recently meeting old friends. She convalesced in Sandusky, O., following the accident. Her son, Lew Palmer, Jr., has entered the Lawrenceburg (Tenn.) Military Academy.

F. E. MUNRO, manager of the "Sunshine Kiddies" Revue, which will play over the Springfield Time beginning September 22 at Newport News, Va., was a recent Billboard writer. The revue is booked for about forty weeks, playing tab. houses in the South. Last year it was seen in Pennsylvania and New York State and enjoyed a prosperous season.

ELSEWHERE in the Tab. columns are the names of a number of people recently engaged by tabloid companies. We have room for lots of names and will appreciate receiving the roster (and don't forget to mention the chorines) of all shows whose personnel has not already been printed this season. We believe in making these columns personal and climactic.

MOSTE WILKES and BUSTER, after a two months' fishing and boating vacation as guests of Charles and Kathryn Clarke, formerly the Shouting Clarks, sold good-by to Quincy, Ill., and community, and went South to John Bert Humphrey's tabloid company at Charlotte, N. C. Vacationing is a great life, avers Monte. He and Mrs. Wilkes are looking forward to a return trip to Illinois next summer.

GUY AND EVA HAUFF report good business

COMMUNICATIONS TO OUR CINCINNATI OFFICES

is enjoyed by the Byrne & Byrne Company. The show has been enlarged to ten people to play the Sun Time. The roster includes Billie Byrne, prima donna; Charley Byrne, comic and producer; Guy Hauff, second comic; Johnnie Wilson, straight and character; Hazel Guersnov, soubrette and specialties, and Eva Hauff, characters and specialties.

CHARLES GOLDEN writes of his identification as comedian with the Harry Rogers Revue, playing fair for five weeks, opening at Monticello, Ia., and followed by Auburn, Nch., and Tifton, Ia., all big jumps. McCowen's Stock Company was at Auburn when he wrote, "Believe me, they certainly are well liked here and are doing a great business. Their plays are the best."

CAPACITY BUSINESS is the way James R. Hotchkiss, scenic artist, terms it in speaking of the success of the Harry Rogers Musical Comedy Tab. Company at the Palace Theater, New Orleans, La. The company is headed by Billy House. The long summer engagement has been extended four weeks. Ed Rodden, scenic artist, has provided a most befitting setting each week, writes Hotchkiss.

THE POPULAR "Cute Little Devils" Company headed by "Curly" Burns and Howard Paden, offered two complete bills the final week of their Canton (O.) engagement at the Lyceum Theater. The first half of the week Burns appeared in a leading white-face role for the first time during the engagement. Keith vanderwile opened Labor Day and the tab company gave way to the new polley.

PRaise for Harvey Borr's "Come Along Mary" Company is contained in a report of Manager Bob Shaw of the Orpheum Theater, Lima, O., where the show played two weeks ago. Shaw said the cast of eighteen has very good wardrobe, chorus and scenery and that Sam Miley and Larry Powers are great comedians and that the entire show is clean and up to the minute.

BERT SMITH'S "Ragtime Wonders" have closed their twenty-four-week engagement at the Empress Theater, Omaha, Neb., and now are at the Tootle Theater, St. Joseph, Mo. The show will jump to Mitchell, S. D., for Corn Palace week later in the month. The Colonial Theater at Detroit follows, showing several big jumps but fine engagements for this attraction.

NICK WILKIE and wife are back with the Harry C. Lewis "Honeymoon Town" Revue, having opened Labor Day on the Sun Time. They closed a summer engagement of five weeks' stock at the Princess Theater, Nashville, Tenn., recently, later vacationing at Decatur, Ala. Nick is doing principal comedy. Little Mary Wilkie is getting as smart as a whip, says her proud papa.

THE SCHOOL DAY FOLLIES will open their season in Milwaukee September 15, with solid bookings ahead. James Richards, manager, and Russell Nichol handled the bookings. Bruce W. Kaas will be with the company again as producing manager. Kaas, Richards and Nichol will handle comedy, while Henry Richards will do straight. Babe Dean, Birdie Dean, Mary Wagner and Anna Willinger are to be in the chorus.

LARRY LARRIVEE, well known in burlesque, is now producing at the King Edward Theater, Montreal, Can. His company includes Bob Lee, Charles Chapdelaine, Teddy Hale, Maude Lee, Bonnie Barry, Marie Costello, Annie Osgood, Henriette Demers, Grace Barry, Luciline Chapdelaine and Florida Ray. Edward Bayer is house manager and is said to be very popular.

George Phillips, veteran stage manager, is getting much credit for his stage settings and electrical effects.

THEATER OPENINGS last week of the Sun Time were as follows: Princess, Arlington, Ok., with Pete Pat's "Senatorator", starring Walter Wright; Tackett, Coffeyville, Kan., with Billy Earle's "Jazz Man"; Revue; Taft, So. Joseph, Mo., with Graves Bros.' "Doney Brown" Company; Majestic, Des Moines, Ia., with the "Pepper Box" Revue; Atlantic at Atlantic, Ia., with Jack Hutchinson's "Ziz Zaz" Revue; Opera House, Central City, Ia., with Vogel and Miller.

ROTARY STOCK was started last Sunday by the E. Jon Musical Comedy Company of Cincinnati, when the show opened at Honck's Opera House, just remodeled. Other theaters on the circuit of one-nighters include the Rialto at Covington, Ky.; Strand at Newport, Ky.; Metropolitan, Casino and Amerieus, neighborhood houses in Cincinnati. The company closed a fifteen weeks' engagement Labor Day at Coney Island, Cincinnati; Nora Johnson has been added to the chorus.

ROSE, AGNES AND MARY CLARK are featured in the Clark Sisters' Revue, which opened the season at the Academy Theater, Buffalo, N. Y. The show was pronounced by newspaper critics as an instant hit. Avey McAnn and Bert Shaw comprise the humor team, while the Clark Sisters are spoken of as splendid dancers with grace and skill personified. Myron Harmon is straight, Ray Smith, juvenile, Agnes Melvin, prima donna; Agnes and Mary Clark do specialties.

W. L. GALLAGHER and Mike Meaney will present "Oh, Honey", a new musical tabloid show, this season in the Plymouth Garden houses thruout New England, opening September 15 at Salem, Mass. Gus Smith and Dena Sauer will head the company as comedians. A snappy band and orchestra, with Gus Jones as leader, is part of the show, and street parades will be given daily. Twenty-five people will be in the company. Miss Jones is putting on all musical numbers and special numbers written are by Charlie Abot.

MIKE MEANEY, of the Brewster Amusement Company, opened his new "Hot's Revue" September 8 at the Opera House, Westport, R. I., with twenty-two people. The roster is headed by the popular comedian, Lew Williams, and includes George Brown, straight man; Madeline Boland, prima donna; Frankie LaBrack, soubrette; Charles Williams, juvenile; Fay Nason, dancer; Oliver San Souba, dancer; the Smith and Usher musical act; Bob Roswell, leader, and a chorus lineup of ten charming girls. The show will play New York and New England territory.

THE AL BRIDGE PLAYERS, miniature-musical comedy, opened at the Delemon Theater, Salt Lake City, Utah, last week, going there from Dallas, Tex. Ben Hill, newspaper man of Dallas, was ahead of the show and billed the city like a circus, according to reports. In the roster are Bralzo, Dorothy Woodard, William Rader, Dorothy Raymond, Clarence Wurdling, Allen McDonald and the Haman Triplets, three pretty misses who register sweet seventeen. They are said to be the only triplets appearing on the stage today. Their manipulation of the saxophone is termed "very clever." There also is a pretty chorus.

JACK HUTCHINSON'S "Ziz Zaz" Revue opened in Des Moines to splendid business, considering the warm weather, a couple of weeks ago. The past week the company was at the Calmet Theater, South Chicago. A route over to Sun Time is next in line. "Jack" says he is pleased with his show, which now has Harry Leonard and Harry Carr, Lela Mae and Floyd White, Midge Hyatt, Jerry Leonard, Louis WILKS, Kige and Doris, and Bonnie Warlaint as principals, with Betty Hutchinson, Betty Bawlinson, Dolly Taylor, Viola Mack, Avis Whitefield, Alth Howard, Billie Walsh and Mona Hyden in the chorus. George Walsh is musical director.

THE LABALLE COMPANY, a musical show, opened recently at the Clifton Theater, Urbana, O., to a capacity house and was well received. Manager Jack Bast's show continues among the best, as evidenced by laboratory press comments. He is carrying special settings electrical effects and a new wardrobe. The roster includes Harry and Betty Debraze, Charles Crisler, Bessie Lawrence, Queen and King, Billy Denton, Lottie Vivian Bass, Max Pissagna, Babe Wayne, Henry Goodhood and the Lucille Trio. George Earle is musical director and Mrs. Bast is producer of chorus numbers. Paul A. Love is advance man. There is a hearty chorus of eight.

PERSONNEL of the Golden & Long "Buzin' Around" Company, which appeared at Terre Haute, Ind., last week, is as follows: Max Cadden, Bobby Golden, Albert Taylor, Doc Dorman, Mabel Sackleton, Dorris Kelly, Norma Fair Blodd-Adams, Earl Stanley, Paul Hoxby, Gilbert Van Alst, Paul Taylor, Snider and Ramsey. A swarming hive of bobbed hair swimmers make up the chorus and include Marie Van Met, Esther Dorman, Louise Long, Jenn Hill, Emma Goldbeck, Ida Goldbeck, Bille Lantz, Gladys Queen, Irma Stone, Betty Steel, Mackey Steel, Vera Fair, Dolly DeVoy and Anna Harrington. The company played at the Indiana State Fair in Indianapolis recently.

CHARLES ROSS's principal comic and producer for the Manhattan Comedy Company, appearing at the Starland Theater, Montreal, Can., associated with him are Billy Benson, second comic; Al Beaumont, straight; Madam Alma, late of the Montreal Opera Company, soprano and character; Marie Fenton, ingenue; Jean Genest, late tenor with the Montreal Opera Company; Oga Hudson, soubrette. The chorus: Alice Goodenough, Agie Fitzgerald, Germaine Masse, Lucille Roy, Teddy Burr and Gerlie Hudson. Ivy Kyle puts over specialty numbers to repeated encores with the assistance of the Chicago Novelty Orchestra, under direction of Mollard Thomas.

THE CASH BROTHERS and their "Frisco Frolic" Company have opened an indefinite engagement.

Mutual Chorister School Now Established Success

President Herk Convinced Desired Results Have Been Obtained—Official Associates Endorse His Management and Methods

New York, Sept. 5.—It matters little who was the original propagandist for a school for choristers that would enable them to advance themselves thru study and practice to under-study principals and in time become one of them. The fact remains that the propagandist kept hammering away at his pet hobby until he was finally successful in impressing its practicability on both the executives of the Columbia Amusement Company and the Mutual Burlesque Association until separate and distinctive schools have been established by both associations for the betterment of burlesque in general.

We have carried several articles commending the Columbia Amusement Company for its financial sponsoring of the Columbia Burlesque School of Dancing and Instruction at 165 Broadway, under the management of Dan Dody. The aforementioned propagandist suggested a plan to President Herk during the past summer for a similar school to meet the requirements of shows on the Mutual Circuit, and President Herk, with his well-known wisdom, took it under consideration and readjusted the plan to meet the special requirements of Mutual Burlesque, with the result that he is now firmly convinced that he has obtained the desired results, which are fully endorsed by his official associates in the Mutual Burlesque Association, which at the present time include several theatrical magnates whose names do not appear on the roster of officials but who are taking an active interest in President Herk's novel and unique methods for further stabilizing houses and shows on the Mutual Circuit, with a view of further financing an expansion that will in time include fifty-two cities and fifty-two shows that will operate during the entire year.

When The Billboard gave the first intimation of this alliance a year ago the skeptics smiled and the would-be "wisenheimers" of burlesque looked upon it as propaganda in the personal interest of Herk, but facts are stranger than fiction, and it is now very evident to all that I. H. Herk is becoming a bigger factor than ever in theatricals.

We are indebted to Charles P. Salisbury, chief of the Mutual Burlesque Association press department, for a review of conditions pertaining to the school for choristers operated in the interest of Mutual Circuit shows, viz.:

Don Leno Schooling Choristers

Officials of the Mutual Burlesque Association are so greatly pleased with the result of their radical departure from all precedent in forming the choruses of their thirty-six shows this season that President Herk announces an extension of the plan under conditions that will insure permanency. Early last spring Don Leno, the famous old English comedian and singer, who has for some years conducted a school for instruction in stage dancing, was asked to train several classes of girls, from whom it was proposed to select the best looking and dancing dancers for the choruses of Mutual Circuit shows. Leno's long experience enabled him to readily classify the applicants for this gratuitous instruction, with the result that by midsummer separate groups of twenty-four each were in rehearsal under the direction of the various producers of Mutual shows, but under the constant supervision of Leno himself. When the season opened Mutual's shows were provided with choruses that have been the subject of wonderfully complimentary references in newspaper reviews of their performances, and some of these have been favorably compared with the Tiller groups from London.

"We have received so many reports from local managers in which they have praised not only the appearance but the splendid work of our choruses," said President Herk today. "that we have placed Don Leno under contract to give special instruction to such young ladies as he may from time to time select, to prepare them for positions in our various shows. Although the season is not far advanced, we have had two or three occasions to make minor changes in the personnel of our companies and, in every instance, we have promoted girls from the ranks of the choruses to vacancies created. I have been highly surprised with the high average of intelligence manifested in our choruses, and delighted to find among the girls many who not only desire to advance in the profession but who are physically and vocally equipped to give a good account of themselves in principal roles on short notice. Mr. Leno has been asked to give precedence in his classes to girls who have naturally good voices, and we propose to include a course of vocal instruction for those who evidence a desire to perfectly equip themselves for a stage career.

"Our experience has convinced us," continued Mr. Herk, "that there are, in all of the cities of our circuit, young women who are serious in their ambition to adopt the stage as a profession, and our local managers will be requested to give hearings to those who apply for admission to our school. It is not our intention to keep large numbers of girls in rehearsal during the winter months, but to have constantly at hand a few girls fully competent to replace those who, for any reason, leave our employ. Next summer we will undoubtedly require many additional choristers to complete our companies and we anticipate no difficulty

BABE QUINN

A graduate of vaudeville and B. F. Kahn's Union Square burlesque stock company in New York City, now the recognized Dresden doll soubret of Oppenheimer & Myers' "Miss New York, Jr.", Company, on the Mutual Circuit.

BABE QUINN

Daughter of Distinguished Theatrical Parents, Who Has Made Good as a Vaude. Artiste and Burlesquer

"Babe", as she is known to her professional associates, may have some other name, in all probability has, but we have never heard it applied to her.

Be that as it may, "Babe" was born in Brighton, England, where her father, Charles Laurie, was a noted actor in animal characterizations, appearing at the Drury Lane Theater, London, where "Babe's" mother also appeared as a premiere toe dancer in pantomimes and where "Babe", in person, appeared at the age of four.

Coming to this country when "Babe" was eight years of age, the Laurie family took to vaudeville and "Babe" accompanied them in their act for several years, or until she was old enough to take part in "The Babes in the Wood" at Niblo's Garden, New York City, where she remained an entire season.

At the age of fourteen "Babe" became a single in vaudeville and her petite personality, talent and ability as a kiddie performer received just recognition in extensive bookings.

Tiring of travelling alone, she next joined her sisters in the well-known vaudeville act titled "The Laurie Sisters' Kid Act", and continued with them over the Fox Time for four years.

Meeting and marrying George Quinn, former vaude. artiste, now an agent in New York City, "Babe" became identified with the vaudeville act of Lester-Quinn-Laurie on the Keith Time.

Later friend husband George and "Babe" did a double act under the name of Quinn and Quinn on the Keith Time.

When the opportunity was offered friend husband to establish an agency in New York City "Babe" decided to give up the road and became identified with the B. F. Kahn Union Square Burlesque Stock Company in New York City.

With the closing of the Union Square Theater "Babe" joined John Pearsal's "Bringing Up Father" and went from there to burlesque on the Mutual Circuit with James Madison's "Baby Bears", under the management of Gus Kahn for one season, and was in "Gus Fay's Polly Town" for one season.

"Babe" is now the Dresden Doll Soubret of Oppenheimer & Myers' "Miss New York, Jr.", which is reviewed in this issue. NEISE.

Apollo Opening Not Overly Clean

Minskys' Stock Presentation Has Redeeming Features, But Principal Comique Rose Places House in Jeopardy

New York, Sept. 1.—Billy Minsky and the Frasers, Abe and Harry, have become known as successful operators of the National Winter Garden, burlesque stock, at Second avenue and Houston street, where they give the East Side natives what they want in the way of burlesque, and judging from what they have been giving them in the past, the natives want their burlesque red hot off the grid and well spiced with double entendre sufficiently suggestive to be understood by the blind and the deaf and dumb alike, for the blind can hear, even tho' they cannot see, and the deaf and dumb can see, even tho' they cannot hear. The way in which the performances are conducted at the National Winter Garden one need not ask to get what they want. Minsky, New York City, the ever-watchful house manager, spots a journalistic reviewer or a moral censor in the audience and relays the "bits" back stage. This, in all probability, accounts for the fact that journalists fail to review shows at the Garden.

Be that as it may, the Minskys have had a long way to play uptown and some time ago tried it out at the New Park Music Hall, Columbus Circle, where they lasted as long as their money held out and no longer.

During the past three months the Minskys have heralded near and far their announcement that they had taken over the old music hall formerly occupied by Hurlig & Seamon, on 125th street, west of Seventh avenue, prior to

In filling the classes of our school with candidates for the positions who will meet the high standard at which we shall aim."

Mr. Herk declared that by far the greatest number of vacancies in the ranks of Mutual circuit shows were occasioned by marriage. He observed that the few weeks between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas gave him the greatest concern on the score of resignations, "but we will be well fortified to replace the girls who prefer home life to a stage career this season," concluded Mr. Herk with a grin, "altho' we realize that the superior attractiveness of our girls will increase the percentage of marriages this winter."

Hurlig & Seamon's transfer of activities to a newer theater near Eighth avenue, where they have presented Columbia Burlesque successfully.

It was probably Hurlig & Seamon's success that led the Minskys to take over the old music hall, more recently called the Apollo, for burlesque stock, and spend considerable money on its renovation, redecoration and refurbishing, which has improved it wonderfully, thereby making it a cozy up-stairs house, with a seating capacity of over one thousand.

As a matter of news we felt duty bound to accept Billy Minsky's invitation to be present on the opening night and were agreeably surprised to find a curbstone lineup of patrons waiting to purchase seats, which they did until the house was filled and many turned away.

The greater number in the lineup evidenced their East Side characteristics, and from their jargon it was readily ascertainable that they were on hand to do homage to their favorites, late of the National Winter Garden.

Chief among the members of the company brought from the National Winter Garden is the producer and principal comique, Joe Rose, one of the most personally likable comiques in burlesque, formerly a Dutch and Hebrew comique in circuit shows but more recently a Tom Howard wack-cracking boob in makeup and mannerism. Others include Hattie Houli, with her dazzling blond personality, talent and ability as a soubret; Emily Clark with her pretty baby face, piping voice and Jimmy-baking, flabby-dashed banks; and Walter Weber, one of the best character men in burlesque. Among the newcomers are Billy Cochran, a capaldi straight man; Eddie Green, a pliable, talented and able colored comique; and Frankie La Braek, a pretty faced, slender-formed singer and dancing soubret of exceptional talent and ability. All three were formerly of circuit shows. They are supplemented by Katherine Jewel, an intellectual, refined-appearing prima donna with an exceptionally sweet voice that evidences careful culture and is entirely out of place in stock burlesque. Another newcomer is Josephine Davis, a comedienne and sweet singer of character songs. The last two named women are evidently fans of Bert Jonas, the vaudeville agent, who is casting new people for the Apollo in hopes that Broadway producers, out of curiosity, will drop in to see the girls and hook them thru Bert for productions where they rightfully belong.

"Fido", the oriental dancer who was a big drawing card at the Olympic Theater, 14th street, for many consecutive weeks, is apparently Minskys' strongest attraction, for they have billed her extensively, including cards in street cars, and "Fido" gave the audience first a glimpse of her gorgeous golden cape and then discarded the cape to give them a close-up view of her voluptuous form, not in the oriental dances expected, but in a classical Spanish dance. "Fido" evidently sensed the locale and danced accordingly.

No one will dispute Joe Rose's ability to produce and present burlesque stock, and he did himself proud as far as the production of the opening show, for the scene and lighting effects were far above par for stock and the comedy "bits" were sure-fire hits. Let it be said to the credit of the company in general that they sensed the difference in the locality and patronage and conducted themselves accordingly. But Rose, not content with pleasing the Harlemites who had drifted in out of curiosity, went out of his way to please the moral degenerates from the lower East Side with innuendo for suggestiveness in lines and action that will, if continued, jeopardize the

"MISS NEW YORK, JR."

Featuring Billy "Grogan" Spencer
A "Mutual Burlesque" attraction. Produced by Billy "Grogan" Spencer. Dances and music arranged by Marie Mayfield. Presented by Oppenheimer and Myers week of September 1.

THE CAST—Billy Spencer, Art Mayfield, Anna Armstrong, Ida Blanchard, Babe Quinn, Nat Anson.

The show opens with a full-stage set, foyer with center stairway leading to floral conservatory, with an ensemble of statuesque choristers in attractive costumes and barelegs, singing in harmony and dancing in unison on a novel number.

Fred Reese, a manly appearing straightman, with clear diction, appeared as an evening-dressed devil tempting the masculines with Gaminnes.

Nat Anson, a classy juvenile, and Ida Blanchard, a titian-tinted, ever-smiling soubret, in a vocalistic diet, sang to encores.

Anna Armstrong, a dazzling blond, regal appearing, leading lady, brought on Comique Billy "Grogan" Spencer, in his usual make-up and mannerism, and Art Mayfield, a putty-faced, bewiskered, ever-smiling tramp, for a fast and funny dialog.

Babe Quinn, the Dresden Doll soubret, breezed onto the stage in an ensemble number in which she was the personification of daintiness, pep and personality, enhanced by exceptional singing and dancing ability. She was followed in turn by Anna Armstrong, who proved title to prima donna, and Soubret Blanchard, in their respective numbers.

Prima Armstrong then staged the phony piano playing "bit" with Comique Spencer at piano and Comique Mayfield with hand organ. Comique Mayfield appeared in front of drum for a monolog and singing specialty of parodies, closing with a yodel that captured the house.

Juvenile Anson reappeared in a full-stage, fancy interior set, leading a number in which his singing was only equaled by his dancing, which was far above par.

Straight Reese, Comique Spencer and Mayfield, with Prima Armstrong, Soubret Blanchard and Soubret Quinn, then worked the jealous wags and Flossie, the actress, "bit". The entire company came on for the finale.

The second part opened with a typical Western-ranch set for the principals to participate in a burlesque bad-man slaver of woman with Soubret Quinn the cry baby for comiques' bank-rolls. In this scene Soubret Quinn could have held up the stage indefinitely with a song number in which she was followed by Soubret Blanchard to encores.

Juvenile Anson in front of a Western pictorial drop staged a hold-up "bit" well burlesqued by Comiques Spencer and Mayfield.

A Western-saloon interior was the playground for the entire company, with Straight Reese as the classier bartender being bilked by the comiques for drinks, until Comique Spencer became the bootleg booze mixer of fancy drinks. In this scene Prima Armstrong, in the guise of a cowgirl, put over a laughing drunk that was a classic of its kind, entirely free of all objectionable features. In this scene Juvenile Anson further demonstrated his cleverness in dancing a la wooden soldier. The entire company came on for the close of show.

COMMENT

The scenery is new and apropos to the "hits", the gowning and costuming attractive. This is especially applicable to Prima Armstrong, who made five changes of form-fitting gowns, and stage creations that would grace any Broadway show, and she wore them like one to the manner born. Soubrets Quinn and Blanchard made frequent changes of stunning costumes that added much to their personal appearance.

The choristers ran to pretty faces, statuesque forms, and show careful direction in the dances and ensembles, credited on the program to Marie Mayfield, a stranger to us, but evidently a master in the art of dancing instruction. The choristers worked with a will and changed costumes frequently, apropos to the scenes in which they appeared.

Taking the production and presentation in its entirety, it is a typical burlesque show with plenty of fast and funny comedy, along some-what unusual lines, free of double entendre and anything objectionable. Comique Spencer and Mayfield make frequent changes of grotesque attire, while Straight Reese and Juvenile Anson incline to more classy attire.

While the masculines are responsible for the greater part of the comedy, the feminines principals get ample opportunity to garner many laughs on their own account, and so particularly well in their song numbers, sharing honors respectively through the show.

There is every indication of a co-operative spirit in this company, no one evidencing any inclination to hold the center of the stage to the exclusion of others. Other companies can do likewise with profit to the show and pleasure to the patrons of Mutual Burlesque.

CHATTER FROM CLEVELAND

Zelda Sweeney left the Al Reeves Show in Cleveland, O., and jumped into Philadelphia. On my recent trip to New York City had a great time visiting many friends there. Jackie King gave a wonderful dinner for our party, which included Arthur Gerstaecker, Red Watson and the writer, at her home on Audubon avenue, New York. At Newark, N. J., Pat White did the honors, and Irene Cassini, Billy Welp, M. Domihalek and Elsie Norton showed us the bright lights. At Coney Island had a glorious time with Charley Perez and Princess Helena, who are working at Rosen's Wonderland for their second season. In Washington, D. C., said hello to Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lane. In Buffalo, N. Y., had a nice visit with Babe Watson, the younger sister of the Watson Sisters, Fanny and Kitty, Babe and Billy Van Dyne, manager of the Lafayette Theater in Buffalo, entertained us with a remarkable fish fry. Motored 1,616 miles in ten days and had to be back in the stacks. Visited Jack Pappay at the Bellevue Hospital, New York. Jack is glad to hear from his many friends, and after having been so close to the goal of St. Paul, says he hopes he won't be forgotten now that he is recuperating. He sends his regards to all his friends.

Jack Stahl is back with us again, after having a fling at Detroit. Jack says Cleveland feels like home.

Geneva Phillips, tired of the Gay White Way, exited from the St. Paul Hotel, New York City, with a small shove.

Louis Jones seems as much at home around the Olympic, Fourteenth street, New York City, as he does around the Empire on Ninth street, this city.

Mildred Cozlerre was the recipient of very sad news August 29. Her brother, Edward Hoy, was instantly killed, and her father, Harry Hoy, 40, B. & O. railway mechanic, injured in an accident. Miss Cozlerre left immediately for Newark, O., and telephoned that her father didn't seem to have much chance to recover. She was working at Vall's Black Cat Theater.

Jack Seger is presenting cracker-jack bills at the Black Cat and Billy Vail is to be complimented upon his management. The complete cast there includes Billy Mike Kelly, Mark Lea, Ed Labor, Jack Harrington, Harry L. Moore, Bonnie Bernard, Tom Vicks, Hal Hardy, Mildred Cozlerre, Millie Lovelidge, Nellie Crawford, Peggy Ann Bert, Maudie Hilton, Jack LaTours, Silver Visions, Violetta, the Three Hot Shots, Walter Pat's, Pat White and Edward Gary, and a chorus comprising Elsie Kelly, May DeVera, June Lawrence, Dassy Bedford, Ethel Gaston, Eva C. Miller, Evelyn Williams, Mildred Starkey, Alice Starkey, Gladys Lovejoy, Margaret Lovejoy, Hazel Harrington, Mickey Hamilton, Virginia Fare, Gene Wallace, Gertrude Ward, Mary Robbins, Louise White, Frances White, Mackey Campbell, Blanche Davis, Violet Willis, Cell Bayer and Margaret Doyd. Chas. Bartunek's Orchestra includes Frank Juzek, violin, V. E. Schneider, piano, Jack T. Polkanski, sax; Ray Gravel, cornet, Chas. Bartunek, trombone; James Schelle, tuba; John Pfannenmayer, drums.

The many friends of Val Emiline and Bobby Emiline will be pleased to learn the latter's five-year-old son, Jimmy, was accidentally drowned in Pittsburg the past week.

Foreign Actors Must Join Equity
 THE exact status of foreign actors who may come to this country, whether engaged abroad or not, was decided at a meeting of the Equity Council August 26.

All managers, whether members of the Managers' Protective Association or producing independent, were informed of this action in letters sent out by Equity's Assistant Executive Secretary. The letter read as follows:

"The Council at its meeting held Tuesday, August 26, 1924, passed the following resolution:

"Moved, seconded and carried that the Assistant Executive Secretary send a letter to all Independent Producing Managers as well as the Managers' Protective Association advising them of the conditions under which English actors should be engaged when engagements are negotiated in foreign countries. The feeling of the Council was that the managers should inform the actors that if they were not members of the English Actors' Association it would be necessary for them to take out membership in the Actors' Equity Association upon their arrival here."

"We were instructed to inform all producing managers of this action, and accordingly addressing this letter to you. If you will cooperate with us as suggested in the resolution above, whenever you or your representative are engaging actors in foreign countries (particularly the English actor), it will avoid confusion and misunderstanding. The foreign actor if he understands the situation will not feel that he is being imposed upon when he is requested to become an Equity member, and the manager will be meeting the conditions of the Independent Equity Contract."

"We would appreciate an acknowledgment of this letter, as our desire is to promote and maintain harmonious relations between actor and manager as well as to protect the interests of both under the Equity contracts."

Similar letters were sent all English producing managers in the West End Managers' Association, The Touring Managers' Association, also to the Actors' Association and the editors of The Stage and The Era.

Stage Hands Sign

We are informed that the threatened trouble with the stage hands and musicians' unions, growing out of disputes over wage scales, has been adjusted in the following cities: Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Indianapolis. The scales in several of the smaller towns have not been adjusted, but continued conferences will undoubtedly lead to a satisfactory and harmonious settlement to all concerned before this week ends. We understand that negotiations for these new agreements were conducted on the basis of two-year contracts. We are glad indeed that these controversies have been ironed out, for it permits the theatrical season to get under way without jeopardizing the early productions, and means, we hope, a longer and more prosperous season for manager, actor, stage hand and musician. With the adoption of contracts satisfactory to all, the theatrical season of 1924-25 should be a banner one in spite of it being Presidential year.

Not All Tonics Make 'Em Grow

I am looking for a name for my new melo-drama," Langdon McCormack, the well-known author, remarked. "It is a hair raiser and I want something appropriate."

A bystander innocently inquired: "Why not all it 'Tonic'?"

Labor Day Week Record for Openings

Labor Day week, which is generally conceded to be the opening of the regular theatrical season, certainly proved that this is so when seventeen productions announced their Broadway premieres. This establishes a record for New York openings for a one-week period. The previous largest number of openings during a single week had been twelve. Here's the list: Earl Carroll's "Vanities", "Figs", "Glory", "Top Hole", "Rose Marie", "Hayes", Hassard Short's "Ritz Revue", "Passing Show", "The Tantrum", "The Haunted House", "Be Yourself", "The Green Beetle", "Nerves", "Izzy", "Rain" and "Stepping Stones". Critics reviewing these attractions will be kept on the jump, and it is possible that some of the plays will be well started on a run or have moved on before the important critics get around to them.

Progress of Little Theaters

The September Little Theater issue of Theater Arts Monthly notes that "The little theaters represented are not only as they would have been years ago—in the metropolitan centers of the country—there are theaters in Texas, Toronto, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Kansas City, New Orleans, Berkeley, Rose Valley and a score of other places, large and small. Moreover, there are theaters in college workshops, art schools, and even in public high schools, all of which are doing splendid work. Nor is America alone represented. One of the first illustrations is of a set (now on exhibition in Wexley, England at the British Empire Exposition) which Walter Sinclair did for a production by the Amateur Dramatic Club of Hantsburg."

"One of the striking features is a proclamation by Louis Blaylock, Mayor of Dallas, Tex., in which he names a Little Theater week, and asks the citizens to join in support of the theater for the good of the community."

Laborers Who Get Their Hire

Newspapers are always turning up good reasons why it was the managers who cracked under the strain of the recent season, and the actors who maintained a solid front.

The New York correspondent of The Evening Express and well-known critic Burns Myers, who has always been most friendly to Equity, writing a few days ago of the sudden demise of "Dr. David's Day," said:

"Another phase of Dr. David's failure interested me. None of the actors lost a cent. Financed by persons of unknown financial responsibility, employing a cast of a dozen players, whatever other debts there may have been, the salaries of the players at least were paid.

"In the old days the quick failure invariably left a string of layovers, but when actors in its wake. Having rehearsed for from three to five weeks for nothing, they were usually dismissed with the absent manager's regrets and told that they might reasonably expect a resumption of the tour as soon as he could make a few simple but necessary financial arrangements.

"In the case of Dr. David the players gave up three weeks to rehearsals, for which they received nothing. But they were paid two weeks' salary for the four days they played in town and the two or three trial performances they gave out of town. Because that salary was held in cash for them before the Equity organization, that has been so much in the papers of late, would the show go on. Do you wonder that the actors are loyal to Equity?"

Another Carter Melo. for Films

"Bedford's Hope", one of the most famous melodramas from the pen of Lincoln J. Carter, has been sold to the screen. Of the thirty-six melodramas written and produced by Mr. Carter, "The Fast Mail", "The Tornado", "The Eleventh Hour", "Two Little Waifs" and "The Arizona Express" have already been screened.

These plays lived their day and were enjoyed by those who saw them, and we have no doubt but what many a man and woman who sees them in their picture form will get as many thrills as when they were boys and girls.

Managers Out of Trenches

Commenting upon the end of hostilities by members of the Round Robin Group of managers, and their resumption of production about Labor Day, The New York Evening Sun and Globe recently declared:

"Evidently the present dispute between the actors and the managers will not end, as the first split did some years ago, with a dramatic climax. After the playhouses had been closed for some weeks the trouble was suddenly settled, and within a few hours the cur of Bacchus was again traveling at its accustomed rate of speed. No such sudden and definite conclusion seems likely to heal the present rupture in the relations of these important figures in the domain of Punch and Judy.

"Equity has not melted with Fidelity, altho it has recently declared that the Fidelity goats may act in the same companies with the Equity lambs and be none the worse for the experience. The Producing Managers' Association still exists, and so does the more recently formed Managers' Protective Association. In spite of the declarations of the so-called 'Round Robin' managers who represent the picturesque old guard, enterprise is not at a standstill.

"A. L. Erlanger opened a newly rented theater Labor Day. David Belasco has set to work with all the energy accumulated during his two months of vacation, because he feels that the Equity in admitting Fidelity actors to the same companies indicates a desire for harmony. Sam H. Harris, another ally of the Round Robin group, is up to his neck in preparations for the coming year, and Arthur Hopkins is under way with his ambitious preparations. C. B. Dillingham never had more ambitious plans for a single season. So it is difficult for one unacquainted with all the politics of the situation to realize that there really is any trouble in the theater today, especially since Mr. Shubert and his allies made their peace with the actors long ago. Their activities have never been interrupted.

"Mr. Belasco says that he has begun to work again because he is able to select his casts with only the acquisition of the best available artists in view. A. L. Erlanger objects to 'Equity shop' on the ground that he wanted to be at liberty to cast his plays as he chose. Sam H. Harris and Arthur Hopkins would probably give expression to the same sentiments as the grounds of their objection to Equity shop.

"New Equity has made it possible in spite of the unhealed breach between the various parties in the profession of the theater for actors of both societies—Equity and Fidelity—to work together. Thus has the closed shop been eliminated from the art of the stage. The closed shop is a suffocating condition in any art, and its disappearance from the domain of Equity has done more to clear the air than any other single act ever could. The dispute between the managers and the players may drag along like a wounded snake before it reaches a conclusion. Yet one great thing has been accomplished. Indeed, nothing else that the actors demanded seemed important in comparison with it. That was the defeat of the closed shop."

With this last paragraph it is not possible for Equity to agree. Altho it is true that Equity has modified its original demand for a complete Equity shop, it was wholly as a matter of policy, in view of the particular facts of the case, and not because of a consciousness of anything peculiarly sinful in either Equity shop or closed shop.

$137,000,000 for Year's Movies

A $137,000,000 program of film play production and building activities has been arranged for the coming year by motion picture concerns operating in and about Los Angeles, according to an announcement recently made by Joseph H. Schenck, president of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

Of this amount Schenck said $72,000,000 will be spent in the production of the 680 pictures scheduled for filming during the year and the remainder on new buildings and equipment.

This announcement is the essence of optimism, for if the motion picture producers contemplate spending $72,000,000 in pictures in a year the greater portion of it will go toward

Chorus Equity Association of America

JOHN EMERSON, President.

DOROTHY BRYANT, Executive Secretary

THIRTY-SEVEN new members joined the Chorus Equity in the past week.

We are holding checks in settlement of claims for Carl Judd, Charles Jones, Emma Williams, Dorothy Bare.

Anyone knowing the address of Wesley Spears or Daphne Ford will please notify the office.

Members should insist on getting their contracts when they are signed. Don't let the manager take both copies of your contract after you have signed.

This season it will be impossible for a suspended member of Equity to work in a musical comedy. If you violate your contract with your manager you really compel your association to suspend you. If you have any doubt as to the meaning of any clause of your contract consult your organization before taking action which might not be in accordance with the provisions of the Equity contract. Be sure that you are right before taking a stand.

In one day we have had reports of two companies that violated Equity rulings with the consent of the Equity members in the company, or rather the Equity members agreed to the violation with the manager and then reported the matter to the association. No member has the right to make any agreement with a manager which violates the Equity contract, and it isn't safe to make such an agreement with the type of man who would try to intimidate you into an arrangement for his own benefit which might result in your suspension from the association. The members in neither of these companies meant to go against the Equity. They thought that it was the easiest way out to agree with the manager and then report. Should your manager suggest that you take any action that does not seem to you in accordance with Equity principles, tell him you are unable to give an answer until you consult your association.

Do you hold a card paid to November 1, 1924?
 DOROTHY BRYANT, Executive Secretary.

KATHLEEN KIRKWOOD, at the Triangle Theater, presents the most artistic "Salome" that has been staged in New York in some time.

The Triangle has always specialized in "Salome". In "Salome" it is giving equal attention to voice, so that the Triangle is a voice theater of unusual interest.

The actors at the Triangle have "Greek voices" with weight, dignity and range in dramatic reading that make their work distinguished in the best sense of forceful authority.

Stephanie D'Este, who plays the part of Salome, has a remarkable voice of intangible beauty and expansiveness. It has Oriental richness of color, softness of texture and warmth of feeling.

Joseph Battle, by fine voice and inspired acting, made Jokanaan distinctly impressive. The outstanding manliness of the character was unusual in this part.

Della Mounts made a valuable addition to the company. Her method was slightly more serious than that of some of the others, but she fitted the general scheme of vocalization and the strength of her reading and characterization was appropriate.

The word "type" is often repugnant to the actor because it frequently hits him as a slap in the face when he is looking for a job. There is no doubt that the type-hunting mania of managers often does an injustice both to the manager and to the artist.

The Spoken Word

and to persons who do not know him intimately he sometimes gives the impression of being distant and snobbish. He doesn't wish to give the impression of being a snob, and knowing that the part he was after was a college "type" of excellent breeding, he dropped into the manager's office in his best mood of goodfellowship.

have later learned to my confusion that it wasn't. The dramatic artist, if he is really an artist, often has many voices, and only long acquaintance with his work, and perhaps a personal acquaintance, can tell you what his natural voice really is.

In "Rain", which I saw recently for the second time in two years, I was impressed by the fact that character voices—"type" voices, if you please—are appropriate to every part. There is hardly a voice that would satisfy your ear if you were looking for a play of standard English and beautiful speech.

Perhaps Robert Kelly has the worst voice and the worst diction of anyone in the company, from the viewpoint of ideal speech. But in this warped, garbled character of the missionary we do not object. The voice and speech is pretty much what we expect, and without much contrast is appropriate to "Rain".

Jeanne Engels' voice is a happy combination of something eternally good in human nature and something only transiently bad in human character. The low pitch of her voice gives a certain poise and reserve to Sadie Lampton's nature, a depth and sorrow of life that the missionary cannot see.

It is not my purpose to write an argument in favor of "type" voices, which limit the actor to "type" either in the manager's office or on the stage, and in "Rain" it is not my business to know whether these voices are assumed or whether they represent the individuality of the persons assigned to these several parts.

There is something in "type" wherever we meet our fellowmen, whether it be love at first sight between man and woman or the shrewdness of a salesman on the road setting up his customer. Considering that the actor and the dramatist represent life in all its complexities there is considerable latitude in voice and speech when we come to cover the theater as a whole, from vaudeville down—or up—as you choose to put it.

Answers

B. C.—"Brethren" is the archaic plural of "brothers", often used in the church. The word is pronounced in two syllables, "breth-rin", with the th-sound voiced (breθ-rin).

"Christian" is ("krist-jun). Readers who do not study the Key carefully are confused by the (j). This symbol should always be associated with the i-sound in "i". In the international Phonetic Alphabet the (j) represents the i-sound "glided" as in "yes" (jes) and the sound is classified as a consonant. The word "genius" is usually pronounced (dʒi-ni-ʊ-s).

"Christianity" is (kris-ti-an-i-ti) with stress on the third syllable.

"Connoisseur" is usually (kaw-ni-'su:), remembering that the (su:) is pronounced like "sir". But (kaw-ni-'sjoo-n) is also used in educated speech, although the former is preferred.

"Ignoramus" is (ig-no-'rei-mns) with the (rel) pronounced like "ray". This word is frequently mispronounced. I have heard it in the pulpit pronounced as ("ra-mus), and I recall Clella Benjamin on the stage calling it ("rah-mus).

"Raphael" the painter is usually ("ra-fel-el) with the (a) in "at", but ("ri-fel-el) is also used. This name has become common property in the world and is usually Anglicized, although "Italiana" ("rah-fel-el) is preferred by some. (Continued on page 42)

SYNONYMS

IN A well-known passage Robert of Gloucester (ab. 1290) speaks about the relation of the two languages in England. He says: "England came into Normandy's hand; and the Normans at that time could speak only their own language, and spoke French just as they did at home, and had their children taught in the same manner, so that people of rank in this country who came of their blood all stick to the same language that they received of them, for if a man knows no French people will think little of him."

In a few cases the process of assimilation was facilitated by the fact that a French word happened to resemble an old native one; this was sometimes the natural consequence of French having in some previous period borrowed the corresponding word from Germanic dialect. Thus no one can tell exactly how much modern "rich" owes to OE. "ric", meaning powerful or rich, and how much to French "riche"; the noun (Fr. and ME.) "riches" (now "riches") supplanted the early ME. "richeleoni". The old native verb "choose" was supplanted with the noun "chose" from Fr. "choix". OE. "hergian" and OE. "herian", "harian", run together in Mod. E. "harry"; OE. "lege" and Fr. "leg" run together in "lay", meaning lodge or fence. The modern "gain" (noun and verb) was borrowed in the fifteenth century from French "gaign", gain; gaigner, gaignier. It. "guadagnare", a Germanic loan, but it curiously coincided with an earlier noun, "gain" (also spelt "gein, geyn, gayne, etc.), which meant "advantage, use, avail, benefit, remedy", and a verb, "gain" (gayne), meaning to be suitable or useful, avail, serve, both from Old Norse. When French "isle" (now ile) was adopted it could not fail to remind the English of their old "island, island", and eventually it corrupted the spelling of the latter into "island". "Navon" (now spelled "navon") recalled OE. "nafa", "nanva", (nanyva, Fr. nautique, meaning rotund, troop) recalled OE. "menigeol" (OE. menigeol), and "lake" (OE. "lak", meaning stream, river. There is some confusion between Eng. "rest" (repose) and OE. "rest" (reminder). In grammar, too, there were a few correspondences, as when nouns had the vowels and the corresponding verbs the voiced consonants; French "us", "user", now "use", sb. pronounced with an s-sound, vb. with a z-sound, just as Eng. "house", sb. pronounced with an s-sound, the verb with a z-sound; Eng. "grif-grive" just as "half-halve". Note also the formation of nouns in -er (baker, etc.), which is hardly distinguishable from French formations in words like "carpenter" (Fr. -ier), "interpreter" (ME. Interpretour, Fr. -eur), etc. But on the whole such more or less accidental similarities between the two languages were few in number and could not materially assist the English population in learning the new words that were flooding their language.

A greater assistance may perhaps have been derived from a habit which may have been common in conversational speech and which was at any rate uncommon in writing, that of using a French word side by side with its native synonym, the latter serving more or less openly as an interpretation of the former for the benefit of those who were not yet familiar with the more refined expression.

—JESPERSEN'S "Growth and Structure of the English Language".

and a regular fellow. His smiling winsomeness threw the manager off the scent and that was the end of the interview. There is no room for an argument after the manager has given his one-glance decision as to type. This is a case where the actor can reasonably object to superficial decisions about his ability to act a certain part.

The accident of type sometimes stands the actor in good stead, for it enables him to fill a part quite effectively in spite of other limitations. Some time ago I made some favorable remark about the work of a young actress who was supposed very early in the play to give the audience a distinct impression of the type of character she was playing. The actress did this successfully and to her credit. When she read my comment she remarked to a friend that she didn't think much of my judgment. She considers that she has a bad voice and that anyone who could hear it and not condemn it has a screw loose somewhere. This is very commendable in the young woman, the fact that she is so dissatisfied with the quality of her voice. She doesn't always intend to play parts with bad voices. She doesn't intend to be a bad-voice "type". I admire her judgment in this direction. But in a part where a bad voice is pretty much in character, the impression out front must necessarily be that she plays the part well, all other things being in her favor. How is the audience to know that she is speaking in her natural tone? I have been caught in this trap several times, for I have assumed the character voice of the actor to be his natural one and even if we miss a word we are more likely to conclude that the missionary is ignorant than to feel that the actor is falling down on his job. Although distinctness, it must always be remembered, is of first importance in the theater and for reasons that need no argument. Even so there is a difference between feeling that certain failures are in character or distinctly out of character.

Even Fritz Williams, in the Doctor's part, has a certain loss-of-voice huskiness in his tone, a thing not to be desired as a general thing. But "Rain" has an atmosphere of fog and depression, and Mr. Williams' voice is not without some significance in this connection. And so all the way thru the play we might discuss "type" voices, from the shrill, piercing note in the character of the missionary's wife to the lazy languor of the fat teacher, played by Ripley Holmes. In "The White Cargo" there is better speech than there is in "Rain", but the motivation and story of the two plays is slightly different in this respect. The better speech in "The White Cargo" harks back to the better days of the men whose lives have drifted away by slow corrosion. In "Rain" there is no harking back to anything except the missionary's life. We are concerned with incidents of a few hours, and the concentration of mood in a terrible present, where a God-forsaken country and a God-forsaken missionary denote the bleakness of existence. There isn't the same "fight" and resistance in the atmosphere that there is in "The White Cargo". For that reason the concentration of depression

Stage Costumes and Accessories

The Berengaria not only borrows the most notable Prince in the world to our shores, but it brought news of the very latest style innovations as well, considerations of greater importance to the woman of the stage than the visit of His Royal Highness.

Designers and buyers, who returned on the Berengaria, approached by the fashion reporter at the pier and at various hotels in New York are unanimous in stressing the importance of beads, of metal or color.

Ever long many brilliant evening gowns will greet the eye, as importations show a lavish use of metals and metal laces as well as an extensive use of metal beading in gold and silver. Gay embroideries also play an important part, laces, chiffons and costumes lace embroidered or beaded. The fabrics designated as crêtonnes have the flower motifs overlaid emphasizing the color scheme of each flower.

Colored-pearl necklaces are to be very popular, they claim. There are, for instance, necklaces of pink, green and gun-metal tinted pearls, the idea being to match as nearly as possible the color of the gown.

Pearl sets comprising necklace, earring, bracelets and ring are also among the "novelties" displays.

Amber necklaces are worn with yellow frocks. Chokers and festoon necklaces are to be in vogue.

The shades designated for evening wear are the fuchsias, reds and Lavin blue.

Fashion Notes

Skirts in Paris are very short. Fashion experts, however, say that the length in America will vary from ten to sixteen inches from the ground.

Black is designated as the leading color for daytime wear. It is often relieved by color beige holds second place.

Florence Walton, the dancer, wears an unusually attractive dance frock of the bouffant type. The very wide ruffle skirt is composed of varying tones of brown and orange. The bodice, very tight fitting, curves in at the waistline and comes over the skirt in an oval instead of a point. Festoons of flowers in harmonizing colors trim the sides of the skirt.

New top coats for women have a slightly defined waistline.

Here is an idea for the woman who could create her own feather fan: Five pins instead of, of course, in graduated sizes, like steps may be pasted or sewn on a foundation. A large American Beauty rose conceals the handle or pasteboard foundation and streamers of several tones to match the several tones of the plumes fall from the back of the fan. When carrying the fan nonchalantly throw the ends of streamers over the wrist. The effect is exceedingly smart.

Another novel idea: A woman in London was seen wearing a long black coat, collar and cuffs trimmed with auburn hair and the front of her cream-colored blouse similitrly trimmed. Evidently she decided that the black-clipped from her head to attain the bolded coiffure, should fulfill a mission in life.

The bathing beauties of France and England who dipped their faces in tea to give them the new "crème", made the pleasing discovery that tea had the same effect on the human skin. So now they are taking strong tea bath to make certain of a nice even coat of tea. Not a bad suggestion for the actress who wishes to become a tanned lass for next week's bill.

Zelda Sears has written a play for George MacFarlane, who has not been seen on Broadway since "The Springtime of Youth". It is a comedy with incidental music by Harold Levy, who wrote the score for "The Magic Ring".

"TIN LIZZIE" FOR BROADWAY

"The Tin Lizzie", which opened in New York last week at the Bronx Opera House, will be given a regular Broadway premiere shortly under the management of John Cort. Featured in the cast are Al Lyell and Carlton Macreer recruited from vaudeville, while others in the company are Alexander Clarke, Charles Lewis, Dorothy Blackburn, Richard Gordon, Marie Haynes, John Boyd, Dolly Lewis and William Forman. The comedy was staged by Priestly Morrison.

THAT CERTAIN GAGE SPANISH SAILOR!

Several weeks ago we mentioned a Gage Spanish sailor in the Stage Styles column, with the result that we have been deluged with requests for information about said hat. It is such an extraordinary creation, this Gage Spanish sailor, with its air of audacity and daringly wide brim that a wordy description will not do it justice, so we have asked our artist to "say it with lines".

The Gage sailor is made of an ultra quality black satin with black leather band stencilled with red and green designs. An ornament of steel, framed with a border composed of narrow black satin rat-tail braid is posed on the front of the crown. This fascinating hat, which is a splendid suggestion for the Spanish show costume ensemble, has not yet reached the retail shops, altho we have made special arrangements with Gage to procure it thru a certain retail shop for our readers, which means of course that the hat must be made to order. The price is $45, and when ordering it will be wise to state your head size.

A DOG COLLAR TO ENHANCE BEAUTY

The "dog collar" illustrated had just reached the studio of a certain specialist in feminine enhancements when we worked in. He held it up, a shimmering mass of crystals, for our inspection, and we capitulated immediately to its charm. To our mind it is the "dog collar" ideal, delicate and graceful, just the thing to suggest the affluence of princess or queen. The line-cut crystal beads glisten with the soft brilliance of dewdrops, each one hand-cut and hand-poled. While we prefer the blue-crystal design, the same may be procured in steel and jet beads or crystal with black designs. The collar is made to order, according to your individual neck measurement, for $12.

There is nothing quite so flattering as a crystal dog collar. It imparts a youthful contour to neck and throat and gives one an aristocratic appearance.

THE NEWEST TYPE OF CORSETLETT

is illustrated on the opposite page. It is designed to perform a double service—to impart slim, straight lines and to afford ample support to the bust and abdomen. In fact it is a corset and brassiere combined and may be had in the several styles here listed.

Made entirely of brocade, $3.50; with brassiere top of Jersey silk and skirt section of brocade, $5; made entirely of heavy Jersey silk with four surgical elastic inserts (two front and two back), as illustrated, $19.50.

THE ART OF MAKEUP EXPLAINED SIMPLY

James Young's book, entitled "Making Up", gives valuable information on the art of makeup presented with a concise simplicity that enables one to grasp quickly every point on which he touches. Chapters on the effects of high lights and low lights are particularly helpful, teaching the actor how to soften or emphasize conspicuous facial characteristics. A chapter of the book which is profusely illustrated is devoted to delightfully informal talks on makeup by prominent professionals. Stated bound, with large, easily read print, $1.50.

A WATER-PROOF LASH DARKENER

One of the most popular articles of makeup used by the screen artists is a water-proof lash and brow darkener. After one has made up one's lashes and brows with this effective liquid one may shed oodles of tears (real or artificial) without spoiling the effect. The liquid will not run. It is waterproof and sells for 50 cents a bottle. Please include 5 cents for postage. Order thru The Shopper.

A KISS-PROOF ROUGE STICK

is another valuable article to the makeup box. It is waterproof and will stay on all day. Becomes slightly orange when applied to the lips, a shade which blends well with all complexions. The price of the kiss-proof rouge is $1.00. It is a matter of preference as one may order plain, cork, gold, silver, wood or straw. Price of these special cigars are as follows: With any marking or device, either monogram, crest, coat of arms, that is not too complicated, are $25 per thousand and $12.50 for five hundred. Orders less than 500 cigars are $2 per hundred and may be had with initials in block, script or Old English type. Names or wording are 50 cents additional on hundred orders. With monogram requiring a wood cut, in orders under 500, the customer must pay $2 additional on the first order only, which is the actual cost of the cut. The cut can be used on all future orders with the same marking, therefore there is no extra charge on any orders after the first. Cigaretts may be had packed in boxes of tin or cardboard hundreds, the tin boxes keeping cigarettes in perfect condition for one year.

FOR THE FLORID COMPLEXION

If your skin is too florid you should keep on hand a box of Elizabeth Arden's Poudre de Lilas, an evening powder of palest orchid tint. Its mission is to subdue a flushed skin and to lend delicacy under artificial light. A generously-sized box, which will last for months, $2.75.

THE TANNED SKIN AND EVENING GOWN

present a strange incongruity, especially if the gown be of an extremely delicate shade. With a bit of devotion to the art of beautification one may restore the skin to its former fairness by the use of Madame Helena Rubenstein's Beauty Cream. The beauty grains whiten and refine the skin. If the skin is very dark, with freckles and other discolorations, you will need Mme. Rubenstein's Special Bleach to use in conjunction with the beauty grains. The beauty grains are $1 and the complexion bleach is $1.50, making the combination $2.50. Order thru The Shopper.

A CREAM ROUGE FOR NATURALNESS

So many actresses noted for their lovely stage presence have advocated the use of a cream rouge for naturalness and softness that we are beginning to wonder why there are still those who use the dry rouge, which is really hard on the face. Of course there are times when a dry rouge is essential, but certainly not for the youthful makeup.

Elizabeth Arden has just the right cream rouge for the woman who prizes a rouge that appears vivacious under artificial lights. Since Paris has decreed that the fly cheek shall again be rouged the fashionable woman will renew her interest in rouges and she is bound to discover, if she is wise enough to experiment, that the cream rouge far exceeds the dry rouge for the youthful, soft-looking makeup. The price of Elizabeth Arden's rouge, by the way, is $2.50. There are four shades: Tangerine (ash blond), Apricot (fair complexion),

THE FIT OF DRESS COAT

"The evening coat is quite a problem," writes a correspondent. "When selecting a ready-made coat I always think of the old saying: 'You never know from where you sit how your picture is going to look.'"

A tailoring expert tells us that the reason why the dress coat is not always a success is that it is not properly cut to suit the individual. The perfect-fitting evening coat looks just right when it is cut scant in the forepart, which prevents the sides from meeting. The sides should drape back sufficiently to show a generous expanse of white waistcoat. When cut too full in front the corners above the waistline are thrown forward making the wearer appear stout and bulky. When properly cut the dress coat gives a man the appearance of being tall.

Just mention your head size. By snap brim we mean an adjustable brim, which may be worn at any angle your fancy dictates.

Do you wish to select your new fall suit from the style catalog of a smart New York tailor? Some of them are priced at $45. A request to The Shopper will bring you a copy.

Do you wear a soft cap when motor-ing or hiking? If so you will be wise to select one with a special ventilator in the visor which allows sufficient fresh air to circulate around the top of your head and keep it cool. An illustrated folder, showing the different styles of caps, priced from $2 to $5, will be sent you with the name of the nearest dealer from whom you may purchase it.

Keep up to date in the selection of your collar with a ladder and money grip. An illustrated folder, showing accessories of this description, costing but $1, will be sent you gratis on request.

When in need of radium paint, new stage lighting equipment which dispenses with gasolin shades, catalogs of plays, etc., write The Shopper, enclosing stamp for reply.

THEATRICAL MUTUAL ASSN.

By DAVID L. DONALDSON, Grand Sec'y-Treas. 899 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Office of Grand Secretary-Treasurer

So much has been said and written during the past years on the subject of T. M. A. Assn. and so many conflicting and divergent ideas and theories have been brought forward concerning the topic, that it has been exceedingly difficult for the rank and file of the brethren to determine just what is involved.

Some have interpreted it to mean that members of this order should undertake to assist others in the education of all the members as to the meaning of our motto, "Charity, Benevolence and Fidelity". Others have believed that this was simply an organization for the purpose of promoting the social welfare of certain classes of theatrical people, and still others have believed that it pertained to the mechanical end of the profession, and various other ideas.

Let anyone look over the records of the past sixty-one years and take full of the charitable grants that have been made to suffering ones that have been looked after, the widows and families that have been taken care of when let for rain, to cover in the mind and see if he does not believe that it is a good order to belong to.

After much and varied experience, I have come to the conclusion that we shall never accomplish our great task of T. M. A. education by depending upon written articles, no matter how eloquent they may be, but upon books on the subject for the reason that the rank and file do not read these books.

These are the ones we must wish to reach, and they must be reached orally through the body itself. Then they will spread the good word for the benefit of others who are still in the dark.

Now that the summer season is practically at an end and the majority of our members have located themselves for the coming season let every one of us get busy, talk about our order and ourselves and try to educate the members to organize and get others to do the same. Attend the meetings of your lodge, aided by your officers, assist them at all times and create a feeling of brotherhood that will permeate the atmosphere of your surrounding and bring others to the point of seeking admission to a good organization for all people in the amusement line.

Brother James Douglass, general secretary of Louisiella Lodge, No. 8, is another one of our Grand Lodge members who has always worked hard and faithfully for the welfare of our order. He became a Grand Lodge member by being elected to the office of fourth grand vice-president at St. Louis, Mo., in 1917, then grand trustee at Toledo, O., in 1919. Always on hand at all conventions, he was missed at our last session owing to severe eye trouble that has not improved so we do not know whether he will make the trip with us next year, but we hope for the best and will look for his smiling countenance.

Philadelphia Lodge, No. 3

Brother Charles J. Levering, treasurer, will conclude an eight-day visit with his son, C. J. Levering, Jr., at Detroit, Mich., September 10.

VIENNA

By BARNETT BRAVERMAN
Care Fremden Büro, Wiener Bank Verein
(American Express Co.)

VIENNA Aug. 15.—If I were Eugene O'Neill I would withdraw "Anna Christie" from European production, unless a platoon for punishment, despite the objection by one of Reinhardt's regisseurs at the Josef Stadler Theater, where "Anna Christie" was played and produced during Reinhardt's absence, the drama by O'Neill failed to register with Vienna theatergoers. The idea of a roughneck, blustering ship stoker in love with a woman of the streets is naive to the Viennese who are familiar with far more thrilling subtleties and episodes in the emotions between men and women than is evident in "Anna Christie". When it is realized that the Viennese are accustomed to such fare as Wedekind and Strindberg, it is easy to understand why O'Neill's play is regarded both weak and naive by them despite the fact that it may seem strong for American minds accustomed to repressed emotions and more or less veiled by puritanical reformists. In Berlin "Anna Christie" was withdrawn after it was on the boards for a day, but this, in a measure, was due in no small part to the elimination of the second act. Here in Vienna this play could have lasted longer if it had less naïveté and more appeal for the sophisticated Vienna theater patron.

A few words about the acting in "Anna Christie": I think the very talented Maria Fern fell down in her interpretation of a female social outcast. Her diction was too polished for a girl like Anna Christie. Her gestures contained too much good breeding for the part. And Dieterle, who played Burke, was attired in a Paris apache costume, with the exception that the blouse had lace trimmings at the cuffs; this garment was cut so low that it caused many a feminine remark about Dieterle's manly chest. Mme. Hartman was good as the old Swede's mistress, and Homolka, while he played his part (the father of Anna) well, sang a little too much for a man who is always cursing the "old devil sea". As for the settings, the coal barge had sails, and I never heard of coal barges having them; the interior of the saloon was more like that of a cheap Viennese coffee house than a Boston harbor booze-joint. In this case the settings, lacking conviction and reality, failed to function as means of helping the players put their acting across. I am sorry to record these impressions because I know how hard Fern, Dieterle, Homolka, others of the cast and Director Kalbeck worked to retain the spirit of O'Neill's play. It just happens that the European mind in these parts has been fed so long on Freud and the intricacies of matters psycho-analytic that when a play like "Anna Christie" comes along the reception accorded it is anything but enthusiastic. Then again, a play of this kind is sure to lose much vitality in the process of translation, however much the spirit of it may be followed. So I say to O'Neill: "If you want punishment and like it, then you'll let 'Anna Christie' be produced on the Continent; if you value your prestige, then play it only on the American and English speaking stage."

This is for motion picture directors and producers at home: "You American film producers have more money and better technical facilities than we Europeans, but you don't create better pictures because you lack one factor, which we possess. It is courage. We Europeans work with less money and limited technical equipment, but we produce pictures that are more artistic, more original and successful because we have courage. We don't imitate each other as you do. In the United States when a director produces a successful costume play all the other directors and producers begin turning out costume pictures. You have too many tricks and too much sentimentality in your films, but little real drama. But sentimentality, which is always insipid in any form of art, will pass from your films and new directors will appear who are cognizant of real dramatic values." This comment comes from Robert Wiene, who produced the brilliant "Der calligari's cabinet". I saw Wiene just after he had completed "Orlik's Hand" for Sach Films here. He showed photos of some of the scenes which are beautifully simple, suggesting somewhat the influence of Gordon Craig no matter how much that prophet may seed at the cinema.

A CONVENIENT SHAKESPEARE

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. Published by the Plymouth Publishing Company, 7 West 42d street, New York City.

When it comes to printing editions of Shakespeare there are as many ways of doing it as there are editions. They range all the way from those of a volume or more to a play to the single volume containing all the plays. They come on thick paper and thin; with and without notes; in large and small type. I don't suppose there is any author printed in so many diverse ways as Shakespeare.

This preamble is to direct attention to a new edition of Shakespeare which has many points of appeal, especially to the traveling player, and I purpose pointing them out in detail rather than dealing with the subject matter of the volume.

First, this edition comes from the Oxford University Press and exhibits all the careful attention to detail for which this press is famous; it is printed in good-sized type; it is beautifully bound and in full leather. So much can be obtained in other editions. What makes this particular volume attractive to me, aside from its fine dress, is the compactness of it. Here is a book containing every word written by or attributed to Shakespeare, printed on 1,352 pages of India paper, and only an inch thick. Such a book can be easily carried by every player, no matter how small his trunk, and he has ready at hand the greatest inspiration, the finest words, ever penned by man.

Further, this edition is wholly without notes and that is a great blessing for those who want to read their Shakespeare and absorb his beauties. There is no doubt that the student finds help in an annotated Shakespeare, particularly when the notes are the work of a Gollancz or a Furnivall; but for reading gave me the text without the notes, so that I should not be diverted from the main purpose at hand and cast a wandering eye to the bottom of the page. A useful feature has also been incorporated in the book in the form of a thumb index, whereby one may turn to the particular play he wants to read instantaneously and without consulting any table of contents.

A thorough acquaintance with Shakespeare is almost a necessity to anyone playing on the English-speaking stage. Unfortunately, the complete works of our greatest dramatist are usually associated with a library edition of many volumes. I am sure it will be good news to many of my readers that an unabridged Shakespeare, in good type, is now available in a form hardly larger than a monthly magazine. I wholeheartedly commend their attention to this volume, especially to those on the road. Books must be small and light if they are to go into the actor's trunk and this book will be found ideal for that purpose.

A NOVEL OF THE CIRCUS

TOMMY WITH THE BIG TENTS. By Harvey W. Root. Published by Harper & Brothers, 49 East 33d street, New York City. $1.75.

While designed principally for juvenile consumption, there is much in Tommy With the Big Tents to interest the adult reader. He will be held by the descriptions of circus life, the manner in which the big show is taken apart and put together each day, and if he is in search of information about the circus he will find it here also.

There is so much about a circus to make a story of that I wonder an author chooses to use the "Hex, Rubel, light and the train wreck." They seem to be necessary in every circus story and Harvey W. Root uses them once more. In all fairness, tho, this novel is designed for the juvenile trade and too much should not be expected from it by the grown-up reader. I did not like the story, but the circus descriptions interested me much. If this information is what you want, get Tommy With the Big Tents, read it and then pass it along to a boy. He will have a great time with it.

New Oxford Returns to Vaude.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Naturally this is excellent news and certainly goes to justify the oft-repeated assertion that "vaude" was slowly but surely coming back into its own. There seems to have been some mixture of plans as it was first intended that the Moss Empire's Booking Committee should handle the booking of the program, but now it is said that Charlie Gulliver will be solely responsible. For some years, since Cochran handled its fortunes, having leased it off the Syndicate Tour, the Oxford Theater has dabbled in all sorts of shows, but lately it seemed to have fallen into the picture rut. Edward Foster will be the manager of the front of the house—none better. "Teddy", as he is familiarly known, was long associated with Sir Oswald Stoll at the Alhambra, Glasgow, and the Alhambra, London. Then he was for a time an America as a play actor and went into vaude, here with Stanley Logan in "The Poor Rich". Lately he has been manager at Lewisham for Gulliver and now has been rightly promoted.

They Were Music Halls

The Oxford, Tivoli and Pavilion were, in 1907, the music halls of Britain. Twenty and twenty-five turns were nothing unusual and all were "stars". The show started at 7:30 and ran till 11 or 11:30. The Oxford and Tivoli were the general combination and being once a night, artistes tried to get another hall to work to make up their "provincial" salary. Thus came the appraisalment of the "turn" working salary. The salary was based on a one-hall unit. Truth to tell, it has been standardized to that point despite the fact that artistes do not work turns today and that they have to give two shows where formerly they only gave one. The new Oxford will play twice a night. There was some idea of running three shows daily but it seems to have been abandoned. Apart from the fact that Gulliver is doing his own bookings and, of course, starts off with his "musset", Nora Bayes, it would be an insight into things to glean the opinion of the commercial rivals, viz., Gillespie as regards the Hippodrome, Walter Payne ditto the Huston and Metropolitan, and Sir Oswald Stoll as regards the Coliseum and Alhambra. Gulliver evidently banks on an overflow somewhere as Nora Bayes is underlined on all the L. T. V. programs to play the Holborn Empire concurrently, and as this house it within five minutes of the Oxford it seems perilously jeopardizing Miss Bayes' pulling power.

Master's Tribute Fund

From all accounts the appeal issued for Harry Masters, for which he has if it is working very hard, using Walter Bentley's office as his headquarters, seems to be functioning. All sorts of runners have been contacted in the amount of remuneration he was

PROFESSOR BAKER SEES PASADENA PLAYERS

When the Pasadena Playhouse Association, Pasadena, Calif., presented "A Midsummer Night's Dream" during the week of August 18, Prof. George F. Baker, renowned director of the 47 Workshop at Harvard, was an interested spectator.

"The sheer simplicity of the production interested Professor Baker most," says The Star News of Pasadena because he said it revealed more of the real beauties of Shakespeare than the usual present-day staging...

During his stay in Pasadena Professor Baker took occasion to pay high tribute to the work of the Community Players several times, notably at the Drama League reception.

"Now you in Pasadena must lend every effort to live up to your promise," said Professor Baker. "In all parts of the country your work is being watched. Therefore you dare not fail for if you do it will be a blow to all artistic endeavor along dramatic lines."

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS WIDEN THEIR HORIZON

George V. Denny, versatile young assistant director of the Carolina Playmakers, has compiled the following statistics to show the growth of the little theater idea in the Carolinas:

Table with columns for years 1919-1924 and Total Audience. Rows include New Folk Plays, New Authors, Actors, Special Performances, Summer School Performances, Student Productions, Outside Attractions, State Tours, and Towns Visited.

The authorship excepted, it was a home-made production thruout. Everything was done by the students, from the acting, directing, stage-designing, scenery on down to such details as makeup and lighting.

The play was staged in the beautiful Forest Theater on a hillside in Bottle Park, the natural beauty of which has been enhanced by plantings of shrubs. The starry sky provided the canopy, the gently sloping hillside... The general feeling provided the scenery for "back stage" and lights flicked on and off as the scenes shifted. The lighting committee, headed by the director, deserves a large share of the credit.

As for the play, it is a classic and one of the best of its kind. The acting was most impressive, especially that of Fay Bainter, who, according to the critics, had been avoided by another producer of the play, taking the part of the girl and whose name was not mentioned by an audience of 700, including the school and its faculty and the students of the school, thereby. The production was particularly the lighting, which was excellent.

Mr. Denny and his bride left Chapel Hill September 1 for a sojourn in the mountains of the Carolinas. They will return to the university in time for the opening, September 15.

THE WHARF PLAYERS ON PRODUCE TOWN

presented their third subscription play of the season August 15, 16 and 18 at the Band Box Studio, on the corner, 295 Commercial street, New York, Mass. The Band Box Studio is located on a wharf in Boston which seems to be a certain custom for the overgrowing following of the Wharf Players. Miss Barker in a great number of cases has had the following of the following players:

The Playhouse's "What's New?" by Mary Reynolds, "The Tenth Muse" from the Front of E. Griest, "Denise" by "Our Husband", by Anne Harcourt, and "The End of the Road" by George Vallette McCall.

Mrs. Mary Parker is president of the wharf players. In addition, as a member of the committee on remodeling the Wharf House into a permanent theater.

LITTLE THEATER FOLK SOLJOURN IN BERMIUDA

Frank C. Munster, bustling business manager of the Dolphin Players, of Philadelphia, Pa., as one of the members of his group had a trip to Bermuda recently, accompanied by Mrs. Katherine C. Larnach and Laura Krass, also members of the Dolphin Players as well as to write Mr. Munster.

Just arrived home from Bermuda, where he had a most enjoyable time, he told me that he had a most enjoyable time. He had a most enjoyable time. He had a most enjoyable time.

Also did the same song as a single for the Hotel Frascati July 27, on the same day as our sketch, "Captain Walrus". The thing was big, and they dived us and wind us and had to beg to be let off.

There would be a good demand for some live specialties for hotel work over there by those who know how to put it over. In the past we used the dance orchestra for the accompaniment, and it was all that could be desired, being much better than the average orchestra of the same sort in the States.

While the music has probably been used in Bermuda, yet it was not in evidence when we first landed, but before we came away we had the wharf boys asking "Why Don't You Take It?"

After my request to put it over on the ship, but as the voyage was somewhat rough I did not feel equal to it, and, therefore, refused. I received it, however, from the ship's orchestra the last thing before leaving the boat in New York.

The following prizes were awarded in the contest for granges at the County Theater at the Lowville (N. Y.) Let's go, Gentlemen!

Intentionally the review of Coburn's Minstrels to have been run in the last issue was left out. It appears on this page.

Rusby's All Star Minstrels opened the Rialto Theater at Waterloo, Ia., September 1, playing to fine business.

What has happened to Doug Fleming's All-White Supreme Minstrels who opened June 6 at Northport, L. I.? Boys, let's hear from you.

Not long ago this department frequently heard from By Gosh producer of the sold-out Ed Minstrels. Where's that celebrated clown now?

The Georgia Minstrels, headed thru the Gieson offices, opened a week's engagement Labor Day at the Colonial Theater, Detroit. Excellent business was reported in the da Lees.

Arthur Wollige, "The Original Rag", with the Sells-Floto Minstrels (colored), was "sought" by this writer during the Norwood engagement of the circus. He's the best contemporary singer we've heard.

Splendid afternoons were given the Harry Hill Minstrels when they appeared recently in Salem, Mass. Dennis J. Moroney, of Penobscot.

Minstrels in 1877. His father was then the soloist. I was with the same show at the time.

Tip Lee joins from Chicago that while the Sells-Floto Minstrel Live were working a bill there they met Sam Small and Lassie. Had an boys doing a black face act. Lee says the duo went over big with their singing and talking act, which is of a high-class standard. Lassie was with the Lassies White Minstrel not so long ago and Sam's act was with M. A. Montgomery's "Tom" shows for the past four seasons. Zapp adds: "I've said to me one of the best types of Uncle Tom in the West."

This department has some very interesting reminiscence articles written by J. B. Estelle, Sr., of Richmond Hill, N. Y., which will be published in series form in later issues when space permits. Mr. Estelle is one of the true veterans of minstrelsy who has a remarkably accurate memory. In a post-script to one of his articles he mentions that he has not seen a minstrel show or sung a ballad in public for nearly twenty-five years. Watch for Mr. Estelle's recollections, meanwhile, venerable minstrel men, let us hear from you.

Lassie White states his minstrels are going along nicely to turn-away business at most stands. Judging by press comment and the placards, the show is pleasing everywhere. Lassie mentions that one of his boys this season, Frank Gilmore, has a couple of acts that came from the celebrated wig belonging to "Happy" Benway. Billy Boss and Lassie, while at Madisonville, Ky., went out for a game of golf and succeeded in entering that charming circle, the holo-none club. But don't get Lassie wrong. He means "one hundred".

The Sam Griffin Minstrels opened their fifth season at Wilhows, Calif., to a large crowd. Newspaper reviewers declared it was the best presentation Griffin has so far given West Coast lovers of minstrelsy. "Happy" Benway, popular black-face comedian, is doing principal comedy and producing. The company's roster follows: Griffin, owner and manager; Benway, principal comedian and producer; Tom Queen, Dick Florenoy, M. A. Moss, Tom Greeley, Harry Bowman, comedians; Boy Pruness, inter-locutor; Harry Lealey, Jack Bard, Frank Stodgrass, Al Weber, vocalists; Jack Larney, Val Arnold, Frank Griffin, dancers; William Jerome, novelty act, and Kane's ten-piece band.

Erin O'Neill, of Memphis, Tenn., saw the Lassie White Minstrels when they appeared there and received a warm welcome Labor Day. The three days following the show played to packed houses, he says. "Lassie stopped the show with his song, 'Two-Timing Mind', and Billy Boss was equally as good. Burch Arlett made himself popular when he sang 'There's Going to Be Some Changes Made', which was composed by a Memphis boy, Jimmie McDonald. Frank Long and Paul Steer won the hearts of all with their beautiful songs," states O'Neill.

Since starting their season several weeks ago, the J. A. Coburn Minstrels have continuously played to large audiences in the towns along the first part of the route. According to those in touch with the advance bookings, the season promises to be highly successful. When the show played the Malaga Theater, Findlay, O., a local newspaper reviewer caught the performance and commented thus:

Brilliant in its new dress of scenery and costumes, abounding with mirth and comedy, replete with original innovations and stunts, the show was a riot from first to last, with not a dull moment.

Not a cent has been spared in preparation and money has been lavished on new scenery and settings. And as to costumes, not even a necktie worn last night had ever been used before. From top to bottom the show is new. The scenes are well chosen and attractive.

The setting for the first part is exceptionally good. With the comedians and singers grouped in a semicircle the orchestra is elevated at the back and the sparkling gold ball of the big tubed tuba shines like a rising sun against the back scenery which is of a mountain ravine. The idea is original and singularly striking. The use of the tuba in place of the double bass viol in the orchestra works well into the scheme of originality, due to its greater power as well as its striking appearance.

Most of the faces were those of the men who have made the Coburn show a success in former years. There are, however, a few new ones, notably Rod Jordan, who comes from the Al. G. Field Show with a line of comedy and jokes and a saxophone act that got a big hand.

Stage Employees and Projectionists

By BEN BODICE

Communications to N. Y. Offices

Another two weeks and the stage and projectionists' annual wages strike will be under way. The stage employees' union, the Broadway Brotherhood, has a long season—so it is hoped. President Bill Panayan and his staff of associates at the general office are highly acquainted with the general aspect of things minatory.

With the exception of the U. F. looming up in connection with the Panayages attitude toward the musicians, victory seems to have swung clean in favor of the I. A. in the leading theatrical circles. Good fortune had accumulated so thick and fast in the way of reports received at the general office that that smile of Harry Spencer, official tabulator and adjutant general, has taken on an extra row of wrinkles.

Should a general show in Pan Time be averted, Panay Panayan plans to take that much-needed vacation some place in the wilds of Long Island. If the strike call goes thru Panayan will have to spend that vacation on the firing line in the West.

Vice-President Guy Culver has been successful in adjusting the contract for the Tulsa, Ok., operators. He is now engaged in trying to straighten out wage matters for the stage employees and operators of Palestine, Corsicana and Mexia, Tex.

Vice-President Clay Beck pulled the Santa Barbara contract local thru to a successful finish Labor Day and then proceeded to do the same for the San Diego crowd.

Representative Harry Schuman has been having a most busy time of it, meeting with fellow operators, on Labor Day he agreed on the ways for the handling of the agreement between the production and managers of Ottawa, Kan. At the present time Harry is assisting in signing up the Montreal boys again.

Out New England way Representative Bill Dillon is looking after the wage agreement affairs of the locals at Stamford, Conn., and Lowell, Mass.

William D. Lang, manager of the adjustment and claim department, is giving his good offices to the adjustment of annual contracts for the Watertown, Syracuse, and Oswego, N. Y., locals. He is the only member of the General Office staff at present absent on such an errand.

Vice-President N. K. of St. Louis, is helping direct contract proceedings for the Quincy, Ill., branch.

Representative Roud is concerning himself with wage affairs at Pensacola, Fla., planning to go on to Miami after documents are signed.

The outlook seems bright for Representative Ben Browne working on the agreement for the Bradford, Ind., stage and projectionists. His next locale of operation is Hamilton, O.

Representative Toney had completed of putting thru a satisfactory adjustment at Lima, O.

Again Browne reports to the General Office that he has cleared up the Port Henry and Hunt, Mich., situations.

What's your season's tempo? It would make an interesting item. Send it in.

Minor and minor men and is one of the most popular men in minstrelsy. Besides taking on places as one of the premier end men he appears in a solo act, entitled "The Walked-Off Hotel," a juggling scene. His monolog over the telephone is a scream.

An oldtimer with the show, "Slim" Vermont, maintained his place as a hothead with the black-face stuff. His jokes and comic recitations got a big laugh every time. His comic song, "Whoo, Nancy," together with the pantomime and contortion that goes with it, and the male imitation that he works in was one of the best numbers of the show. With Nate Mulroy, he appeared also in a little sketch called "Cards a la Carte" and a novel boxing dance that is clever and well done. Mulroy also sang "Seven Come Eleven Blues" to the tune of half a dozen choruses.

Hank White, first dancing comedian on the program, started the thing off with a snap with "A Man Never Knows", a toss-off on woman nature.

Press Agents Advance

WHY THE PRESS AGENT?

Question Asked by Many Showmen Who Should Know Better and Who Sooner or Later Learn Real Value of Proper Newspaper Solicitation

By HAL OLVER

Years ago someone said, "Six when are born and not read," and there never was a truer saying. But some "showmen" insist that they are "filled" members of that select class and go "blindly" building shows, rehearsing at great length, paying large sums for attractive playing, contracting big features and foreclosing all about a very important item that is necessary for the success of their under-taken press agent.

After rehearsals have dragged along for weeks and the paper is ready for delivery, the show ends and most everything is in readiness for the start of the season, someone remembers that as a matter of fact there should be a press agent. Then a hurried call is sent to get an agent somewhere.

Qualified men as to ability or experience are not plentiful. The one thing to be considered by these "showmen" when engaging a press agent is to get a man whose (1) is low enough, everything else does not matter. In other words, the "low" man for the "low" is the law figure.

As soon as the final log is made, the low figure man cannot deliver; he lacks experience or he would not be a low figure man. He has been told he will be in a position to make a considerable salary. The manager did not get his man — who should lay the blame? It is merely a "low figure man" — one who gets off the train, sees the manager, asks for the papers, and, as if that were all, says "I'll get it for you," and, as always, waits until he is paid, and then, as if that were all, says "I'll get it for you," and, as always, waits until he is paid.

The writer once had a well known and competent general agent of a radio studio tell him that the position of press agent back with the show was merely an office girl's job and a low figure man would do it as well as any other man. If the work accomplished a week ahead would be just when the show got into town that is the quality of the "low" to deliver.

Not getting him to do it, which is a low figure man with the low figure man ahead of him, as if that were all, says "I'll get it for you," and, as always, waits until he is paid.

The "low figure man" is a plant, and it will never be read. It was left with the papers all night, but never got into them. The show men lost $8,000 since the press department was organized or rather disorganized. We do not claim that the entire loss was due to dropping the press system, but it would be a good percentage of that loss can be laid to the charge. (Communications to Cincinnati, O.)

Mel Butler's Davenport Orchestra at the Davenport Hotel, Spang, Wis., in its fourth season.

Paul W. from Cincinnati, Ohio, advised of two days at Rockwood Park, Springfield, Mass., recently.

Carl R. S. from Cincinnati, Ohio, writes from Lexington, Ky., that he is still with A. B. Richard's Cincinnati Orchestra and says the organization is getting stronger right along.

If you have not already sent your biographical data to the Billboard please do so. Address it to: Biographical Editor, The Billboard, 2527 Opera Place, Cincinnati, O.

Bill Forsyth and His Novelty Orchestra have charge of the musical end of the entertainment at the Lyceum, Salt Lake City's only colored, which recently opened its fall season.

George Kilders' Black and White Pennsylvanian Orchestra, which closed at Ciney Island, Cincinnati, Labor Day, is booked for a six-week engagement at the Palace Theater, Hamilton, O., starting September 28.

Henri Tussen rock, musical director of the Matinee Theater, Hartford, Conn., wrote a full-page article which recently appeared in The Hartford Sunday Courant. It was titled "Ticking the Emotions of the Musician."

Ed Thomette advises that he is now located in Chicago with the 1221 Ford Artists' Band. He extends a cordial invitation to friends to visit or sit in with the band any time. Headquarters are at 231 East Chicago Avenue.

Don Warner sends an interesting picture of Les Sincicars that appeared in The Denver Post and The Pueblo (Col.) Citizen. A fine looking crew this outfit. Don says all the boys are confirmed Billboard enthusiasts.

The Imps Orchestra, which recently finished a successful season at the Green Tree Gardens, Clear Lake, Ia., has been booked for four weeks as an act for the Strand Theaters of Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines. In Gilbert Vanosdale is manager.

The Original Paramount Orchestra of Ft. Dodge, Ia., of which Ben J. Abel is manager, closed a three-month run at the roof garden, Arnold's Park, Ia., September 1. The outfit will play one date at Ft. Dodge and then move to Des Moines, Ia., for a fall and winter engagement at the Catillon Ballroom.

Meyer Davis, head of Meyer Davis' Music, an organization of sixty-two orchestras and more than 700 musicians, who has offered a prize of $100 for a new name to replace the word "jazz," reports that more than 700,000 words have been received and that an announcement will be made September 15.

Glenn Webster, one of the most popular orchestra leaders on the Pacific Coast, who for the past ten years has conducted the orchestra at the Savoy Theater, San Diego, Calif., has severed his connections with that house and is now leader at the new Pantages Theater in the same city.

The Original Southern Collegians completed successful summer engagement at Lakewood, N. C., September 5 and are now making a tour of the South. The personnel includes: Maurice Krebs, alto sax; Tom Neal, alto sax; Joe Garner, tenor sax; George Bennett, trumpet; Tom Kelly, trombone; Don Johnson, saxophone; Charles Nagy, Jr., violin and viola; Cyril Hill, bass; Don Higgins, piano and arranger; and Oscar Higgins, drummer.

Harry Scott, of Harry Scott and His Band who closed last season at the Davenport Hotel, has moved to Hartford, Conn., with his new outfit. August 20 they were with R. G. Saylor and their Virginia. Harry says Saylor is located here and is engaged a band and a "dancing" orchestra. Saylor claiming it's "no dancing" dance. Tom Connam who was with the King, is now in the hotel business. He has been out and in of the show since he has and a vacation on drums, says Harry.

The original Hot Melody Boys, for nearly two seasons of "dancing" works at Ashworth, N. C., journeyed to Rockwood, Ill., where they have just closed an engagement of three weeks. Eddie Elliott writes that the combination will go to Winnipeg, Man., for a thirty-six weeks' engagement. (Continued on page 52)

A LONDON LETTER

Fusion Flouted

LONDON, Aug. 16. As I confidently predicted, the powers behind the Stage Bill have systematically alienated all the anti-trade suggestions by Bronson Alby and Donald Campbell and all the practical endeavors of the Artists' Association to find a settlement for the difficulties of organized theaterland on a basis of cooperation between light and less artful.

Six delegates of early light duty met in conference with the Kingway Theater position and the great third class distillations and immediate private headquarters of the meeting that the A. A. delegates, after a show of superficial politeness and a restrained discussion lasting four and a half hours, found their time wasted and the managers' show good but in no original way, and nowhere in particular.

The guild declares that its condition is due to its cooperation with the A. A. must be the complete relinquishment by the latter body of its "closed-profession" policy.

John Edward Barnett, of Cumberland, Md., is no longer a correspondent of The Billboard.

This is the first time that all open to the eyes of every reader to the real quality of the production and I hope that when, as they are found in fairly large numbers to do, these men of ability seek to lay alongside their brains, some of their ways will be brought into line in no manner manner.

Snob Department Required

We should certainly insist and insist upon a certain on behalf of theatrical people and a leadership has failed to do more than some other method.

The Stage Bill ever since the early days is a living scandal and reflects only discredit on all concerned. The A. A. is not entirely concerned for such has been the occupation of the executive with the orders for various managers for the industry. I am sure that the union administration has forgotten the peculiar psychology of a section of the profession. Had the council and secretary devoted a certain portion of attention to leading the section and mitigating the political (Continued on page 52)

Picked Up by the Page

The Page is just an ordinary human being who responds to kindness. Vanity is not its principal vice, but who would not glow with a sense of pride to have his vacation period emphasized by the appearance of nice, friendly stories in the papers of the towns in which one happened to visit? The Pittsburg Journalists were, without exception, very generous in their praise of the writer and the manner in which he, with the co-operation of themselves and the assistance of J. B. B. WHITNEY of the NEGRO PRESS ASSOCIATION, W. C. KILPATRICK of the CARAVAN and WILFRED CARR, handled the press room of the Masonic conventions. As stated, they were all nice to us, but THE PITTSBURGH AMERICAN, then Columnist JOHN CLARK, whom we have never knowingly seen, paid your humble servant the finest tribute that has ever been accorded us. In a five-inch story he complimented our work, concluding with the statement that "We didn't meet Jackson, but we saw his work and it was good. THANKS, CLARK. Hope to meet you some day, and to always merit your approval.

Another part of our vacation was spent in the vicinity of New Haven, Conn., and there we rose to the dignity of being interviewed by Mr. Barker, editor of The Sunday Union, a paper of general circulation. That was a pleasure since it enabled us to tell the world something about showfolks and the amusement world and some things that may not be so well known as they might be. Want to tell you how it came about.

Most of us remember HARRISON STEWART, who passed to his reward in 1918 after a career that established his name in a high place in the history of the Negro show world. He was one of the PEKIN THEATER cast, in Chicago, which means one of the troupes that played in the first Race theater of the country. Harrison's younger brother is a fellow who is doing in Journalism precisely the same sort of thing that the deceased did in theatrical life. HE IS MAKING A NAME AND PLACE FOR HIMSELF.

DANIEL HARRISON edits a page in the Sunday edition of THE NEW HAVEN DAILY UNION. He is the Connecticut representative of THE CHICAGO DEFENDER and operates THE ASSOCIATED BUSINESS ENTERPRISES, a concern that provides office facilities for the small but growing group of Negro business people of New Haven. He has both business sagacity and literary ability. These are supplemented by the possession of a most interesting and intelligent young wife, whose training in the schools and atmosphere of Durham, N. C., tells a story of correctly blended academic training and the domestic arts. They have a pair of lovable children. So you see that Dan Harrison just must make good. With all these interests that were of more importance he took time to engineer our meeting with the Union. A boy like that can't fail.

The MAJESTIC HOTEL, at West Haven, conducts Wednesday and Saturday night dances for the entertainment of guests. We don't dance any more, but a former member of a dancing act is bound to appreciate good music, so it was but natural that we would inquire as to the orchestra. Hence we take pleasure in introducing to you the CHARTER OAK ORCHESTRA, of HARTFORD, Conn., a well-balanced seven-piece combination composed of MARVIN GERLEY, HERBERT JOHNSON, LOUIS MILLS, PAUL BURNETT, HENRY GURLEY and CHARLES JENNINGS. Their music and the New Haven girls almost made us disregard the fallen arches and try to be a boy again. However, we yielded not to temptation and all is well.

Then we met the THREE M's, a trio of local entertainers whose ability to present an evening program is attested by the frequency with which these ladies play dates in surrounding towns.

MILDRED RUBY, pianiste; MAMIE L. HOPE, saxophone soloist, and MARY F. SIMMONS, a singer and Indian impersonator, make up the trio. They present a Lyceum type of program of ten numbers that is good. Mrs. Simmons is ambitious to try vaudeville.

The big surprise of our vacation was the new BRILL MOORE HOTEL at Bridgeport, Conn., a five-story building containing a nice dining room, a beautifully finished grill room, a model kitchen with correctly uniformed cooks and waiters, four private dining rooms and twenty-six clean and newly equipped bedrooms, managed by a pair of young men both experienced in catering to the requirements of Yale students, describes the place. The grill has been open for a month, and the hotel went into service Labor Day. B. L. BRIGHT and E. M. MOORE are the proprietors. DAVE and TRESSIE were the first guests. Their comment and our own experience gives every reason to anticipate the house becoming the regular rendezvous of the profession playing the town, and the mecca for tourists from New York.

With the vacation thing all over, we returned home to learn that the LEONARD HARPER office is on the bum with the training of a half dozen white acts, the building of a new colored floor show and EDDIE GREEN working nights at the Apollo Theater and devoting his days to instructing dancers in the studio.

We learned, too, that in our absence the "Honey" Show staged a rehearsal, lasting about sixty people, after five working weeks of gruelling practice. Nearly all the "dumb luck" thing, only this time it happened before the trick got out of town. It happened because some of our big showfolks are so glibly for white promoters whose favor they can lose by asking to see the actor of their money before engaging a lot of performers on a cheap "spec".

THE LAFAYETTE THEATER has reopened with vaudeville. The COLEMAN BROTHERS have renovated the house, enlarged the stage, installed a number of new lights, repainted and fixed up generally. "MERRY" BROWN is again in the box office, and Harlem patrons are glad to see her winsome smile thru the wicket again.

EMMA MAITLAND

A pretty and graceful chorister. The owner of her last season's show declared her to be one of the very few girls who took their jobs seriously. "Quiet, never quarelled, prompt, no lates, no requests for advances between pay days," were some of the things said of her. No wonder the Leonard Harper office in New York has kept her doing executive work in connection with assembling revues and floor shows this summer.

THE BARRONS CLUB is again open, and the night-life folks are glad.

OPPORTUNITY, the Urban League magazine, has announced a contest for colored writers of short stories, poetry, essays, plays and personal experience sketches. There will be three prizes offered in cash class. They range from $5 to $100. Details may be obtained from that publication. Writers who have been making names of the Page as to how to get into publication should get in touch with them. The list of judges selected assures at least competent criticism, even if the entrants do not win a prize.

DAVE AND TRESSIE

The Page, in wandering about New England on vacation, stumbled across some newspaper clipping and seeing that tell of the success that Dave and Tressie are making in a new act called "I Think You Very Much", with which they are touring the Keith Circuit. The following from The Springfield Republic tells how they are doing:

"Dave and Tressie, two ducky dancers, show they know how to do the swiftest steps with ease. Dave, the messier member of the team, does some good imitations of a Boy Scout drum corps marching soldiers and a barber stripping his razor—all with his feet dancing to music."

Essentially they are up in the lights in big letters in most of the towns they play. Dave is a bit peeved at a cheap imitator who has recently been trying to duplicate his act, which is informally protected.

Louise Fisher's "Dun Festival" was held over at the Lafayette Theater, Winston-Salem, N. C., for a second week. This is the first attraction to do so there in three years. Mr. Seales, house owner, personally writes to compliment the music and costumes of the show.

SAVANNAH, GA.

Arrived Savannah August 18, just in time to see Jim Green's "New Orleans Vampires", a musical comedy seen on the T. O. B. A. early in spring. They have ten people and filled the Pekin Theater for the week without the aid of a picture program. The second show kept the audience in an uproar, each turn getting its share of the honors.

This company was replaced by the Jackson-Homes Company, a seven-people company that, rearranged and with some new talent added, will make some time in the very near future as an attraction for the better houses. "Kid" Holmes, one of the partners, has an idea of big things.

The Danbar and the Star theaters cater to the better class of our people with feature and first-run pictures. Both are located in West Broad street and Main street for colored people. They are doing a wonderful business.

We find this city away up in the class with real good timers, having been invited to the following clubhouses: Savannah Home Association, Bureka, A. A. A., Young Adolphia, Jr., A. A. A.; Young Adolphia, Sr., A. A. A.; Imperial, Fox, Georgia Home, High Art, Empire and Lincoln A.M., all under the very best of managements.

The parks of note here are the Lincoln, Danbar, Lynn Haven, Hope Crest and Sea

Lillian Green, who plays the part of "Mother Harris" to Paul Robeson's characterization of the son in "All God's Chillun", now running at the Greenwich Village Theater, New York. She is an artist, her conception of character work being the result of five years of training with the Aema Players, under the tuton of Anne Wolter, who now heads the faculty of the Ethiopian Art School.

Breeze. These places of amusement are kept busy with private and congregational affairs.

The Merchant and the Clevedon are the principal boats used for parties and moonlight rides. Bands that furnish music are the K. of P. Milliton, Elks and the Knights of Columbus. Ted Pollen's Syncopated Sax, furnishing most of the music for the moonlight rides, includes Alvin E. Scott, D. L. Carter, Mrs. V. Sales, Charlie Royal, Aaron Kirkland and Ted Pollen. This orchestra will add an entertainer for a tour to begin soon.

The Bryant Players, a white company in dramatic stock, are at the Savannah Theater and pack 'em nightly. Colored folks climb to the roof for the purpose of seeing a clean and worth-while show, indicating the need of a legitimate colored house.

The Aema Joymakers, a social club, sponsors moonlight rides on the Savannah River every Monday night.

LUCILLE HEADS ACT

Lucille Hegamin will be presented this season at the head of an act of seven people. She will be supported by four girls and two dancing boys in an act that is being staged by her former team mate, Cyril Fullerton. The act will include singing, dancing and talking features. As soon as the act is out of rehearsal Fullerton will stage another in which he will appear in person. Lew Golden and Harry Shea will handle both acts.

WORSE AND MORE OF IT

Not content with having brought discredit and inconvenience upon the many worthwhile acts that played on the Columbia Broadway Circuit last season, one of the teams that could not find further chance to do harm there has now just about ruined the opportunities for colored acts over the Bert Levy Time, according to recent letters on the subject.

Word has been sent out canceling the bookings of nearly a score of colored acts over a circuit that has long been a recognized standby for those folks, all because house managers and hotel people would rather decline every Negro act than take the trouble to notice that most of them differ from the team alluded to. In fact, most of the colored acts look upon these boys and their conduct with precisely the same degree of contempt as do others. "Gang" Jines, of Jines and Jacqueline, one of the acts to suffer this unmerited cancellation, is especially incensed at the team that has been so lacking in self-respect as to violate liquor laws, public sentiment and to practice the most flagrant sort of disorderly conduct.

The proper protection of the right to live and earn a livelihood in their profession almost demands that the private lives of the colored performers must be investigated before they can get bookings, all because a few morons decline to recognize the most simple professional and personal ethics.

Managers, please believe that there are few worthless Negroes such as the type who have been responsible for these difficulties. Don't punish the worthy for those. Instead get rid of the rotten by declining to give them work. There are but few of them as compared with the great group of self-respecting Negro performers who merit your consideration. Don't indict a whole Race for a few bad ones.

BARRONS EXCLUSIVE CLUB

Barrons Exclusive Club has been closed since the death of Barron Wilkins early this summer. September 3 the reorganized club was reopened with John Lester Johnson as its manager. If one is to judge from the personnel of the recently elected officers the enterprise will enjoy as great fame as prevailed in its former days.

Philip Clemons is president, James Garrett vice-president, Frank Nolan secretary and treasurer. The house committee named is Bob Slater, Tip Harris and Eubie Blake. The directors are Henry Troy, Chris Smith, William Road, James Sampson and James McMahon.

The Snowdens Band of Washington, a former attraction at Hollywood Club on Broadway, has been engaged. The entertainers featured at the opening are indeed a cosmopolitan lot. Bo Haddy came from the Big Dreamland Club in Chicago, Vivian Brown came from Atlantic City, Jimmie, Ethel Lansing came from Asbury Park to join the staff, and Eunice Gayle was brought on from the night life of Los Angeles.

Laura Sellers, assisted by Justine McKenney who was drafted from Detroit, are hostesses for the house. It was a great crowd of New York "Bohemians" who stormed the place on opening night. Many of the down town friends of the old place who have not been in Harlem since its closing were on hand for the opening.

ELKS IN PITTSBURG

The Elks' convention in Pittsburg was emphasized by the presence of no less than thirty brass bands in the most spectacular parade that city has witnessed in years. More than 20,000 of the members of the I. O. O. F. Elks of the World registered at the convention by Tuesday on the week of the convention, August 10.

J. Finley Wilson, who was re-elected grand exalted ruler, has no less than twenty-six amusement people in the cabinet of national officers that handle the affairs of the largest order in the Race.

New York provided a special train of more than twenty cars that ran over the P. R. R. in two sections. Chicago was also represented by a trainload of antlered ones. The next convention will be held in Richmond, Va., August, 1925.

BUSY IN PARIS

Earl Granstaff, tromboedian, has been in Paris for six months and has not fast found time to send a spicy letter. Along with the letter came several newspapers that serve to convey the story of his more practical activities. From them we learn that he is a patron of the litic art, having been among the present when Larry Estridge made his debut in Paris; that he is the promoter and organizer of the jazz band baseball team, that he has appeared before the King and Queen of Spain and is a general favorite with night club patrons of Gay Paree. It took four newspapers to tell the story.

The Cleatham Band, which played Pittsburg Pa., with the Quintard Miller Show, has returned to Cleveland, O., where it will play dates.

Vol. XXXVI SEPT. 13. No. 37

Editorial Comment

The apostles of the new stagecraft and their disciples have good grounds for claiming that its meriting European vogue is due to its intrinsic worth and merit, but they should be generous enough to acknowledge that it got a great boost at a most critical stage of its development.

In Germany, during and after the war, the necessity of retrenchment in the interests of economy was felt not the mother of invention but at least a strong factor in the widespread adoption of simpler settings for intricate plays.

That the transition from naturalistic to expressionistic stage settings had already taken place before the war goes without saying.

But so loudly obvious a truth, not so readily and so loudly proclaimed, is that the transition was also one from complicated and expensive to simple and economical scene investiture and mounting.

This meant money-saving in costs of production, and that in turn very often meant the difference between production and foregone production.

In this way the German public, forced to choose between the new "geometric" settings or no drama at all, opted all those who to a very large portion of it was the lesser of two evils, and, hard times notwithstanding, in time not only gave used to the new order of things but came to prefer it, a fact attested by the general criticism and the proportion directed against the Expressionist idiom, which Siegfried Wagner himself should be strictly trained.

The new stagecraft might still be being "The Spirit of the U. S. A." There normally was some hesitation as to the advisability of this, but it was finally decided to proceed with the change, and the step was taken.

The outcome was that the film, which was exhibited at the Palace Theater, not only gave satisfaction but made money for the legion post despite the showing taking place during the heat of the summer.

In previous years, too, the carnival gave satisfaction and made money for the post, but just how much more, or less, we know not. It is true there was no financial benefit for the post last year, but it was not because of the carnival. The post experimented with a redeo in connection with the carnival, and the expense of that, together with four days and nights of rain during the week, resulted in a deficit.

One, too, must not lose sight of the fact that the film represented a smaller financial outlay.

The carnival has the advantages the ply and freshen up their standards of comparison and develop many new capacities in judgment.

Small wonder if they blunder a little in the beginning.

But they will bring to bear upon the new task much enthusiasm, considerable understanding and great determination to work and try. In these we at least have the essential "makings" of success—not all of them of course, but certainly the most of them and possibly the more important.

The world does move. Turkey lets women appear on the stage at last. This is a daring innovation indeed in a Mohammedan country. From its beginnings the authorities and interpreters of the Moslem religion have held that it strictly forbade women showing themselves to any man except their husbands, brothers and immediate relatives.

Official announcement is now made expressly permitting women's appearance on the stage as actresses, singers and dancers. Also The Conservatoire of Music and Drama of Constantinople is advertising for women pupils.

Heywood Brown has been moved by the production of "The Werewolf," which has a distinctly off-color story, to again make a plea for the erotic French and German farce. As usual, too, he pleads ably. He declares that he cannot, try as he will, see how the conduct or morals of any great number of people can be affected by seeing such plays.

Possibly he is right. In Japan they tell little children—the veriest babes—everything, and Japanese children grow into men and women who compare very favorably with those of other races.

But how about the theater?

Or, if that thought does not appeal, how about the feelings of a very large number of persons who love the theater very dearly?

There are quite a number of writers, you know, who so venerate our great English language that they would not under any circumstances write sex with it. Mr. Brown is one of these. A far greater number of people cherish and revere the theater in much the same manner—possibly the proportion is not so large in New York as elsewhere, but that is no reason why they should not be considered. They certainly are a greater asset to the theater than those who prefer their beauty scented with lambsuger.

Let us be liberal, however.

It may spoil everything for many others, but let's be liberal.

Fred Stone, in "Stepping Stones", resumed on Broadway last week and picked up his public instantly. Seemingly lunacy has not been in any way impaired by the interval of suspension. The night of September 2 was a grudging test—following a very hot day a rain storm with much blustery wind set in about 6 p.m., and continued mild well after the curtain rose, but the house filled before nine o'clock.

And that is the answer to those critics who think that this superb production should be soiled a little by a concession to Broadway taste and predilections.

The Shuberts have brought back the detestable runway at the Winter Garden, New York.

A minister in Butte, Mont., shared his pulpit with a monkey on a recent Sunday night in order to prove that it man wasn't evolved from the ape he came from the ass. There were no incidental references in the discourse to Mr. Bryan.

"Synthetic gum if let alone for a year turns into turpentine," says The Portland Oregonian. And if turned into a thirsty person it turns into turpitude. It is safest to keep it unterned.

Chance for American Talent in Boston?

ACCORDING to Allen Raymond, correspondent at Paris, France, for the North American Newspaper Alliance, Serge Koussevitzky, who will become conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra September 22, will arrive in America not only in his official capacity but in that of a musical explorer. "He will search here for talent," says Mr. Raymond, "and, with a bias against jazz, he may be the first to find an American Beethoven"—a worthy object of unparalleled esteem. He emphasized the Russian conductor's eagerness in this search in the following interview:

"What I hope to do in America is to show the public that masterpieces of music are being written today as powerful, stirring and beautiful as the greatest of the past," says Koussevitzky. "I will present in Boston music never heard before, music which now exists only in manuscripts which I have in my keeping, music written by men now living who will rank as high a century from now as Mozart or Beethoven. I have given some of their music to Paris. You have seen how it has been received. Some of it shall be America's first."

"I have seen," continues Mr. Raymond, "how Koussevitzky's music has been received in Paris. Music lovers in the French capital have greeted the Russian conductor with the explosive clamor of an appreciation which is truly Latin. But it is not alone for his introduction of new composers that they crowd thru the doors of the Theater National for his concerts. Koussevitzky is capable of presenting the older classics with an air of modernity in his reading and with a painstaking regard for their historic beauties, exactly as he believes the older masters would have them rendered.

"In the old world he has become known as a hunter for musical talent and a patron of young composers. He believes there is genius in America and he hopes to find it out. The territory which his search will cover may be indicated by his attitude toward jazz."

Finds Some Jazz Good

"I like all good music," says Koussevitzky, "and several musicians have written jazz which is truly good. I was in London recently and dropped in late for a bite at a supper club. American boys—the oldest could not have been more than thirty—were improvising as they went along, and they were great players. I let my supper get cold listening to them.

In appearance, manner and dress Mr. Koussevitzky might be a successful middle-aged business man—a fore-run figure of no eccentricities, of middle height, stock, middle-aged. Only his eyes inform you of his art; few business men have eyes flaming with such enthusiasm. They are the eyes of a reformer, an evangelist. The fact is, he is an evangelist and a showman. He would appreciate both Billy Sunday and P. T. Barnum.

in pushing in its humble beginnings at least heard with the more confidence of a position of the lower ranks, adding here and there for the benefit of middle favor. Changing moods and shifting the stage of development of the music is something that has accomplished in a week what took a year.

In America the scene will never again be as it is in Europe. A German, as we have seen, is not a native of our time, but he is a native of our time. It will be seen that the word of art of the theater is not the theater only itself, but it contributes enduring truth.

The outcome of any experiment is depending.

Our Western mind, says it has always been the custom of Thomas Hopkins Port, American edition, to spot a carnival for the purpose of recouping the finances a change was made to a motion picture this year, the

in the summer, when people want to be out of doors as much as possible. We understand that was the only objection to this year's experiment voiced by those who saw the film.

Anyway, it was a change of entertainment fare, and the experiment was worth while.

In the future The Billboard's reviewers will endeavor to say less about the merits of the plays and musical productions and more about the acting in them.

It is decidedly more than less of a new departure and one that seems well worth trying.

We beseech the patience and consideration of our readers during the early stages of the experiment. It is extending too little attention that even the most experienced and cultured have been borrowing upon the "stage" art, and it may well happen that ours will have to begin with themselves. They certainly will have to impart new direction to their powers of observation, make over, im-

DISSATISFIED ACTORS

By ARCHIE BELL

ACTORS, as a group of the human species, are perhaps the most dissatisfied people on earth. And this is not a mistake. A stage director's experience said to me not long ago: "I have a raw, rank amateur with enthusiasm, ambition and a certain amount of 'I'll make him act' but heaven knows all of us from the artist who knows that he's good—he is good. It's a good thing, however, that usually are dissatisfied with themselves."

And the same thing is true of musicians. Marian Gally-Curci wanted to be a personal pianist until an incident dissipated her that she would have a more prosperous career as a singer. Josef Hofmann, the Polish pianist who is one of the youthful geniuses who have made good in music, would have preferred to be a mechanical inventor. Through his life he has spent as much time as he could on the keyboard to "tinker" with the instrument in some kind. There was one time in the world that Madam Samson thought her career in music was better than being a housekeeper. In fact, she had been a housekeeper and she thought her own work was better than that of a housekeeper.

But one kind of actor is a composer, and that is quite a limited circle of music. The only one to find that music was a career was the composer, and that is quite a limited circle of music. The only one to find that music was a career was the composer, and that is quite a limited circle of music.

Sarah Bernhardt would like to be a singer and worked dutifully at day after day throughout her long life. Josephine Baker cared as much for recognition as a painter of pictures as for his position as an actor. Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson once told me that he acted because he wanted to know that his name was "well provided for", but that he would retire to private life and not appear as soon as he felt that his bank account was sufficient. Fred Selton, the prima donna in grand opera, and after a star of prominence in opera, has said that she never would have said of until she became a speaking actress in comedy. Margaret Anglin, one of the best emotional actresses of her time, has been dissatisfied with "making them weep" and longs for full recognition as a comedienne.

Marie Dressler, who has spent a long time in the theater as a clown, desires recognition as an actress who prompts laughs. The late Nat C. Goodwin, the comic comedian, wanted to be a tragedian. Quite in the same way Dr. Wolf Brown, who has spent his life making people laugh, would prefer to stir people by reciting the Mare Antony oration over Caesar's body. Theba Bara, who at the height of her popularity as a "vampire" dreamed of the day when she could play "good women". One Nethercole, who stirred the public with such Sapiro, Pirla Tamperay, and the long gallery of portents of that order, wished to be a doctor of medicine, and finally, after acquiring a fortune, retired from the stage to undertake the organization of the League of Public Health in London.

Leo Ditrchstein has been fighting a general battle with himself through the years, undecided whether to devote himself to acting or to playwrighting. Nat Howard, perhaps the most successful playwright of history, so far as the theater always has looked toward him, when he had earned enough money to write a novel because it was novelistic and not as playwright that he wanted to be recognized. Eleanor Hunter, a star in musical comedy, forever has her mind set upon so-called grand opera. Alice Neilson, a great favorite in the lighter forms of musical comedy, usually are dissatisfied with themselves. They're never satisfied, and they're never satisfied with themselves. They're never satisfied, and they're never satisfied with themselves.

They're never satisfied, and they're never satisfied with themselves. They're never satisfied, and they're never satisfied with themselves. They're never satisfied, and they're never satisfied with themselves.

DISTRIBUTOR COMBINES ON OFFENSIVE IN N. Y.

Exhibitor Buying Combinations Find Themselves at Disadvantage—Tense Situation Results

New York, Sept. 6.—With approximately 200 picture theaters in Greater New York organized into booking combines which have accomplished the purpose of their formation by eliminating competition for picture, the big distributing concerns have effected a less formal, but equally effective alliance which has brought about an interesting situation in New York.

During the last twelve months the several independent circuits in all parts of the city have either enlarged their clutches by taking over other houses or by forming booking agreements with individual exhibitors. Besides the circuits buying combinations have been formed in a great many sections and now there are estimated to be about fifteen such combinations from three to fifteen houses. By securing among themselves as to the pictures each house will take and the prices each will offer for film service, these combines managed to hold down prices to an unusually low level. One result in Manhattan actually bought a picture for its entire ten houses for less than an individual exhibitor would have demanded theater paid for it for three days. So effective have the exhibitor combinations been that the income received from the New York territory by distributors has been reduced by one-third within the last year.

The distributors, however, formerly on the defensive, have now set out to meet the threat they think they are entitled to. The three principal concerns, with at least one of whom the majority of the theaters must do business in order to get enough good productions, have quietly worked out a system which the exhibitors find very hard. Just as the exhibitor combines decided to exchange pictures among themselves so as to avoid bidding for the price of pictures, the large concerns have divided the available film dates among themselves. When a member of a circuit tries to buy pictures from one of these large exhibitors he is quoted a certain price, which is not lowered. The exhibitor says that unless the pictures are sold to him, his own picture they would be sold to someone else in his neighborhood, goes to another of the big exhibitors. When he gets there he finds a price which is still higher than the one he got from the first exhibitor, which means he has to get to the third exhibitor, and so on, until he has spent a great deal of money and time, and has not even secured the pictures he wanted.

The independent exhibitors in New York are on the wane of 1924, and the exhibitors in this situation. The independent exhibitors and their very few big houses, has not made any big business and combination with the exhibitor operating business. It is impossible to get a picture from the independent exhibitor and the exhibitor will not agree to a price which is too low. The exhibitor will hold out until the end of the day.

IT STRIKES ME—

AT THE recent luncheon of the Association of Motion Picture Advertisers where Will H. Hays snapped his dictatorial whip over the bowed heads of the publicity and advertising men, Harry Reichenbach was introduced as "the best and the highest paid press agent" in the motion picture industry. Reichenbach, who, incidentally, may know a thing or two about the recent "twelve-mile limit cabaret" hoax that appeared in The Herald-Tribune, modestly replied that he wasn't the highest paid press agent. More than that, deponent said not—but he could have continued and pointed to the guest of honor, Hays, as the man who fitted the description applied to himself.

Hays is the only press agent who wears a halo. I have no quarrel with him or with his halo; I realize how much he means to the motion picture industry and that the saintly adornment is an essential part of his makeup. The thing that worries me, however, is that the exhibitors may become so dazzled by the shining golden ring that they fail to see the strips of tin holding it up. There is danger that the exhibitors come to look upon Hays as a prophet and not a press agent.

Hays is publicity director for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America in general and for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in particular. When he wants to illustrate the expression, "best in the world" or "most wonderful", he speaks of Famous Players-Lasky. For example, in his speech at the luncheon he called down anathema—and rightly—upon the heads of those press agents who bring censure upon the industry by shouting from the rooftops the fabulous salaries paid to such famous "tragediennes" as Baby Peggy and Bebe Daniels. "Every producer and director in the business speaks of 'The Covered Wagon' without envy as a great picture," Hays declared. "Yet you never heard of Famous Players rushing into print with announcements of the great cost of that picture or of 'The Ten Commandments'."

In case Mr. Hays doesn't know it, I take it upon myself to inform him that the obvious reason for Famous Players-Lasky not rushing into print with statements about the great cost of "The Covered Wagon" was that its cost was not great. It is well known that the production was comparatively inexpensive in view of the profits it has piled up, running under $400,000. And as for "The Ten Commandments", statements of its cost were certainly circulated by the company's publicity department and if Mr. Hays didn't see one it was his own fault, not Famous Players-Lasky's.

The trend of Mr. Hays' remarks was to show that the exhibitors were mainly to blame for the "indecent" advertising of pictures. He cited several cases of nasty advertising done by exhibitors and theater press agents and one case of a suggestion for luridly exploiting a certain picture, "Daughters of Today". Not once did he make it plain that almost all exhibitor advertising is compiled by the exploiters of the producing and distributing companies. For instance, the "hot" advertising which was a notable feature of "Cytherea" was inspired by none other than Victor Shapiro, the president of the A. M. P. A., who presided over the luncheon, but to whom no reference was made by Hays, although he referred to the way one exhibitor had exploited the picture. Again Hays called attention to the advertising of "Messalina" by the Cameo Theater, New York, in which the line, "the love-maddened empress", was used. The general did not make it plain to the assembled newspaper men that the Film Booking Offices and not the Cameo management was responsible for this advertising, altho the head of that distributing company's advertising and publicity department was only a few seats away from him.

The trend of Hays' remarks was to turn the edge of his castigations away from the picture producers and distributors and upon the exhibitors. The same guiding principle characterized his organization's public statement condemning all exhibitors who have not related to the public the full amount of the partly canceled tax on admissions. Also, the Hays-inspired bill introduced into the New York State Legislature last session to do away with the censorship law offered a substitute which would have placed upon the individual exhibitor practically the whole responsibility and penalty for showing a picture judged to be indecent or immoral.

By all means I do not wish to give the opinion that Hays is openly antagonistic to the exhibitors. But I do wish to make it plain that I do not believe he cares a tinker's expelative about the exhibitors.

The Motion Picture Directors' Association of Hollywood thought it would make pictures of its own, feeling that it could do quite as well if not better, than by making them for others. It entered into a distributing arrangement with an independent producer and distributor, Grand-Asher, and found, to its surprise, that it was impossible to raise the money for production cost. There is an under-the-surface reason for this, you may be sure. The big producers and distributors disliked the ambitious plan of the directors and, on their various strong banking connections, found it not at all difficult to nip up the money channels and put sand under the directors' wheels. When it comes to organization you can't beat the big boys in the motion picture business. They work in mysterious ways their wonders to perform.

DANGER TO INVESTMENTS BEHIND SCHENCK'S PLANS

His Recent Announcement Seen as Attempt To Boom Los Angeles Picture Colony Menaced by Production in East

Los Angeles, Sept. 6.—It is an understood thing among those on the inside in motion picture circles that Joseph Schenck's announcement, as head of the Western branch of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, that 680 pictures, costing $2,000,000, would be made in Los Angeles this year is a heroic attempt to boom the picture colony here. Ever since the shutdown of 1923 Hollywood has not been the same. The definite trend towards production in New York has introduced a note of pessimism into things here, especially with regard to real estate values.

Schenck, as well as a number of other picture people, have large real estate and business interests in Los Angeles outside of their picture ventures. They cannot afford to have any considerable proportion of production work slip away to the East. Nor can they afford to have it become generally believed that such an eastward movement is taking place. It is to save their investments that Schenck and others among the picture producers have arranged the producing and building plans for the picture colony, which, he states, will cost a total of $135,000,000 during the season of 1924-25.

The figures announced by Schenck obviously must include pictures made by producers who are not members of the West Coast M. P. D. A., yet no statistics other than the announced totals are given. The average Hollywood made feature will cost more than $105,000, according to Schenck's figures, which is putting it pretty high. It is said, if the law out of the majority of program pictures include independent productions, is considered.

Another interesting angle is that Schenck releases most of his pictures thru First National and that company has been in the vein of late who are urging New York as a production center. Schenck, at any rate, is on his way to New York to confer with Hays and other producers to Los Angeles and also to confer with the First National board. It is said that he fell for some time that Schenck would rather be releasing thru Metro-Goldwyn emery, especially as he is heavily interested in New York, and closely connected with Metro-Goldwyn in other ways. His theater Kordon picture is now Metro-released, First National having the Naxon and Constance Talmadge features.

COMMITTEE IS TO CONSIDER CHANGING UNIFORM CONTRACT

New York, Sept. 6.—The Hays office is working on a plan to form a permanent committee made up of representatives of various exhibitor organizations, which will suggest and consider changes in the uniform contract. The proposals for equal membership on the exhibitor advisory committee of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, the allied States organization, of which W. A. Stoffes is head, and the Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce of New York City.

The last-named organization had a great deal to do with the drafting and acceptance of the uniform booking contract, but the M. P. D. O. A. has always refused to recognize it officially, at least under the administration of Sydney S. Cassin, former president. If the idea works out the committee will meet in New York in the near future and will convene at least once a year thereafter.

KANE NEGOTIATING WITH FAMOUS PLAYERS

New York, Sept. 6.—Robert T. Kane, independent production manager for Famous Players-Lasky, is negotiating with that company with a view to having it handle the distribution of a series of pictures he will shortly produce. Nothing final has been accomplished, but it is generally understood that at least one of Kane's features will be released by Famous Players-Lasky.

Chautauqua at Merom, Indiana

Chautauqua program which recently closed at Merom, Ind., marked the twentieth year that it had in one of the most widely attended communities in the country. It is a remarkable thing that in a community of less than 1,000 people it should have secured success and popularity of that sort. Perhaps the explanation lies in the fact that Merom is a town and its surrounding communities are all well-to-do and intelligent people who value the value of both education and recreation.

Another reason for the success of the program at this point is undoubtedly due to the fact that Merom is one of the best of any communities in the country. The town is looking the Wabash River for miles with a view of two counties in Illinois, and its beautiful grounds of trees and an ideal location for the location of that town.

There is a memory of the program of the first season and interest of people in this small town of Merom.

In 1904 the late governor Johnson of Minnesota, Senator Cox of Oklahoma and the late Dr. A. W. W. were among the famous persons. In 1910 the late Gov. M. J. Perry, Gov. of Kansas, the late R. B. S. and Gov. of North Carolina. In 1917 the late Gov. of Ohio gave the program.

To go back to the program is a realization of the history of the American nation and I think there is no doubt that in America the education of the people and the progress of the people. In 1912 John M. Ball, the great actor, and the late Gov. of Ohio, and Gov. of New York, Russell H. Conwell brought the program. A series of lectures and the speakers were there with their Health Institute.

The program, such as has been presented at Merom for the past twenty years, gave to the people a great educational institution and it is to emphasize the fact that the ideal of the Merom Chautauqua has not been lowered in that time. During the year

With the authors can be regarded that there is to be found in the program. I believe that it is a new phase of progress. Mr. Ball is to be congratulated for his trail-blazing activities.

CULTURE TRIUMPHS

There is no doubt that the program of the Chautauqua at Merom is a triumph. It is a triumph in the sense that it has shown to the people of Merom that they can have the best of both worlds. It is a triumph in the sense that it has shown to the people of Merom that they can have the best of both worlds. It is a triumph in the sense that it has shown to the people of Merom that they can have the best of both worlds.

With me on every two, and every book a masterpiece of literature.

KETTERING ENGAGES DAY

Chautauqua and Lyceum activities of the Thomas Kettering will be entirely in the hands of Mr. Day. It was Mr. Day who staged "The Great Chautauqua" and Kettering's "The Great Chautauqua" play which opened a small festival in the past summer in the town of Sullivan, Ill. Now, after a long and prosperous career, Kettering is one of the most notable producers to take to the Chautauqua.

LITERATURE FOR THE MILLION

I never thought of the Chautauqua as the need of the people of the country. It is a triumph in the sense that it has shown to the people of Merom that they can have the best of both worlds. It is a triumph in the sense that it has shown to the people of Merom that they can have the best of both worlds.

gret to the world that the Billboards never be able to have the same kind of issues by a publisher who was well known to them in the dress they deserved.

Anderson, Ind., closed its chautauqua recently with the receipts and expenditures just about even. This has been a hard year for many of the chautauquas, owing to the late season which made the amount of about two weeks ago. It is many cases that made it absolutely impossible for managers to attend the chautauqua season.

Chancellor Bradford is promoting the installation of a "Peace College" in Washington, D. C., and reports that the matter has gone so far that its success is assured.

Mequoketa, Ia., reports that its recent chautauqua was the best ever held in that city. The committee has already arranged for another season next year.

"When Motormen Go on Strike", L. Verne Slout's successful comedy of domestic life, was presented by the "Cappy Rickett" Company on the Redpath Dominion Chautauquas in a number of towns where the latter comedy has already been performed.

Geoffrey F. Morgan will spend the fall months at his home in California, during which engagements to keep the wolf from the door. Mr. Morgan's Western bookings are handled by L. B. Crotty of the Los Angeles Redpath office. After January 1, however, he will complete another coast-to-coast tour before entering the chautauqua season.

The many friends of the Montague Light Opera Sadlers will learn with regret of the retirement of the organization from the Lyceum and chautauqua platform. Under the management of John Eichenberger, and the artistic direction of Miss Montague (now Mrs. Eichenberger) in private life of course, this company has maintained a high standard of excellence during a number of seasons.

The Washington (La.) Journal devoted a fine three-column review of the chautauqua program held in that city. In speaking of the music it said: "If the music of the assembly kept up to the high standard set yesterday afternoon and last night by the Jean Howard concert party, the chautauqua this year will be noted for its fine music."

Kookuk, Ia., went after the ticket sale in earnest for its chautauqua. The Gate City reports that "fifty teams" of local people spent one day in selling tickets for that event.

Oil City, Pa., reports that the chautauqua just closed there was the most successful in both program and attendance of any held there. In commenting on the program, the Daily Oil City says: "The 'Little Perseus' from Deiken, by Vincent Serrano, which was the most enterprising and truly original programs of the entire series, was the main feature of the closing night of the Spartan chautauqua."

"Mr. Battis bravely made the case of an impersonated become Heleke and was the most of forming pictures in the minds of people that will be remembered for some time. His first interpretation, that of Charles Dickens himself, was exact in every way as the pictures often seen of the famous author. Along with his interpretation Mr. Battis recited the lines describing the characters, and his make-up was fine. He represented the grandfather of little Nell, from the 'Old Curiosity Shop'. In two scenes, one in which he has lost all his money thru gambling and the other in which he returns home and finds that the spirit of little Nell, his chief solace in time of sorrow, and the one thing that had made life worth living, had departed to heaven. The audience was completely taken with the grief of the old man and with the life-like way in which he drew them to him in grief.

"Bill Sykes, a character from 'Oliver Twist', was depicted true to life. The heavy jaw, unkempt appearance and rough actions and voice that Oliver Twist so dreaded were represented. Many other characters were cleverly impersonated, outstanding among them being that of an old landlady and an old sea captain with their characteristics."

Harold Bachman's Million-Dollar Band, which has been making a fine record on the Loar Independent chautauquas, has been engaged for the municipal concert season at Tampa, Fla., the coming winter. The contract calls for twenty-six people.

Grant City, Mo., will have the Redpath-Vawter Chautauqua again next summer, eighty-seven seasons having signed for its return. The contract for 1925 is different than for the last summer says The Tribune of that city. The advance sale guarantee has been raised from $1,500 to $1,750 and the price of season tickets to $2.50. The reason given for the raise of the guarantee is that it is based on 75 per cent of the average annual cost of the preceding three years. The company divides with the local organization after gross receipts of $2,423.86 have been reached.

St. Madison, Ia., had an advance sale for the present summer of only 300 season tickets. For 1925 they have already sold 600 and they feel that success is assured.

Newville, Ind., boasts of a "rural chautauqua" which is run on an independent basis and the program is all secured by direct negotiation. The total expenditure this summer was $198.50, leaving a balance of $52.14.

Mound City, Mo., "went over the top" with a sale of season tickets for their chautauqua of $565 more than the guarantee.

The Denver (Col.) News, in its editorial column of August 10, has the following endorsement of the chautauqua:

"By bit chautauqua has broadened in scope and enriched itself in variety of material. The lecture has remained the backbone of the movement but around it have gathered many features for entertainment and instruction. Music has taken a big place, as it should, in latter-day programs. Clean amusement with a chance for the joy of laughter and the delight of wonder have helped rather than hindered its more serious mission. More and more the drama is gaining recognition because of its educational value. The play with a message is greatly in demand, and the stage has been given a new significance in many a community which had known only as the medium for the burlesque or melodrama troupers.

"It is not the least interesting and creditable feature of the chautauqua movement that it has maintained, in spite of all temptation, a fine loyalty to what is best and most worth while in American life. In every movement for a higher idealism of citizenship, for a more thoughtful and conservative attitude toward our community problems, chautauqua has been a force for good. There are those of cynical lip and supercilious brow who speak of it scornfully; but they are vastly outnumbered by the multitude which has found in chautauqua a broadening of horizons, a deepening of interest in significant things and an impulse to more fruitful living.

"May its next half century be as true to the good in America and as helpful in its service as the one which this week ended."

The Corning (Ia.) Free Press devoted more than three columns to its description of the Redpath-Vawter Chautauqua held there recently.

The Dillon (Mont.) Tribune says of the chautauqua recently held there: "There is no doubt in the minds of those who attended chautauqua this year that the entire community has been benefited in many ways and it is hoped by many that this city will not lose its interest and that some arrangement might be made to insure the service for next year in spite of the deficit in the guarantee."

The Macomb (Ill.) Chautauqua was closed abruptly before its closing day on account of a storm which tore down the tent.

At Titusville, Pa., the children of the Junior Chautauqua wrote essays on "What the Chautauqua Does". Frances Deehles, of Titusville, wrote the following:

"The chautauqua gives the boys and girls the advantage of hearing good music, good lectures and having a good time. Some have the advantage of this entertainment which they could not have otherwise. It gives a vacation or recreation to the children of the town and is also educational. The Junior Chautauqua is enjoyed by the children, judging from the attention and attendance which is given it. Last year I heard one girl say at the close of the chautauqua, 'I am going next year if I have to earn the money to buy the ticket,' and I notice that she is here. The Evolution of Popular Music

How It Has Been Influenced by the Great Composers

By ALDOUS HUXLEY

THE evolution of popular music has run parallel, on a lower plane, with the evolution of serious music. The people who compose popular tunes are not musicians enough to be able to invent new forms of expression. All they do is to adapt the discoveries of great men to the vulgar taste. Ultimately and indirectly Beethoven is responsible for all the languishing waltz tunes, all the dramatic pizzicatos, all the Negroid music of the contemporary theater and dance hall. He is responsible, because it was he who first devised really effective musical methods for the direct expression of passion and emotions. Beethoven's passions and emotions happened to be noble, but he was too intellectual a musician to neglect the formal architectural side of music. But, unhappily, he made it possible for his discoveries for people of infinitely inferior mind and character to express in music their less exalted passions and vulgar emotions. He made possible the occasional sentimentalities of Schumann, the baroque theatricality and sham grandiosity of Wagner, the hysterics of Scriabin; and he made possible the waltzes of all the Strausses, from the "Blue Danube" to the waltz out of "Salome". He made possible, at a still further remove, such masterpieces of popular art as "You Made Me Love You" and "That Old Black Mammy of Mine". The corruption of the best too often becomes the worst; "illies that fester smell far worse than weeds."

We come to the last great influence which made modern popular music what it is—the influence of barbarism. Barbarism has entered popular music from two sources, directly from such barbarous music as that of the Negroes, and from serious music which has, in its turn, drawn upon barbarous music for its inspiration. The technique of being barbarous effectively has come, of course, from serious music. In the elaboration of this technique of barbarism no musicians have done more than the Russians. If Rimsky Korskoff had never lived, we may doubt whether jazz would be the finished product that it is.

Whether the public, having grown inured to such violent and purely physiological stimuli as the clashing and drumming and rhythmic tom-tomming of barbarous jazz music can supply, will ever revert to something less crudely direct is a matter about which one cannot safely prophesy. Even serious musicians seem to find it hard to dispense with the barbarous convention. In spite of the really appalling lack of subtlety which characterizes the whole process they persist in banking away in the old Russian manner as the there were nothing more interesting or exciting to be conceived. When, as a boy, I first heard Russian music, I remember being carried off my feet by its wild and savage melodies, its persistent hammering rhythms. But the excitement grew less and less with every hearing. Today no music seems to me more tedious. The only music a civilized man can take unalloyed pleasure in is civilized music. But most of our composers seem to ignore this fact; we are overwhelmed not merely with Russian and Negroid noises but with Celtic caterwaulings on the black notes, with dismal Spanish wailings, punctuated by the clashing harmonies of the guitar and rattling castanets. It may be that when all the serious musicians have gone back to civilized music we shall hear a corresponding change for the more refined in popular music.

NEW PLAYS

many graduates to him. He is a graduate of Yale, Oxford and many other universities, and has a collection of mysterious antiques. Also a crystal ball which he introduced when he was a young man. The opening action takes place about 1,000 years ago and Helen and Robert Chaudes run into Chang's shop for protection when a few forces start a scouting party. The ending has been arranged by Chang who seeks revenge for what Chaudes did to his father. During St. Ven. years back in China. In fact, Chaudes has a weak heart and Chang begins to steal it in short order when he is ill. The beautiful wife is "hooked" with a cup of tea and she is Chang's slave for the next decade. After a funny sound act, in which the beautiful son of Chang's wife partners with a girl despite his effeminate timidity, the action swears again to the Chinese shop. The beautiful girl is the daughter of Chaudes, who was once a slave of Chang's, but he rebels when he is to be married to her. It ends with Chang being poisoned by his own weapon and his wife gets released to retrieve her own son and long-lost daughter.

The author and producer of the play, two years ago and the very successful "Cat and Canary," but there is as much difference between that earlier and "The Green Beeth" as there is space between here and Mars. Gordon has given the play a nice little production. The Chinese shop has been done handsomely, and expensively as well. This not only goes for the fixtures of the shop but for the apparel worn there. This set works for both the first and last act, while the intervening scene, that of a cheap hotel room, is arranged cheaply, of course. From the general aspect, the sponsors had their eyes on the movie rights when they put it on the show. The technique of the action and the elements which the film would allow a certain indication of the play making a corking picture.

Whatever real merit the play possesses as it seems to do more to the acting than to the story of the author. The Maclaren, as Chang Hong, the Chinese in the cast, had a rich voice for the most flowing language of the Chinks. He did perfectly well with the role, always being the suave, well-mannered man of unusually keen observation. He worked quite bravely. Blanche Oelrichs, as the wife of Hong's servant, moved about helplessly and answered and obeyed with meeklike quietness. Thereafter as Helen Chaudes also had the soft tones needed for the atmosphere of the set, and a fine, flowing, gushing wife and later as the wife who suffers from amnesia was adequate and realistic in her characterization.

Took Korbun, as Tom Baxter, gave one of the best comedy performances we've seen in some time. As the young man's son of a fortune father he was a series of wows at their second act. He showed a character in many ways stable, and it is too bad that the actor did not arrange to let him just up the third act in a free-for-all scrap, instead of just being Chang die like a sainted gentleman, others in the cast did all that was expected of them. M. H. SHAPIRO.

WHAT THE NEW YORK CRITICS SAY

"The Chocolate Dandies" (Colonial Theater)

WORLD: "It would be worth while if it had nothing else but Eddie Blake and Joe Smith or the endless singing of Low Payton. But it has Noble Slesie, a comely high-brow clown and the neatest collection of dancing feet on Broadway."

TRIBUNE: "Undoubtedly one of the best Negro shows that has been seen in New York. This is a thoroughly amusing show equipped with good music."

TELEGRAM-MAIL: "When it comes to 'Dandies' but these Chocolate Dandies can't be beat."

POST: "There is more pep, punch and real muscle of various sorts in this new show than can be found in a dozen white revues."

TRIBUNE: "New York has never seen a colored show to compare with this rip-roaring revue. There is more pep in two hours than any show has brought to town."

EVENING WORLD: "All in all it is a good evening's entertainment."

"Top Hole" (Fulton Theater)

WORLD: "If the girls make the show a personal comedy and the book matters not at all, then 'Top Hole' is good. It has everything but one important item—humor."

TRIBUNE: "The cast was uniformly good. The book being what it was, it is hard to imagine what the production would be without an actor of his talent and personality. The show was everything a chorus should be. There was nothing just needed from the production."

HERALD-TRIBUNE: "Its book isn't much. But it is a couple of good times and it has a smart and compact cast that can take a lot of punishment."

POST: "That chorus was a thing of beauty and joy forever. Ernest Glendinning was a delight. ... Ann Murray began a spritz that lasted the rest of the evening."

"Havoc"

(Maxine Elliott Theater)

TIMES: "Havoc" is a melodrama above the usual in its sum of ideas and sentiments."—Stark Young.

HERALD: "Plot unfolds smoothly and logically ... in spite of much action, and the dialogue always direct, natural and sane."—Charles Belmont Davis.

WORLD: "In its fullness of detail to the minutiae of the front line, 'Havoc' will surely thrill."—Quinn Martin.

POST: "'Havoc' is really a love story ... with war as a background and love going out to be more devastating than war."—John Anderson.

"Nerves"

(Comedy Theater)

TIMES: "The play comes off with the simplicity of stuff written for the theater, using the accepted devices of the theater, and acted by actors in the same spirit."

WORLD: "According to my emotional standards, Nerves is a bad play ... It would seem, ..."

SIN: "Somehow, music and melodrama war play."—Alexander Woolcott.

EVENING WORLD: "A play ... for the most part will win ... in which is sustained interest and excellent coloring."

"The Haunted House"

THE SUN: "From ... of its ... spots. Pretty good, most ... in structure."—Alexander Woolcott.

TELEGRAM MAIL: "The ... brow of ... of ... 'The Tavern' ... is ..."

THE WORLD: "In 'The Haunted House' Mr. Davis ... to get a good deal of ... of the week ... and this year it is ..."

HERALD TRIBUNE: "After looking like a ... with ... of ... in ..."

EVENING POST: "It is an ... idea, ... well ... by Mr. ..."

"The Green Beetle"

D. D. MURPHY SHOWFOLKS

Honor Memory of Clarence A. Wortham

The Danville (Pa.) Commercial News of recent date contained the following mention:
"Four... funeral... memorial services... Springfield Cemetery... Danville... members of the D. D. Murphy Show... now exhibiting at the fair... A special street car was chartered and a number of others were taken to the cemetery from the fairgrounds in automobiles... The little party formed at the cemetery gate and marched to the last resting place of the little saint of the carnival world... The carnival band played 'Rock of Ages', Mayor P. E. Shouse spoke a few words in behalf of the men and women of the carnival company, and a beautiful floral wreath, bearing the words: 'In Memory of Our Beloved Friend' was placed on the grave... Mayor Shouse stated that since the death of Mr. Wortham at least ten shows and carnival companies have held memorial services at the grave in Springfield Cemetery, which showed the esteem in which he was held by showmen in general all over the country... He said the funeral in 1922 was also one of the largest ever held in Springfield Cemetery in recent years."

"A man who would have friends must show a friendly spirit, and you would not be here today, nor would the other companies that have paid their respects to the memory of Clarence Wortham, if he had not been a man who made friends. The man who lives for himself alone is soon forgotten, but the man who lives for others is remembered," said the speaker.
"I know that it is with a deep feeling of sadness that you come here today with bowed heads and it must have been with that same feeling and sadness that you heard the news of his untimely death."
"Some of you were formerly employed in his company, some of you have received your pay checks from his hand or the hand of one of his officials, and others of you have heard of him and know of him while he was alive. He was a man beloved by those who knew him and I am glad that you have come here today to pay your respects to his memory."
"Before this short program had been completed there were a number of tear-dimmed eyes in the little audience. All stood with uncovered heads during the ceremony."

SMITH GREATER SHOWS

Soon To Make a Long Jump South

Oconto Falls, Wis., Sept. 2.—Altho forced to lose the first day of their engagement at Mauston, Wis., because of heavy rains and a flood at Freeport, Ill., the Smith Greater Shows had a fairly successful run the remainder of the week there. From Mauston the show went to Waupun, Wis., for an American Legion fair and a Labor Day Celebration. While nearly all conditions pointed to an excellent business week, another rather serious situation has arisen. In a mosquito epidemic that has infested Southern Wisconsin, making it very uncomfortable not only for the showfolks but those wishing to visit the amusements. The people have "smoke screens" around their houses, and the showmen burn smoke fires in front of the concessions and tents and outside the tents in order to smother the mosquitoes.
E. K. Smith, owner, is a way taking treatment for his eyes. Mrs. Claude Merry will remain at Nashville, Tenn., for a while, she having accompanied Mr. Smith to there. Recently, General Agent A. E. Longden returned to the show at Waupun after controlling the show at seventeen consecutive fair dates in the South. He visited E. K. Smith at Nashville and brought back word that E. K. is receiving good treatment and probably will be back with the show soon. Mrs. E. K. Smith has the "midway restaurant" named "O'Brien" Smith at the cashier's desk, also has lunch and con game concessions. Two last-season trotters with this carnival returned at Freeport, they being the Smith Brothers, and are managed by Mrs. E. K. Smith's list of agents. This Smith is still on the show and is just reporting from his attack of illness last winter. The Athletic Show has found the good business in this territory. From Waupun the show comes to Oconto Falls to play a 14 day date. It has but two more fairs in Wisconsin, then makes a big jump to Georgia for its Southern dates. The recently purchased Langley calliope, mounted on a special truck, is under the supervision and care of "Slim" Davis and "Bill" Murray and makes its advertising trips daily.

CALIFORNIA SHOWS

Provide Attractions at Hornell (N. Y.) Fair

Hornell, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Sam Anderson's California Shows furnished the attractions on the midway at the Hornell Fair last week. The rides were A. C. Smith's merry-go-round, Clayton Wood's Ferris wheel and Sam Anderson's "caterpillar." Other attractions were Anderson's matador, W. E. Phillips' athletic show, Ted Metz's "Amphib and Amphibian" and the Musical Magic. It is expected that Anderson, S. Dora, the "largest horse," and J. W. West's Curiosity Shop.

Canton, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The Crounse United Shows were on the midway at the St. Lawrence County Fair here last week. It was the second year they had played the fair.

Sells-Floto Makes Decided Impression in Cincinnati

Has Excellent Array of Circus and Animal Features—"The Bride and the Beasts" a Beautiful "Spec"

A circus which has not visited Greater Cincinnati in eight years was Sells-Floto, which held forth in the city for the first time in 1916 and in Norwood the following day. It was in 1916 that this show last appeared in this vicinity, being in Newport, Ky., June 7 and in Norwood June 8.

The Sells-Floto Circus, under the efficient management of Zack Torrell, was welcomed by Cincinnati folks and did very good business considering the fact that it was on Monday night, September 1, and that the second day was partly cloudy.

A new lot in Norwood was used for the first time by this circus, in fact it was the only "white-top" aggregation which has shown in that suburb this season. The show had close quarters in the new location, the menagerie being in one side without a "top".

This circus deserves to be patronized and would no doubt have had bigger crowds if weather conditions were more conducive. Cincinnatians liked the show and indicated it by their applause and by remaining until the final number. The performance, a combination of spectacle, circus and animal features, ranks with the best. It is indeed a class show.

What was liked among other things was the manner in which the various acts were put on. There were no seats, and the animal numbers did not become tiresome. This can be attributed to the experienced director, Fred Ledgett, who keeps the show moving at a fast pace.

The Monday night performance (September 1), thru the arrangement of The Times-Star, Cincinnati newspaper, was broadcast by Radio Station WLW. Three announcers, to cover the "big top", the side-show and the menagerie, were furnished by the circus.

The spectacle, "The Bride and the Beasts", opening feature, was a novelty that thrilled by its originality and presentation. It is said with song, the singing being very good. The prima donnas were in good voice. In the program are bears and wild girls who sing and march and add to the striking ensemble. There are horses, elephants and camels in the production.

HAGENBECK-WALLACE

Has Big Day in Memphis, Tenn., Labor Day—Parade Called Off

The Memphis management of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, September 1, was one of the latter days of the season, several tents greeting the show at both performances. J. C. Knapp, general agent, and Jack Warren, press representative, were in Memphis several days before the arrival of the show, getting everything in readiness. Mr. Warren called off the parade as soon as he had ridden over the route, as it was more than 1000 miles from the Tennessee fair grounds to the old town district and return. The out-and-out lot of the engagement was the Riding Davonports, (sic) ally Orrin Davonport. At the evening performance he responded to three cheers.

The Memphis Avenue had a review of the show, saying in part: "The Hagenbeck-Wallace show is an all favorite in Memphis and the audience were highly appreciative. The circus were a genuine family and conformed among their ranks with veterans as Joe C. via, B. L. Hart, "Kid" Keenard, Louis Plamondon, Earl Sauley, James Ferguson and Walter Goodenough. The quality of the acts was of the best and the animal collection what is present agent called for in Memphis will be glad to have this circus return next year."

Sparks Triumphs in Tour of Dominion

Returning to States After Two Months in Canada, Circus Retains Staleness

When seen at Middletown, O., September 3 the Sparks Circus was as stately as ever in general appearance, and the program sparkled with the snappy and outstanding features that, combined with its well-known policy of cleanliness, established the Sparks organization well to the front in showdom. This condition is emphasized in the fact that after a trying but triumphant tour of Canada, the circus entered the Dominion at St. Johns, N. B., June 30, and terminated a jaunt of 5,200 miles, during which about fifty towns and cities were played, at Windsor, Ont., August 20. In their campaign the Sparks Circus spread its fame as far north as Quebec and entered the Dominion of introducing the white-tops at four stands.

In the animal department the Sparks Circus is prominent. The polar bear, tiger and liberty horse acts, all those presented by Franz Woske, are faultless from a standpoint of training and mode of presentation. A lion act that is especially marvelous and astounding enough to satisfy the most hardened admirer of wild animal mastery is offered by Steve Barty. The big show performance also affords a goodly measure of other animal acts, ground and wheel, but of the latter that easily meet the standard of the sprightly arena, a timorous and cowardly opening, the only and enough complete, appears to dress the clown content in a piece of his own.

A review of the show's opening program of the season at Middletown, O., April 5, reported in The Billboard at that time, and two few changes have been made, it is not amiss to remember the present arrangement.

"ADVANCE MAN" IN JAIL

While awaiting trial at Middletown, O., on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, C. E. Pasha, 39, of Detroit, Mich., was arrested there August 31 on complaint of A. E. Barnett, twenty-four-hour man of the Sparks Circus, as representing himself as an agent of that show and endeavoring to get for him advertising, authorities are investigating reports that the prisoner is connected with similar frauds abroad of other cities. Pasha, 38, said, is also known as "Mott" Davis, and previously was employed in circusdom.

He is alleged to have collected sums as advance payment for banners for the Sparks Circus in Windsor, Ont.; Delmore, Sidney and Middletown, O. Barnett caught up with him at the same hotel in Middletown.

Preliminary hearing at Middletown, September 3, resulted in an order sending Pasha over to the Superior Court of the county.

J. L. BUCK TO AFRICA

J. L. Buck, of Camden, N. J., will sail September 23 for Africa to secure a shipment of chimpanzees for next spring. He had a very successful trip last spring bringing over eleven of the animals, many monkeys, small cats, mice, etc. Buck's son, Warren L., will also make the trip. Buck will cover twelve columns in Mr. A. H.'s recent entertaining reports from his correspondents about Africa and expects to return with a full cargo of animals.

Bleton of Hot Springs, Mrs. W. H. Wells, who has been visiting her husband, contractor, for a week, has returned to her home, Coaster E. Barnett, charged clown, is looking forward to the engagement at Cairo. Has home town John Helhoff, son tender, has fully recovered from the attack by Caesar, giant Nubian lion. Mr. Helhoff, while in the hospital at Bedford, Ind., received a check from a sympathetic feminine spectator for $200, which he promptly returned.

Bert Noves, superintendent, is getting ready for new additions and has disposed of the ringy leopard from the Bonnet Bill Show and sold "Tessa", one of the elephant herd, to the Jackson (Miss.) Zoological Garden. Blaney Logan, who had charge of the "take and earn" circuit for some time, was compelled to leave for his home in Hot Springs, Ark., owing to ill health. W. E. Bailey, manager of the dining car, is out on his own, and Jim Knolly, assistant, also is coming in for rest.

Charles Day is out with the old who ze that this is his last season. Charles Brady, superintendent of props, has never made a miss at his job and his force is for him by a man. YEAGER BROS.' SHOWS

Enjoying Splendid Business in the Northwest

The Yeager Bros.' Golden West Shows are in the Northwest and enjoying splendid business in the smaller towns. The show is transported on several trucks and introduces a number of innovations not usually seen with smaller units. An electric light plant was recently added. The Yeager Brothers have a stake called in their business, that has seen active service for thirty-five consecutive seasons and owned continuously by the same family. John Yeager had the stake pulled made in Leesland, Mo., in 1889, before either of the two, now owners, were born. Mr. Yeager, Sr., used the equipment for many years, then the Mads' West with his wagon shows, gradually working over the West and Northwest. The stake puller is still good for many years.

PASSING OF THOMAS STIRK

The circus world will regret to learn of the passing of Thomas M. Stirk, head of the famous Stirk family act of bicyclists, etc., of old-time fame, who died at the Hamilton Court Hotel, Cincinnati August 30, and was buried in Spring Grove Cemetery, September 2. Mr. Stirk was born in England and was about 65 years of age. He was a prominent artist in his day, and had out many of the large shows, including the Barnum & Bailey, Sells Bros., Eschmeyer, Sells and Walter Shows. He is understood to have Tony Pastor brought Stirk Bros. to the city in the early eighties. Stirk also had his own show and traveled practically all over the world.

OKLAHOMA MAYOR FAVORS SHOWING OF R.-B. CIRCUS

Oklahoma City, Ok., Sept. 5—Mayor Cargill has notified the management of the Ringling Barnum Circus that it may show here October 2. Cargill acted in this fashion, following the refusal of Wall in F. A. Barty, finance commissioner, to give to the show a permit. Valberg sought advance to the city ordinance requiring that the circus pay a $1000 license. Two other city commissioners, Warren H. Abner and Bob Lanning, backed the mayor in his stand.

A Boom in Circus Magazine Writing

By C. G. STURTEVANT
(State College, New Mexico)

For many years I have been a circus fan and collector of circus literature. Some time ago over a year ago there was published in The Billboard, issue of June 25, 1923, to be exact, an article in which I outlined in brief a list of books and articles on the great American amusement organization. Those who read it will recall that I deplored the scarcity of good circus material in our magazines. By a coincidence (not due to my mention of it), three began to appear almost immediately many excellent pieces of writing, both fiction and descriptive material in our magazines. By a coincidence (not due to my mention of it), three began to appear almost immediately many excellent pieces of writing, both fiction and descriptive material in our magazines. By a coincidence (not due to my mention of it), three began to appear almost immediately many excellent pieces of writing, both fiction and descriptive material in our magazines.

The two most prolific writers at present are Courtney Rely Cooper, former press agent of the Sells-Floto Show, and Earl Chapin May, a newspaperman, who it is understood began his career as a circus haulman. Practically every month recently one or more articles appear in one or more magazines by either or both of these gentlemen. Moreover, they are both bringing out books their own leading publishers. Mr. Cooper's "Under the Big Top" Little Brown & Co., Boston, and his forthcoming "Lions, Tigers & Everything" by the same publishers may be mentioned, as well as Mr. May's splendid piece of fiction, "Caddy of the White Top", published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. In the new Liberty Magazine Harvey Denell has produced two the two short articles, the latest being "The Lady Who Wrestles the Tiger", based on an interview with Mabel Stark, the great trainer with the Ringling-Barnum & Bailey Show. The well known Wells Hawks, who wrote "Red Wagon Stories" twenty years ago is again with us in "Animal Story" in a late number of Collier's. Edwin B. Norwood, press agent for the Ringling-Barnum & Bailey Show, has written some fine illustrated articles for The Illustrated World. A piece of fiction writing, provided it is grounded on good accurate knowledge of the facts of circus life, is most entertaining, but the public is too well informed to stand for the impossible. Some of the articles were written (Continued on page 85)

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR A REAL LEADER

REMEY RESIGNS

Retires From Secretaryship of Wisconsin State Fair After Ten Years' Service—1924 Fair a Success

Milwaukee, Sept. 2.—Following the close of the Wisconsin State Fair Saturday O. E. Remy, for ten years secretary of the fair, and Charles Hart, head of the concessions department, tendered their resignations following a clash with John D. Jones, Jr., State commissioner of agriculture. It was announced that both men would leave their jobs within ten days.

Mr. Remy said that when he ends his connection with the fair he will enter the amusement concession business and attempt to make some money—something that he has not done as secretary of the fair.

"I have been secretary of the fair for ten years," he said, "and I haven't one cent more now than I had on the day I took the job. I have kept this place at a financial sacrifice and it is no hardship to leave it. I shall visit other State fairs and make connections that I do not care to reveal now."

Mr. Remy was appointed secretary of the fair by the late P. Norgaard, commissioner of agriculture under the administration of Gov. E. L. Phillip. Upon the appointment of Mr. Jones it was expected that changes would be made for political reasons. This is the second fair under the direction of Mr. Jones.

Mr. Remy's friends claim that Mr. Jones, having no knowledge of the fair or the manner in which it should be conducted, waited until he had learned what he could from Mr. Remy and then provoked a break.

Charles Hart, superintendent of concessions for many years, said that in resigning he is merely carrying out the intention he expressed last spring when the fair management, against his wishes, prevailed upon him to remain another year.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—With the last showing of the fireworks spectacle Saturday night the 1924 Wisconsin State Fair closed. Despite the fact that attendance and receipts fell behind the records of other years the fair made a most satisfactory record.

The total attendance this year was 222,885, as compared with 231,000 last year. The gate receipts were $85,010.35, as compared with $105,511.55.

Saturday's attendance was 20,304, as against 22,484 on the closing day last year. Gate receipts Saturday were $10,620.70, while on the closing day last year they were $11,337.00.

Perhaps the most outstanding thing about the fair this year was the fact that the farmer was not there. That is why the attendance fell. The wonderful weather of fair week was trony, for it was weather which cut down fair attendance.

"The fair all around was one of the best we ever have offered," said John D. Jones, Jr., commissioner of agriculture, Saturday night. "Most departments set a record for entries. In view of conditions, the attendance was wholly satisfactory."

Olivier E. Remy, secretary, said: "The weather was one of the State Fair's best exhibits, yet economic conditions and some other factors which I do not wish to discuss, kept the attendance down. The gross receipts, however, despite the loss of the automobile show, will be larger than in 1923."

"Patrons are of the opinion that the 1924 State Fair was the best Wisconsin ever has presented. Patrons should be the court of last resort in this matter."

"Many representatives of other fairs, including the president of the Minnesota State Fair and secretaries of fifteen other State Fairs, were here during the week looking at the various departments."

"While the Wisconsin State Fair is of a high class and getting better each year it is by no means perfect. Many things should be done to improve it, and I hope that needed improvements will be made as soon as possible."

"This is my fourth State Fair as secretary, and I am proud of this State Fair as showing continued progress and improvement."

The concessions added as much to the total receipts as in other years, which is remarkably good considering conditions, according to Charles Hart, superintendent of privileges. The concessionaires made no money this year, he said, because attendance was not very good and people apparently had little money to spend.

The amusement park receipts are figured separate from the other concessions. Mr. Hart said the park took in gross receipts of $8,800.15 on Thursday night, of which the fair's percentage amounted to $8,341.96. Prior to fair week the park grossed $80,800.36 of which the fair got $13,200.40. This makes total gross receipts of $130,000.54 since the amusement park opened July 4, 1924, the fair $27,855.00. Amusement park receipts were $7,573.01 Monday, $8,200.47 Tuesday, $9,000.04 Wednesday, and $14,000 (estimated) Thursday.

FAIR PLANT IS ONE OF BEST IN AMERICA

Amusement Program of Surpassing Excellence—Morris & Castle Shows on Midway

By NAT S. GREEN

So many different things enter into the composition of the present-day State fair that to place upon any one fair the label of "greatest" or "biggest" is to at once invite controversy.

But unquestionably there are several really great State fairs in the United States—fairs that have, in a measure, "found" themselves—and the yet in a state of transition are developing the characteristics of solidly based institutions and making themselves felt in an educational way in no uncertain manner. The Minnesota State Fair at Hamline, just outside of St. Paul, is one of these. It is a genuine leader among fairs, and in many respects stands in a class by itself.

It was the very great pleasure of the writer to visit the fair on Labor Day this year for the first time, and to say that many surprises were in store for him is putting it mildly. The extent of the grounds amazed; the size, construction and number of buildings was a revelation, and one could but marvel at the wonderful array of exhibits representing every branch of industry, art and all human endeavor. The grounds of the Minnesota State Fair cover an area of 270 acres. The plant as a whole is one of the best in America. The buildings, many of them of brick, steel and concrete construction, are of the types best suited to the various uses to which they are put, and there seems to have been an orderly growth and a more or less systematic arrangement of the buildings with a view to convenience and attractiveness. There is an immense grand stand from which every part of the two race tracks is plainly visible. The streets are well laid out and in first-class condition, and at each intersection there are plainly lettered signs directing to the various buildings and exhibits. There is a branch postoffice, a telegraph and telephone building, a convenient press building, numerous well-lit lavatories, drinking fountains located at convenient points, information booths scattered about the grounds and in charge of courteous attendants, concession stands attractively framed and many of them of a permanent nature, fair officials courteous and friendly, an efficient traffic regulation system. These are but a few of the many features that one notices as he strolls about the spacious grounds, but they impress one with the efficiency and thoroughness of the management, and make a lasting favorable impression on the visitor.

Here as in Toronto, the writer's time was quite limited and he could but skim over the good things abundantly. Probably the outstanding department was the cattle show. Here were seen half of the swine, horses and sheep representing the best herds, flocks and bands in the United States and Canada. The Northwest Fair in Vancouver was one of the leading educational shows of the fair and was housed in the largest building ever erected in the country. Some of the exhibits in agriculture, horticulture and stock raising, and women's work, home economics, art, and handicrafts, varied and interesting, and several others covered the general fields most comprehensively. In all, 1,500 boys and girls were enrolled and their exhibits and demonstrations were tremendously interesting. Some 100 subjects were displayed in the art exhibit and there were daily gallery tours and demonstrations by Dudley Crafts, Wisconsin former director of the Milwaukee Art Institute.

Music occupied an important place at the fair. There were in all seventeen bands and orchestras, which included the Minnesota State Band, St. Paul, Al Savo's Chicago Cadet Band, 125th Infantry Band, Minnesota National Guard, Minneapolis 200th Infantry Band, St. Paul State Training School Band, G. G. St. Mary's, Minneapolis Working Boys' Band, Minn. Concert Band (Globe), Minn. Conductor Minn. Band, Condo, Minn. Austin Boy Scout Band, Austin, Minn.; Hibbing Concert Band, Hibbing, Minn.; Elk River High School Band, Elk River, Minn.; Osmau Temple Shriners' Band, St. Paul; Minnesota State Orchestra, St. Paul; Larsen's Novelty Orchestra, New Elm, Minn.; Mrs. Linquist's Orchestra, Minneapolis; Morgan G. A. R. Drum Corps, Minneapolis; St. Paul Fire Department Drum and Bugle Corps. There also was White Brothers and Stendal, St. Paul, vocal trio.

Thrilling auto races were on the program for two days, the opening Saturday and Sunday—and there were four days of high-class harness racing. Each afternoon and night a magnificent show was presented in front of the grand stand. The hippodrome attractions consisted of the Three Golfers, gymnasts; Adair and Adair, comedy trade bar; S. B. Belfords, risley acrobatic work; Joe DeKoe, Troupe acrobats; Lucile Anderson and her lovely diving nymphs; the Monarchs, equi-artistic humorists; the Ten London Stoppers, dancers; the Maxwell's, foot juggling; the Holman Troupe, acrobatic equestrians; the Flivings Codonas, aerialists; Cliff Curran, "the swinging phenomenon"; White Brothers and Stendal, musical trio; and the Yeoman K. H. G. in brilliant military and fancy drills. On the track auto pushball and polo provided both thrills and amusement. The first ball, power polo was especially interesting. The feature of the night show was the fireworks spectacle, "Tokyo," staged by the Thearle Duffield Co., of Chicago. This magnificent spectacle formed a fitting climax to a wonderfully entertaining show.

There were other entertainment features interspersed throughout the fair, and a number of features that combined education and entertainment—such, for instance, as the health circus, motion pictures, etc.

On the midway this year were the Morris & Castle Shows, and they presented a highly pleasing appearance. Not only were the fronts and robes most attractive, but there were shows of genuine merit, and on Labor Day, the day the writer was present, every show rode and attraction on the midway operated to absolute capacity during practically the entire afternoon and evening. Messrs. Morris & Castle have a splendid show and a most efficient staff. Many compliments on the beautiful appearance of the midway were heard, both from fair men and visiting sportsmen. Probably the most beautiful fronts of that of the Wild West show. During the early part of the season when the snow was playing sad havoc this front was the entrance to the midway. As no entrance arch is used at fairs grounds the front has been reconstructed and redecorated for the Wild West and especially as a stage when illuminated. It presents a beautiful appearance. The lucky hand to holding has a new front that adds much to the attractiveness of that feature, and Jiggs' Cafe has a novel front that attracts patronage. Harry Calvert's water show is an attractive treat—and Harry has an attractive show. As a matter of fact the entire midway presents a clean, fresh and inviting appearance. Scott Young has a show that is intensely interesting. It consists of a number of the Younger Brothers, Jesse James and other noted outlaws, officers, etc., done in most lifelike style, and Younger gives a most interesting account of the careers of the characters depicted.

Notes of the Fair

Labor Day started off with a light rain which threatened to spoil the day, but toward noon the clouds began to dissipate and the balance of the day was ideal. No doubt the threatening weather cut down attendance considerably. Nevertheless there was an immense crowd on hand and all amusement attractions led a tremendous business, easily topping last year's record.

Thomas H. Caulfield, secretary-manager of the fair was a very busy man, but not too busy for a cheery word of greeting. Ray P. Spear, too, was right on the job at the press bureau.

One of the early visitors was John C. Simpson, president of the World Amusement Service Association and former secretary and manager of the Minnesota State Fair. This was his first visit to the fair since he left it in 1914, and he was immensely pleased with the growth the fair has made. Mr. Simpson's two sons accompanied him.

"POP" GEERS DIES "IN THE HARNESS"

Grand Old Man of the Turf Fatally Injured When His Horse Fell in Race at Wheeling

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 7.—Edward P. (Pop) Geers, veteran reinsman of Memphis, Tenn., was injured fatally yesterday afternoon in the first harness race at the West Virginia State Fair when his mare, Mikah Guy, stumbled and fell.

As the mare fell the silky overturned and Geers was catapulted into the air with terrific force. He received injuries from which he died three hours later at the Ohio Valley General Hospital at his bedside when the end came were his nephew, Robert Neal, of Memphis, and two life-long friends, Lyle Schaffer and Boderek Patterson, both noted horsemen.

The body was taken to Memphis today and from there will go to Columbia, Tenn., for burial tomorrow. A large number of friends today to pay a tribute to the memory of (Continued on page 81)

RECORD CROWD AT CONNECTICUT FAIR

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 3.—A record opening-day crowd of 60,000 filled Charter Oak Park on the first day of the Connecticut Fair, filling the grounds and stands. Thousands watched the Grand Circuit races and a fine bill of free nets. Concessionaires drew a big business.

President Galtra threw open the grounds Sunday and 30,000 people pressed thru the free gate. The association looks for the biggest fair in years. Admission has been cut to 75 cents this year. Grand Circuit races are held five days and auto races on Saturday.

EASTERN CANADIAN FAIRS ARE NOT SO NUMEROUS

Several Canceled This Year—Season Now On—Fredericton Gets No Grant

St. John, N. B., Sept. 5.—Fairs will not be as plentiful in Eastern Canada this fall as during 1923. There were so many of the exhibitions last year that deficits were reported...

features will be harness racing, fireworks, baseball games, outdoor vandyie and band concerts. There will be a midway.

The dates of the St. John Fair have not been selected as yet but indications are that this fair will be held between the first and fifteenth of October.

The directors of the Fredericton Fair have not been disturbed by the nongranting of the usual grant by the New Brunswick government.

The St. John Exhibition, formerly a biennial fair and now yearly, opened August 30, being the first of the Eastern annual fairs to open this year.

MRS. BOBBY FISHER INJURED

Mrs. Bobby Fisher, of the Five Fearless Fishers, while exhibiting at the Warren Fair, was hurled out of the big net and thrown against a bar pulley block used for tightening the net.

Wet apparatus, due to a heavy rain, was the cause of the accident.

TWO NEW RECORDS SET BY MISSOURI STATE FAIR

Largest Attendance and No Rain—Well-Balanced Amusement Program

Sedalia, Mo., Sept. 2.—Two records were established at the twenty-fourth annual Missouri State Fair, which closed its eight-day exposition at Sedalia August 27.

Previous money totaling $75,000 was paid by the state fair board to the exhibitors. More than $70,000 of this amount went to fair products and when the final summary was made it was found that for the largest percentage of the money was awarded to Missouri exhibitors.

The gratification of the attendance means equally over the eight days as one of the things for which the fair board has been striving for many years.

The quality of exhibits was the noticeable feature of the annual exhibition. In some departments not so many entries were made this year, but judges and exhibitors alike commented on the quality of the live stock, farm crops, machinery, varied industrial exhibits, home manufactures and the displays from the various schools of Missouri.

A well-balanced amusement program was another feature of the fair that caused no little amount of favorable comment. The programs were arranged on a strategic at definite times and in definite places, so that there was something of the amusement nature going on all of the time.

The motto of having every visitor a satisfied customer will come close to a realization as a result of the fair. There were some complaints, but these, as would be expected from a crowd of 220,000, were of a minor nature.

A glance at the Board Directory in this issue may cause considerable time and inconvenience.

The World Amusement Show Association of Chicago is forming the prospectors and the Tiarle-Duttons to work Canada in connection with the fireworks for the night displays.

The 1921 fair promises to be one of the largest in the way of live stock exhibits, as all species have been reserved and it will be necessary to build a great many temporary stalls and pens.

One of the features of the Dutton combination was Vernon Devere, the little lady who bears the top high in the air. Nedie Jordan and Gene, who were walking and dancing; Spark Dog and Charlie, who were a riot on the track; Tom, Dick and Harry on the hayrack trampolining; the famous Dekos Brothers...

The combination will be seen at many of the big Southern fairs.

CARNIVAL TIME AT WHITE CITY, CHICAGO

The carnival time at White City, Chicago, opened August 19 and will continue to and including September 11. Over one thousand dollars in cash and many valuable prizes are to be given away during the two weeks of the festival. A very nice parade, with big brass bands and the midgets, will parade the boardwalk and the concession grounds. Chicago men and women, acting as judges, award the prizes and cash. Free rides are also given to those who are masked. Tons of confetti, horns, noisemakers and every conceivable device, at the disposal of the patrons, flow inside the gates of White City, gleam of color in a flood of joy and one is swept along on a wave of gaiety that is irresistible.

The twin ballrooms are decorated to fit the spirit of the occasion and on Wednesday night, September 10, a monster indoor carnival will be held. Sig Mayer, and his bands and Al Lehman and his Royal Polka Orchestra, the two recognized leading dance orchestras in Chicago, play the tunes for the White City dancers. The White City Roller Rink is also decorated in the carnival style.

The summer summer show is at an end. Many stars played in the outdoor theatre during the season now closed. The performance was at this writing is back in New York preparing for the new, Music Box Revue, entertained White City patrons during one of the four weeks. Lotie Mayer and her Dixie Nippers, a wonderful water act, were also featured. Miss Mayer appearing personally and the beautiful water act and especially constructed tank built for the act on the White City stage.

Jimmy Dunn, for four years the dancing partner of Evelyn Nesbit, was a star, as was Benie Ryan. The Whitman, Babe Payne, Raymond and Lyle, Ben Wynn and a host of specialty acts.

CHESTER PARK, CINCINNATI

Chester Park amusement carnival is now in progress (September 14th). Bigger and better features for this season than ever before.

J. Brown, grocery game, and G. P. Albertson, silver game, will at the close of the season play a round of four on Southern fairs, including the Florida State Fair, with five or six concessions.

Ben Monte, helper at the dance hall refreshment stand, continues on the job. W. J. Brown does relief work at the various refreshment stands and games.

Wade Wallace now has charge of the Moon game.

Anna Leckham, charge booth at the Derby Race, has had many spots afterwards of late because of the many races outings which always include free rides on the Derby. The Derby, grandstand and whip race, the majority of free rides at the various outings.

M. R. Cook, formerly demonstrator at the Why Is It and how checker of repeat rates at the Casino, will leave for New Orleans at the close of the season.

Brook James, son of "Dad" James, who has the merry track, rode and his dog and pony show is the first attraction at the Greenlee Club, Fair recently.

The Stratton Serenades, the dance hall orchestra, which is under the direction of Walter Kooler, has proven very popular during the past season.

IN MONTREAL PARKS

Dominion Park

M. Haverford, park manager, reports a very good season. New rides will be installed next season and extensive alterations made. The dance pavilion at Riverview Inn, situated in the park is very popular.

Ernest and His Band recently closed a three-week engagement and left for the Toronto Exposition.

All concessions and rides are owned and controlled by the park. Among the rides are the stage, boat, scenic railway, and the Ferris wheel, etc. This is the nineteenth season of the Dominion Park.

Belmont Park

Montreal amusement park, Belmont, owned by M. J. D'Amico.

H. C. Deschamps is manager and promoter. The park features rides purchased from Philadelphia. The R. S. Cappel Corp. and Chester Belmont Park has fine swimming pool and dance pavilion. The business first season very good.

E. C. Deschamps, owner of the dance pavilion, has purchased a piece of ground in Montreal, Quebec, on the Riverview, on which he will erect a modern park to be opened May 21, 1925. Hull has no amusement park.

MEYERS LAKE PARK CLOSES

Under D. Sept. 2, W. E. attendance short of expectations. Meyers Lake Park closed for the season. Labor Day. The Stark County Fair opening the same day, but business was good.

While most Eastern Ohio summer parks will continue to operate until September, Manager L. Bovey, died of a heart attack from the heart at the hotel at the beach resort closed with the season.

Work at putting the park amusement to back to winter as been started. Only the dance pavilion and roller skating rink will continue in operation.

ELECTRIC PARK

Open Until October—Iowa Resort Has Big Picnic Season

Waterloo, Ia., Sept. 5.—While many Eastern resorts are planning to close soon, Electric Park, Waterloo, Ia., will remain open until October 11. Never in the twenty-one years that this park has operated has it experienced such a rainy, cold season. Nevertheless, the gates were nearly up with last season and most of the rides are ahead of the 1923 mark.

Between rains there have been a few good days. On the fourth of July there were more than 10,000 people in attendance and every thing did a fine business. Several big parties have been held here this season. Starlin's Day was a huge success. More than 5000 Starliners and their families attended for the outing and all enjoyed the day immensely. This is the second season for the Starliners to hold their annual trade at the park.

On August 11 the crowd people of Waterloo and surrounding towns celebrated Emancipation Day at the park. The biggest day of the season was August 9, when the K. K. K. leased the park for the day to hold their State Convocation. It was estimated that there were 30,000 people in the park and the management states it has never experienced a more orderly crowd. The fireworks display and fireworks parade was a sight worth seeing.

The Klansmen and Klanswomen appeared in their full regalia. Regular park

GRENADA PARK

Personnel That Has Helped To Make Season a Success

Lloyd Denton, ex-cops on manager of Grenada Park, Detroit, Mich., admits that the park is closing a most successful season. One of its most popular features is the dance pavilion, which contains nearly 25,000 square feet of concrete slab specially treated for dancing. Around the outer boundaries of the pavilion is a drop top enclosure of Japanese design. Mr. Denton's staff has a room to 2,000 dancers are in attendance nightly.

The King Bob, a new coaster, was recently put in operation and it proved a winner. It is one of the snuggest coasters to be found in any Detroit park.

The personnel of the park this season is made up of experienced park people and has been responsible for its small deficit for the season attained by the park. The names follow:

- Grenada Dance Floor: A. N. N. manager; Sam Yates, asst. manager; Messrs. Reno, Ross and Wagner, cashiers; J. C. Ross, Phil Clark and H. Fror, gate; J. Reno, M. McElvany, Mr. McAllen, J. McDaniel, Pat Moore, Ray Robinson, Max Fagan and P. W. Ebbes, floor; Miss Robinson, M. S. Cook and Wm. Newton, check room; James Grayson, head cook.

A PICTURESQUE PARK

"Mississippi's Family Playground" is another name for Echo Park at Meridian, Miss., owned and controlled by B. and Mrs. Smucker. The resort, sprinkled with modern summer cottages, and boasting a large and growing zoo in addition to a beautiful dance pavilion, hotel and bath houses, affords 166 acres of wooded scenery. The large lake is fed entirely by mineral springs.

attendants operated all the rides and all concessions ran as usual.

Other special days were the Citizens' Gas & Electric Parade, Disabled War Veterans' Day, Boys' Central Engineers' Day, and Girls' Central Engineers' Day. Hundreds of smaller organizations have held their parties here.

The new Dodgem Junior, installed this season, has made a big hit with the boys' patrons. It is a miniature Dodgem and it is operated by J. G. Penn.

The Spiral Thriller continues a favorite and is again operated by H. W. B. The Aero Swing is operated by J. E. Morgan (Morgan's) and a thrilling ride, the story the big, the most sought after ride, west of the Mississippi. It is located with the other white and blue boats on the lake, but is a six-foot ball with 1000 lbs. like a ball of fire. The added attraction has increased the business on the lake.

The merry-go-round and Bored of fun continues very popular with the adults as well as the kids. These two rides are operated by M. A. Peterson. The Spiral Roller wheel is doing a big business and is operated by Harry Nix.

Amusement concessions for this season are: Miss J. G. H. J. Harlock, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Reitz, dolls and parades. Ruth A. Vinton, corn game; Mrs. L. C. H. H. Harry, Clamnet, high striker and pool. J. Van der, John Ward, look is again operating the shooting gallery.

The refreshment privilege is in charge of K. A. Bender. While the restaurant is managed by Mrs. Bovey.

LAKE OF THE WOODS PARK

Lake of the Woods Park, Bonanza Springs, Kansas, has been a successful winter. The picnic held August 24, drew more than 11,000 attending and was managed by the park. A wonderful day from the summer picnic at the lake, and on August 17, it was the end of the longest of 16,000 held here for 12 years and it was with an attendance of more than 1,000.

Lake of the Woods Park, Bonanza Springs, Kansas, September 28, is a big "Free Picnic." During the winter the park will be thoroughly overhauled and remodelled wherever necessary and several new amusement devices and rides will be installed.

JOYLAND PARK

Port Jervis, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Joyland Park, this city, has been enjoying excellent patronage since its opening on Memorial Day, according to Manager R. Klein. The park, which covers twenty-five acres, has three large riding devices, numerous concession booths and a fine bathing beach with 600 bathhouses. During the season many parties were booked, the largest of which perhaps was the outing of the Army and Legion, which drew over 10,000 persons to the park.

Manager Klein gave to the patrons many fine examples of fireworks and splendid band concert. The ballroom under the management of William J. Beckin continues to do a good business and the special offerings of fancy dress and metropolitan parties have become very popular. J. S. Brown, formerly of Lumber Park, New York City, continues with his orchestra and has made a hit with all patrons.

Clara (Doc) Miller has been with Princess Albert in the Bowditch at Honey Island, N. Y., all of this season.

SALTAIR'S SEASON HAS BEEN SUCCESS

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 5.—Saltair located on the border of the Great Salt Lake, has enjoyed the biggest season in many years. On Monday, August 18, 14,000 people attended the Being Desert News Day, and the Monday as it is universally known, became the biggest Monday of the year. These special Mondays staged in cooperation with The Desert News, have become very popular. The week from Transportation given and the next free concessions to bathing, dance hall and fun house coupons are also given for one-half the cost of a park's concessions and prizes monthly.

In a recent Thursday night Andrew Klein staged a novel fashion revue which drew in large crowds even though the day was stormy. The history of modern clothes was given as a reading by the Ralph Kluemper Stock Company when it was just opened its season's engagement. It was good advertisement for it, as well as the resort. The various merchandise houses entered girls in the fashion show.

GREEN LANTERN OPENS

The Moss Island Amusement Company, Anderson, Ind., opened its dance pavilion, the Green Lantern, August 27. The pavilion is at the end of 1 1/2 block street on the Moss Island road. Mayor Horne was present.

The dance pavilion represents an investment of $20,000 and is said to be the largest and finest in Indiana. The dancing space consists of 8,000 square feet constructed of hard maple wood and will accommodate 750 couples. The lighting effects consist of two large mirror balls, a room which play spotlights of various colors from different angles of the dance floor. Around the pavilion are Japanese lanterns and in the center of the dance floor are numerous dome lights of red and green and red light from two high poles are several hundred lights which reflect in the pool on the west side of the building. Several food lights will be used to throw light from the parking space around the pavilion, in which music can be kept up.

Ed Kelly, who has been with Ross Franklin at Waco, a dancing pavilion at Lake Wausau, is the manager of the Green Lantern and he is assisted by Mrs. Kelly.

HOW THEY PASS THE WINTER

Palsades, N. J., Sept. 6.—Harry Carless, publicity director for the Snook Brothers, owners of Palsades Park, has advised himself of the duty of calling on the 150 gamblers employed at the park in an endeavor to find out their winter habits with the following results:

- 1. Sixty per cent. find a different place to go during the winter.
- Twenty per cent. go to law firms and carnivals during the winter.
- Several hundred park firms to look after their own in the employ of railroads.
- Sixty per cent. find a job in the winter.
- One per cent. find a job in the winter.
- One per cent. find a job in the winter.
- One per cent. find a job in the winter.
- Three take to the sticks with road attractions.

These are musicians.
Two are reporters.
Two are gamblers.
Two play baseball on the Pacific Coast.
Two go to law school.
Three are school teachers.

One is a chef.
Of the cashiers, the majority assist around their homes, while twenty-eight teach school. Sixteen are actresses, twenty-eight are married and have families, and one is a motion picture actress.

FASHION PAGEANT BIG DRAW AT UHRICHSVILLE PARK

S. Bargef adresses that the exposition and fashion pageant staged at Riversdale Park, Uhrichsville, O., August 11 to 16, inclusive, proved a big success. This is the first such event staged by the officials of the park, and that their efforts were so successful speaks well for their efficiency.

One of the chief attractions during the pageant was the fashion show, which was as large as the most beautiful ever seen at the park. Two large tents were used to house the exhibits, a 60 by 80 for the merchants' exhibits and a 100 by 200 for the automobile show.

There was a 100 foot midway on which were four rides belonging to the Standard Amusement Company and a number of concessions.

PARK PATRONS HEAR AIRMEN

Palsades, N. J., Sept. 5.—Patrons at Palsades Park, Fort Lee, heard conversation between persons in the park and Lieutenant S. L. Tomlin and Howard C. Brandt, both of the army air station at Mitchell Field, L. I., as they flew 4,000 feet overhead recently. Apparatus of the ground operated by Lieut. L. E. Beach of Mitchell Field and the apparatus in the air plane operated by Lieut. Brandt, a radio expert carried out the experiment.

Cheers given by the crowd were audible to the fliers who answered with thanks. An amplifier carried the voices to the crowd. The experiment was conducted by radio station WJLN.

EMPLOYEES' DANCE

Riverview, Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 12—Yesterday was the day for the kids to go back to school. Riverview closed quickly in the afternoon. The P. H. Fitzgerald, in charge of the front gate, has a badly swollen face as a result of tooth ache. His daughters, Marie and Helen, who were recently laboring while returning from the home to their home in a taxi cab, are both recovering satisfactorily.

Prof. Kaufman, general manager for Ed Hill, said books are moving in the book stores with break rapidity. Labor Day, which held out more promise from a business standpoint in the park, was punctuated by rain. Mr. Kaufman's capable assistants, C. Sedwick, J. Lozano and Oscar Nelson, are all busy up to their necks these days.

Mr. Kaufman said the Mardi Gras is drawing crowds to the park as it never drew them before and that the big feature is an entirely big success.

Mr. Kaufman's ducks at the dockyard by the Mill on the Floss, are quite a drawing card and they are growing with amazing rapidity.

Frank Hamilton, on front toasts at the Sky-rocket ride, is beginning to get ready for his usual winter vaudeville tour. A year Detman, in the same role will soon be ready for another year, as the park will close its season September 14.

William Conlry was taking care of quite a few customers in his front gallery when The Billboard reporter dropped in on him.

Capt. Devine, head of the Riverview police department, said that Policewoman Maud Ogden has left the department and gone to Toledo, where she has a very lucrative proposition to teach dancing. Capt. Devine said Miss Ogden was a very useful addition to his department while she was in the park.

ILLINOIS BEACH DAMAGED

Illini Beach, Ottawa, Ill., was damaged recently by a storm which struck the park with considerable force. Two automobile bridges were destroyed, causing a loss of about $5,000, and the retaining wall of the dam which forms a part of the bathing pool was washed out. Since the auto bridges were destroyed the park management has been furnishing horses for transportation into the park by running a truck car across the railroad bridge.

W. P. Fisher, manager of the park, advised that dance crowds at the park have been large, and that Greer and His Illini Beach Syncopators have been pleasing patrons mightily with their music. A successful mardi gras was held August 26.

Business at the park has gone ahead of last year, Manager Fisher states.

FINGER LAKES PARKS CLOSE

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 5—Island Park at the foot of Otisco Lake, one of the most popular resorts in the Finger Lakes region, closed Labor Day as did all the other parks in this section.

During the summer dozens of concessions have been in operation at Island Park, one of the most novel of which was the musical madrigals, Princess Nellie and Major Stanley, said to be the smallest married couple in the world. They play the harp, the piano and the little woman sings. Nellie is 30 inches tall, weighs 42 pounds and is 39 years old. The major is 36 inches tall, weighs 56 pounds and is 40 years old.

Edith Biles, owner, and Owen A. Brady, concession manager this season, made the park one of the most popular resorts in the region.

GREATER SHEESLEY SHOWS

Lose Labor Day at Timonium, Md., Because of Late Arrival

Timonium, Md., Sept. 3.—A week of ideal weather at the Timonium (Ky.) Blue Grass Fair last week apparently did not effectually shake the "clog" which has given the Sheesley Shows some sharp jabs this season, and a big crowd of motorists to the Maryland State Fair there caused the show to miss Labor Day entirely. It was at Timonium Monday before an attempt could be made, and the midway was not in readiness until Tuesday morning. Better crowds than last year have marked the last two days, and while some and concessions evidently will have a satisfactory week's work. The show is laid out from the York gate about the main drive and the thousands who turn out to see the speed contests on the historic old Timonium track, pass the entire length of the midway to the grand stand.

Passing thru Newlin, O., Saturday afternoon the show train was stopped at the lot on which the Nat. Circus Shows were playing and for a few minutes there was a lively rumor of some folks, while Mr. and Mrs. Harry McEwen, assisted by a Sheesley private car, "Ala-bama", and General Representative to George H. Coleman shook hands all around. J. P. Murphy, of the shows bearing his name, was visiting the Bliss lot and renewed a number of acquaintances during the brief stop.

Among Capt. John M. Sheesley's guests here have been William H. Houser, manager of concessions at the Hanover (Pa.) Fair, and W. H. Taylor and Henry P. Bion, managing editor and night editor respectively of The Baltimore American. Gene Hester, owner and the front of the track and show last season, looked up his friends today. He spent the summer at Baltimore, his home, but may go on the road again during the fair season. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mathews left at Lexington for Southern fairs.

James McSorley, of Shuman fame with circus, has taken management of the Gros Show, and "Mac's" advent on the Sheesley Shows again has been marked by a cordial welcome everywhere. W. H. (Blue) Kille has taken charge of the Baltimore County, Md., and has some new ideas, plans for that attraction. Charles Deon added several new concessions to the track annual show. A new side-show will be at Newark, N. J., next week with several other attractions. A miniature railway has been booked to join at Hanover, Pa., week of September 22.

After a pleasant visit of two weeks Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sheesley, aged and charming parents of "Captain John", and Mr. Charles E. Sheesley have returned to their homes in Harrisburg, Pa.

Preparations of a "red one" are being made for next week at Newark, N. J., at the fall festival celebration of St. Thomas parish, under the leadership of Rev. Father John A. Preston, at Lincoln highway and Waydell street, and Special Agent Joseph E. Walsh reports energetic preparations. This comes the Reading (Pa.) Fair, to be followed by the Fair at Hanover and Lancaster, Pa., before the Southern fair route is taken up. CLAUDE R. ELLIS (Press Representative).

MACY'S EXPOSITION SHOWS

Williamstown, Ky., Sept. 3.—Macy's Exposition Shows are playing here this week under the auspices of Odd Fellows. The local lodge of the same order was the sponsor at Walden, Ky., last week, and the Odd Fellows of Nicholasville, Ky., will be the auspices for next week's engagement.

Quite a few of the people have left to play the early fair. The roster at this writing includes Morris Wheeler, John G. Higgenza, manager; Harry Gorman, Charley Schlenberg, manager; Donald Snow, Pete Pearson, manager; Bear Boy, Paul Louis Bird, manager; M. Strel Show, "Slick" Thomas, manager; Athletic Show, Henry Spellmann, manager; "Ten-Pot Dome", Patsy Tee, manager.

Among the concessions Bob Bloom has three, H. A. Fritz two, Fred Wright two, F. W. Williams three, Frank Spillman one, Mrs. E. M. May one, Mr. W. C. one, and C. F. one. Bob M. Bloom one and Fred Clark two, including cook-house.

Gay J. A. May is manager, Dan Mahoney local adjuster, F. W. Williams electrician, R. E. McLaughlin general agent, R. J. Huzzard brain-master, Mrs. Louisa Macy treasurer, D. Witt circus secretary.

A new tent was secured last week for Julius Thompson & Co., Cincinnati, for the local show, as a storm at Walden completely destroyed the one that was in use.

I received "good dates" aren't always "dates" or "plums".

There's a turn play 2 Panteras' vaudeville known as the Morris Castle Road.

A vaudeville artist... they could just a show from the order to assure the performance made drawing heavy charges.

Arthur J. (Art) Hastings, once manager, fast-cared that he had got the cookhouse and base business for merchandise stands owned in Michigan, and that after having five small fairs he looked to intend to return the J. Jones Exposition.

W. A. Wilson advised "Fred Beckman is an everyday sort of a manager and chats with his employees in an unassuming and inoffensive way. He seems to be liked by all and he certainly has a loyal bunch of helpers who seem to stand by him from year to year."

After the arrival of Z. & P. in Cincy early Monday morning, last week, "Bill" Hillier was on the job "to the dullest" in time. Anyway the dullest carried front-page mention of the Zedman & Polie Show. Course there was a small fire in the top of one of the cars, caused by a fallen trolley wire, but—

Water White, of the Rubin & Cherry Shows, dropped in on the P. A. Wortman Shows at Connel Bluffs. He spent a busy day, being entertained by Messrs. Fred Beckmann and P. S. Gerety. Then they surprised him by taking the night train and going to visit the Rubin

D. C. Hanna is now handling the front of Capt. Green's Circus Show, with the All-American Shows' present playing in Oklahoma, according to word to Ali last week.

Isadore Pires des received word from Toronto last week that bus lines with the Murphy Construction Company there were holding up very badly.

Mrs. Ed (Ida) Guthrie, of the former Guthrie family, aerial acts, and very well known in & Cherry Shows, thereby returning his visit as well as two recent ones from Rubin Gruberg

Jim Davis, electrician, reached Cincinnati last week, having returned to the States a couple of weeks ago from Havana, Cuba, where he was connected with a ten-year carnival. Said he had intended remaining the balance of the year with the organization, but became ill of fever and thought it best for him to return north.

T. Robert Killiam, of monkey circus fame and last with the Wortman No. 2 Show, writes that because of an automobile accident he is suffering an injured spine and would enjoy visits from showfolk when in his vicinity. He is at his summer home (the Bull House) on a lake near Hopkins, Minn. (Route No. 2).

Preston Jenkins, who last spring returned from a twenty-eight month's tour of eight countries in South America with a carnival, plans to take another continent consisting of four rides, a one-ring circus, and a big show here in November. Mr. Jenkins, according to report last week, intends leaving in advance this month to attend to bookings.

Geor Halverson, one of the mechanics of the Spelman Engineering Company, caters rides on the Midway. Geor spent two weeks with Clarence A. Wortman's "World's Best Shows," installing the first "roller the dumper" at Connel Bluffs. He, as in a train carrying another ride in a special baggage car, so he jumped aboard and went on the way to set up the device for another show. With him are Robert Cummings and Oliver Pfanner.

The Wisconsin State Fair was a "loser" after last year, possibly because of some factoring. One of the Milwaukee dailies commented in part as follows: "Others were of the opinion that the fair had the addition of the old midway, with its carnivals, merry-go-rounds and other attractions, deprived the fair of one of its chief drawing cards." Further along the article is stated "the amusement park regarded as the 'lifeline' of the fair's finances this year, will be kept open every night from now until early in October, and it is expected that the business will be brought in well on toward balancing the fair's books."

Col. I. N. Fisk has been headquarters for a few weeks in the area after a successful promotion date at Warsaw, Ind. He was a visitor to the Delco-Ko Bros' Shows recently. About two weeks ago he was the guest of his old friend, Lew Morris, and went to a hotel that Mrs. Morris' sure can make a chicken perform the important part of a fine dinner."

They sometimes do things their own way in town. Jack Kenyon, steward for the C. A. Wortham carnival, thought business was coming his way when he bowed up to find ten persons entering the cookhouse from the rear. They were not customers, however. They simply wanted to get into the midway without waiting a half hour to get to the other. Having spent a couple of hours in the midway, they tromped back thru the front door of the cookhouse and made exit at the back door.

"X. A. Gray," "steering head" of the "Great Wheelbarrow Show," says his press agent got his story mixed up with another one a few issues ago, as his outfit isn't using "steering head" for stakes; also he wants to again understand that they are using glass center poles, so as to give an unobstructed view, a rubber tip to make sure of it skidding water, carry their own lot so no opposing agents can "cut in" at all, and that nothing strong is allowed in the midway, not even mustard at the cookhouse.

"Fats" Rolling went to Cuba last winter as a fair man exhibit, and came back as a water-snow clown. Incidentally, "Fats" make-up is a dach. He grasps his face on the back of his head and two layers of "fat" on the back of his neck are in just the proper place to be made up as a man—when opens and closes as he moves his head forward and backward—he also carries a large lighted sign, and his comedy (with "Hired Dore's Water Circus with Z. & P.") goes over big with audiences.

A communitarian traveling Al's desk last week stated that a company of concessionaires were in Cincinnati on route from the Shelby (Ind.) Fair to Winchester, O., and had visited friends with the Sells-Floto circus, including Johnny Wall, the "Pinky," Ed. Clegg and others. Wall, who is the "Zigzag" in "Hired Shows," according to the list furnished the party consisted of Peter Kurtz, Robert Band, Cass Murphy, A. C. Carroll, Andy Craig, Barney Meyers, W. J. Adams, Elmer Farquhar, C. P. Hastings, Tommy Kereoval, John Ross, Robert Kraus, Fred Donnelly and A. E. Wixie.

Jimmie Simpson is surely a manager on the job. At one of the big attractions one night last week, which has three light strings running back into the air, the switch was pulled on these lights, and the crowd, which in 10 minutes was still a large crowd on the midway. Simpson was conversing with some friends near the entrance to the grounds. He quickly noticed the inadvertency. In the most unassuming manner he exposed himself "for a couple of minutes while I attend to a little business matter," and the writer noted that about five minutes later the lights were again shining. Moral: It's best to not encourage the crowds, saying, "Let's go home, they're closing up," when one of two attractions have finished for the evening.

What there is in a name is sometimes embarrassing. And to note persons than one. "Judge" J. L. Kenyon, executive secretary for Florence A. Wortham's World's Best Shows, married a girl from Pleasanton, Ia. When the shows were in Council Bluffs one of her uncles called to meet him. Finally he recognized her as the girl who had been in the show. He asked if Mr. Kenyon was with the company. "An accompanying lady" sent him to the fair folk, however, which is run by Edward Kearn, sometimes called "Jack". The uncle looked at the fat man over and said: "My, but Nora married a mighty fat man!" Later the visitor discovered the mistake and met "The Judge," who balances the beam at 165 instead of 160.

The Red Wing (Minn.) Republican carried the following article in its edition of August 23, which doubtless rested peacefully on the "stomach" of some "takes all the money out of town" propagandists:

A Castle Shows, which open a four days' engagement here Monday under the auspices of the American Legion? Also have you ever once given an amusement organization credit for bringing into the city many hundreds of folks from surrounding country, your merchants, restaurants and others reaping a financial benefit from same?

Just take for instance over four hundred people alone brought into Red Wing for four days' time with the Morris & Castle Shows, you knowing very well that it takes those days at least three dollars per day for a person to live. This makes over twelve hundred alone turned loose in the city, saying nothing of maybe a few suits of clothes."

It would have done your heart good (those of the readers who hadn't the opportunity, of course) to have attended the special performance, detailed elsewhere in this issue, of the Zedman & Polle Shows after closing time (at midnight) Showmen's League Day, September 3, at Linnstadt. It was simply brilliant—in the classic, humorous and purely genteel manner in which it was presented, and the concerted cooperative spirit manifested in the occasion on the part of the entire company personnel (for instance, Mr. "Murphy" of "cats" fame—made a flying trip back, off a business trip, from Louisville, Ky., to be among "those present" for the festivities). It is but due to also state that it was a representative showfolks' assemblage. There was no silly "please-look-at-me" gizzling or overworking of powder-puffs among the woman-folks and the "boys"—well, there was no worldly "Shocking" boldness of any kind, or nutty-wise remarks passed of any nature. In a few words, everybody acted like travel-wise, sensible human beings, like one big happy family (got that "happy"), thoroughly enjoying what doubtless each one pronounced a "most wonderful time". In the writer's opinion it was a slammeringly helluva good time.

Someone sent Al a "clipping" from a paper published at Easton, Pa. (title not given for crediting), which stated in part, without going into fact reading-up-to details of the occurrence that "down in Maryland a member of a carnival had shot and killed a citizen of the town". Also "this city had a similar experience some time ago, and it will only take a few more of the same occurrences and there will be no more carnivals." Surely the writer of that last sentence did not mean "require" in the use of the word "take". Does he mean that two "carnival men" did they did actually shoot at each other were the only ones to commit murder in the States he mentions? "There will be no more carnivals" would take in the whole United States—how many other lines of business are represented in the killings thruout this or any other country? It's real "fresh" to read some of the "propaganda" published.

Incidentally it was also stated: "A publication issued in interest of the carnival and other outside amusements have, who write probably mean "has"—Ala) been fighting the cause of these caravans, but sure have inga "has". Ala) a fine battle when they pull these stunts." If the writer of that refers to The Billboard particularly "Carnival Caravans", he or any one else could readily see that any "fight" staged is and has been for the recognition of the many good qualities of carnivals, the countering of unjust propaganda leveled against them by "other business" interests and on the whole for the uplift (instead of the "murdering") of a nation-wide amusement profession and doesn't relish being ridiculed in its efforts by anyone particularly those of biased opinions or purposes.

LOS ANGELES

WILL J. FARLEY,
Loew State Bldg., Los Angeles

Long Beach Pier Redonda Beach Seal Beach

Los Angeles, Aug. 31.—A feature event here the past week was the Greater Movie Season Ball at the Ambassador Hotel, August 27. It marked the close of the Greater Movie Season that was inaugurated in August 1 with a big parade. While the parade was a novel feature in the history of Los Angeles, the ball registered probably the greatest gathering of movie stars here. About 5,000 people tried to get into the ball, and the dancing was a success. The program was such as only trained dancers are able to execute, and the gorgeous gowns worn by celebrities presented a picture that will not soon be forgotten by those present. The program, on a stage especially built for the occasion, brought out talent from studios and vaudeville halls. It was impossible to present it all. The program brought from the Paramount organization Carl B. DeMille's pageant from the pictures, "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Queen of Sheba", with some $200,000 worth of costumes and furs; Fanchon and Marco, exponents of Tennessee; Art Landry and His Band from the Metropolitan; a comedy trio, members of the Metropolitan; the Opheim Theater were Harry Bruce, Dorothy Jordan, Ernest R. Ball and George Whiting and Sada Poff; Harry Carroll in songs from his own company at the Orange Theater; The Kalkreuthers, Synopsators from Loew's Theater; Benj. English, Jimmy Adams, Walter Hillers and many others of the studios, presented turns that were above the average in entertainment. Charles Murray, as master of ceremonies, was one of the bright spots of the affair. Milton Stone, address on a greater movie season was well received. It was the greatest social event in the history of London. It is hoped to make this an annual affair, and with such workers as Albert Kaufman, Harry Arthur and Jeffery Lazarus it should be.

September 5 will record the opening of a Los Angeles-made revue. Harry Carroll, who has made a name on the big vaudeville circuits, will open the Orange Theater with his company in a musical called "Harry Carroll's Pickings". The revue was written by Carroll and Arthur Lloyd, the book and lyrics by Ballard MacDonald.

Frank Sargent, well known thru the show world, is again up and around, but in no wise well from his recent attack, which bordered on a stroke. He is being cared for by his many show friends on the Coast.

The Hippodrome Theater here has been turned into a regular circus. The lobby represents a big tent, and the program contains the entire performance of Horne's Great Circus, augmented with enough other circus acts to make one of the biggest circus performances ever put over. Will Z. Smith is handling the circus end.

The Pacific Southwest Theaters, Inc., added another link to its chain of theaters in Southern California by the purchase this week of the Loew's Theater at Torrance. This makes eighteen houses now under their control. Two more are under construction at Bell and San Bernardino.

Walter Van Horn is again directing the stage of the Burbank Theater, after an illness of two weeks. He has been offered several propositions for the fall and it will not be surprising to find Walter in a much larger field soon.

Dr. Bernard F. O'Toole is leaving Los Angeles shortly for a trip in the Belgian Congo in search of wild animals, and hopes to bring back to this country several specimens of giant gorillas.

Joseph Jackson, writer of several one-act plays, has just completed a three-act comedy-drama in the Amer. language, which will have its premiere at a local theater soon.

Mike Donlon, well-known ex-big-league baseball star and now in the movies, is recovering from a severe accident caused by a motorcycle crash while making a picture with Reinhold Henny. Mike was in a hospital for five weeks.

What was probably the greatest local reception given a premiere was that which greeted the opening of "Yolanda" here this week. Streets adjacent to the theater were jammed with people seeking admission. A group of stars from the Hollywood studios was in attendance and Marion Davies came in for one of the greatest receptions ever accorded an actress here.

OUTDOOR FORUM

In this department will be published opinions of readers of The Billboard on any phase of the outdoor show world. As evidence of good faith it is requested that letters be signed and addresses given. Anonymous letters will not be tolerated, but signatures will be withheld if requested. Be brief and to the point.

Thinks Circuses Should Give Notice When Impossible To Hold Parades

Editor The Billboard:

Sir—The Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus exhibited here August 22. On account of a late arrival from Detroit no parade was held. Thousands lined the streets until one o'clock only to be disappointed. I believe a messenger had been sent to the downtown business district to notify the people that no parade could be given, but that the usual circus exhibition would be given about 2 p.m. It would have avoided much dissatisfaction.

People told me that had a notice been given, they would have hurried home to lunch and gone to the matinee.

When the A. G. Barnes Circus played Aurora, July 3, a herald was sent around on horseback and notified the people there would be no parade and this relieved them.

Lippa No Longer Connected With Showmen's Legislative Committee

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31, 1924.

Editor The Billboard:

Sir: I wish to make public thru your paper that I am no longer connected with the Showmen's Legislative Committee of America, and I can't see where the few who are still members can gain anything by it.

Conditions have been terrible this season—unemployment, bad crops, industrial conditions and the coming elections are, believe, responsible. Showmen people are not getting anything—neither are the shows and rides, and when they can't come into the office with their privilege payments, it is time to notice these conditions.

Any time the show people want to get together in an organization that will be a credit to the outdoor show business, I can always be counted upon as a booster.

(Signed) LEO LIPPA,

Lippa Amusement Company.

Grabill, Ind., Aug. 5, 1924.

Editor The Billboard:

Sir—I am taking the liberty of addressing you regarding Jack Clayton, a former trouper who has met with misfortune, and who, I believe, is entitled to all the assistance his friends and acquaintances are able to give. The assistance sought is not of a financial nature and consists of nothing that any honest man who knows him cannot freely give with a clear conscience.

From the investigation I have made of this case I find that on July 6, 1923, Clayton, along with another party, was arrested in Los Angeles upon a charge of robbery. He stood trial, was found guilty by a jury and on November 23, 1923, was sentenced to Folsom Prison.

Upon learning of the predicament in which he was placed, I made a thorough investigation and found the following to be the exact status: On the day mentioned Clayton and a party by the name of Burnham were out driving with two women, Lucille Hansen and Jane Seton. While driving toward the beach the machine was stopped by two men who proceeded to rob the entire party. I understand that the highwayman secured a watch and $87 in cash from Clayton; $70 and some jewelry from Miss Seton and jewelry to the value of $360 from Miss Hansen. Later the two men were arrested and pleaded guilty to the charge and were sentenced. At the same time the District Attorney held Clayton and Burnham as being implicated in the robbery, notwithstanding the fact that the other two men insisted that they had nothing to do with it. However, they convinced the jury that Clayton was implicated and sentenced him also.

Clayton is a trouper. He was formerly with the Tom Allen Shows, where he worked for half a year. Ben Odum, Charles Hagman and a number of others. During the war he enlisted and was on the other side for two years. There are any number of showmen who know him, and if they have a keen sense of justice they will be willing to aid him in his fight for freedom. His case comes before the Board of Parole in December. I am launching this fight, and all that is required from outside sources are character letters to convince the board that he is at least an even book to make good. I have sent him a parole. It is only a slight error that is swept, but at the same time it means much to Clayton. I feel convinced that if you will kindly rally to his assistance in the way I have mentioned, as they are requested to do nothing when they cannot do so with a clear conscience, should any of them desire any further information regarding the case, I will gladly go so far as to send them a copy of the information and judgment letters in order that they may fully understand what he is charged with. My time and financial resources are being given gratis, and all the reward I seek is to know that I have been instrumental in assisting a fellow showman to secure justice where it is most certainly merited.

Those who desire to recommend Mr. Clayton are requested to make their letters "To Whom It May Concern" and send them directly to me. I will arrange the same in proper form for presentation and I assure you that the recommendations will be highly appreciated by Mr. Clayton and me.

JOHN FRANCIS SHOWS

Gainesville, Tex., Sept. 2.—The big Labor Day celebration here yesterday proved to be a real "red one" for the John Francis Shows.
A short run from Ardmore was made in two hours, and all shows and rides were ready to go by Sunday night. This was Gainesville's fourth annual Labor Day Celebration and Home-Coming Week. The day was perfect for an outdoor event of this kind, re-creating around "one hundred" all day. The parade composed of thirty-five floats representing commercial and agricultural products of the county led by Gainesville's famous 147-piece boys' band and a long line of marchers representing the various crafts followed by the Harris Concert Band, arrived at the grounds at 10 a. m., and from then until midnight the carnival grounds were packed with show-going folks. The heat gave the rides the best play and they outdistanced the shows by a big margin, as the final office wagon count showed. Today is Farmers' Union Day, and as this is being written a steady stream of autos is coming into the park.

Mr. Francis left his car in Wichita, Kan., for a new painting. Arthur Martin went over from Ardmore Saturday night and drove it back to Gainesville Sunday. Earnie Woodward has purchased a new auto. Capt. Fred Ivey and wife came on here from Des Moines to take over the management of the Water Show.
C. W. Johnson, ticket-seller on the swing, left the box unattended at Ardmore on Saturday night. Mrs. Arthur Brainerd is on the sack list this week. (Mr. Lane's father paid him a week's visit at Ardmore. A special train loaded with some 250 boosters for the Greenville Fair is being run three separate days this week out of the Greenville. Thad W.
Rodecker, general agent, is with the "trip-pers", making a talk at every town visited.
V. J. YEAROUT (for the Show).

SNAPP BROS.' SHOWS

Sheridan, Wyo., Sept. 3.—The Snapp Bros.
Shows' train was loaded and left Alliance,
Neb., early Sunday morning and arrived in Sheridan at midnight. Upon arrival it was immediately unloaded, and every show and ride was ready to operate at noon Monday.

The location is in the heart of the city, surrounding the City Hall, with joint auspices, the American Legion and the Eagles, and they are both putting forth every effort to make this year's celebration go over big.

over some late bookings. The stand at Alliance last week was nothing extra, as there seemed to be a shortage of money in the community, and those that did have it certainly held on to it.

Mrs. Klein entertained the ladies of the "Bunco Club" at Alliance and they all report a wonderful time and Mrs. Klein an ideal hostess.

Frank Marshall has replaced Ed Gover as electrician and is installing a new lighting system for the show. Mrs. Heald has returned to the show after a visit of two weeks to the homefolks. She is the wife of the band leader and handles the mail and the billboard. Mrs. Wilkins, wife of the secretary, also paid homefolks a visit and has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForrest have charge of the privilege car and are sure giving the folks some regular eats—regular home cooking—and the boys are sure playing the car.

Every attraction on the "joy zone" looks fine and everything is moving like clock work.
Next stand, Red Lodge, Mont., and Special Agent Davis is sending in some good reports about the spot.
DICK O'BRIEN
(for the Show).

PHOENIX EXPO. SHOWS

Junction City, Kan., Sept. 2.—The Phoenix
Exposition Shows are playing here this week.
Next week they start their fair season. Last week the show played in the center of the business section of Osage City, Kan., and all attractions did a good business.

Two attractions have been added to the lineup, a new "challenger", managed by Fred Reed, and P. J. Barram's big 10-in-1, making four rides and ten shows. Russell Reed is now manager of the Monkey Speedway, entered and Big Ed Wheeler. The boys are manager of the motorboat. Joe Koppeky has the Athletic Shows. James Thonson manages the two fair shows, "Nap's Ark" and "Flippers' Club".
There are fifteen concessions, including Sam
Hassenger's cookhouse. The executive staff includes E. B. Reed, owner and general manager; C. M. Brown, assistant manager and adviser; man, and Russell Reed, secretary and cashier. DR WILLIAMS (for the Show).

Welsh; Freddie Egges, Improv-er.

In the Wild West concert announcements during the big show performance the number of mounted participants in the after-show who were lined up on the track made an attractive appearance. The concert performance presented in a quick-moving manner was replete with skillful riding, roping, etc. A feature being have Nimmo crossing under his horse's neck on a horse less than the length of the reserves...

There was but one circus annex or side-show, and under the supervision of its manager, W. H. (Pop) McFarland it was probably the most neatly arranged interior—quiet and acts—seen in the Queen City in years...

seen in the Queen City in years, possibly the best ever. Platforms had brass railings and pretty flags and draperies, strings of pennants being profuse from tops of center poles to side poles, and in one end a very neatly staged setting occupied the center of the full proscenium for the Hawaiian singers, dancers and instrumentalists. The attractions: Mico, Cleo, with a beautiful den of large snakes; George Nelson, tattooed man; Cuban Mack, sword swallower and fire-eater; Swatchki, sword walker; Capt. Kwan's Kites, five in number; Paul Hardy, giant; Dykman, fire-eater; Tarmalta, long-haired lady; Tiny Mite, midget horse; Princess Elizabeth, Albino lady; Jack Tyrone, magic, limb and jody; Carlos Gonzalez, Mexican Impalement act; Kalakoons' troupe of six Hawaiians; Prof. Proctors Band and Minstrels (a distinct and a most excellent feature of this offering was the organist "Babe" Ingersoll, temporary singing—doubtless clever) and a recently added very up and attractive attraction, the Five Strays Sisters, ranging from six to fifteen years of age, billed as the "Five Colossal Belles", which is quite symbolic of the offering, since they all have pure white hair that falls in curls about their shoulders, each with sky-blue eyes and each of them very beautiful. Their acts are included in the program. They sing and dance in unison and entertain individually. The staff: W. H. (Pop) McFarland, manager and outside announcer; Jack Tyrone, inside lecturer; Al Isenberg, Jack King and George Strantz, ticket; Capt. Jacobs and George Bailey, doorman; John James (Wassburn), boss concessionaire. The top is a sixty by two foot top. "Pop" McFarland is justly proud of his side-show.

Executive staff: American Circus Corporation, owner; Zack Terrell, manager; Cleo Boudware, assistant manager; P. A. M. Lane, treasurer and auditor; R. B. C. DeLoach, secretary; R. M. Harvey, general agent and road conductor; L. B. Greenhaw, local conductor; Elmer Lind, special agent; Alvin J. Lester, contracting press agent; Frank W. Braden, advance press agent; Ora D. Parks, press agent book; C. R. (Frank) Rogers, advance showman; Wm. H. McFarland, press agent side-show; Fred Ledgett, orchestra director; Joe Wallace, general superintendent; Frank A. Gaym, superintendent privileges; Ed Bowman, front doorman; Victor Robbins, assistant director; Harrison M. Riley, superintendent reserved seat tickets; John O'Connell, superintendent of canvas; W. J. (Jack) Eicker, superintendent; Henry Brown, boss heater; Irving D. Newman, superintendent commissary department; Bill Willes, superintendent lights; G. H. (Chack) Williamson, superintendent property; Bill Loran, superintendent ring stock; W. M. Fullhouse, superintendent working crew; P. Harvey and G. E. Stewart, 24 hour agents; Tom Reed, superintendent of elephants; Henry Smith, superintendent animals; Clara White, book smith; Ed W. Berrill, manager advertising; one No. 1, Wm. E. Polkington, in charge of one No. 2, Frank Mahony, one No. 3, George D. Steele, legal adviser.

Visitors not called during the two-day local engagement included Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hart, Julius Thompson, Jake Poyer, Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson and John Robinson, Jr., Robert Strickley, Bert Bierman, Dr. Robert G. Mathers, Earl Clyde, Steve Henry and George Wombold. CHARLES WIRTH.

ALI'S ALTER EGO

There is a man in Europe right now who is covering the entire distance from Amsterdam in Holland to Marseilles in France, in all 700 miles, during summer months. His name is Tek-king and he is a Dutchman. He wears a black and a red bandolier to protect his back and a red bandolier to protect his head. At last accounts he had covered over half the distance and the receipts had been satisfactory.

Ali's notion of an alter ego is a workman dead broke but not dead, waiting to get his job back in the money when the Volstead law is returned or a year after counting on a return of the good old days.

In Europe he is going to run strong. He is gathering strength very rapidly as those lines are written. His real aim is not hurring him nearly as much as his honesty and courage, and his determination are making for him. What will he do, however, if he is elected, is the people's dearest wish both the old parties.

The Dutchman is content to let the moonshine be the landowner rather than his "nards" is well in his generation.

Why peck on the Volstead law? The country, according to authorities, has 1,270,816 others. There is nothing in being a seafarer unless you are a sailor, consistent and all-around one. Break them all. It will prove some job, of course, but it will also prove that you are devoted to principle—as you see it.

Conditions in Dixie are likely to be all right by the time the caravans reach there. Any rate all signs now disclose the point that way—home industries and business. There is absolutely no warrant for the pessimistic predictions that are going the rounds. Also it is well to bear in mind that conditions everywhere in the South have never been so high as it does in other sections and business will be less affected.

Mrs. S. W. Gumpert will proceed to Saratoga, Fla., October 1 and put their beautiful home at that point in order before the coming of her husband November 6 or 7. Sam has to vote before he goes South for the winter.

A number of years ago, the work of Mr. Cooper and Mr. May is a refreshing revelation of what can be done by men who know their work.

Coming now to descriptive articles of the circus, the most likely combination to produce these is some editor with the facts furnished by a good writer with circus experience. The former lines of George Conklin were on my mind when I got into a book, "The Ways of the Circus", and published by Harper's two years ago was a masterpiece, and there is the material and ability to produce more of the same kind if these two classes of men will only get together, dig up the old route books, programs and posters and go to it. The material of Bill Robinson and that of the late Louise E. Gandy could be surely brought out if proper means were employed. The Adam Foreman and Sid Brothers' circuses should have their vast stores of material drawn on. A good writer with one or two old route books and programs with an old timer nearby to elaborate on them can put out a real article on short notice. Aside from stores of pure fiction there is a wealth of material on the circus which could be used to produce a series of romantic and interesting stories out here we wait "drawing the long bow". If a reliable history is to be written on the circus in America it must be built up on data collected from route books, programs, files of professional periodicals and the memories of professional people carefully checked. Thousands of newspapers in the large will be of little value here except for dates of a certain and local incidents.

The best material of the past year or so by a number of writers, including Townsend Walsh, James E. Donaldson, Fletcher Smith, Sydney Ware, Edward P. Britt, W. C. Boyd, Foreman, White, E. W. Adams, Charles Bennett, Barry Gray, George H. Irving, Roland Miller, Lawrence Griswold, W. W. Dinkler, Roy Felton, W. S. Froot, Lon B. Williams, George M. Bates, Courtney Lyell, Lewis, Charles N. Harris, Doc Waldell, Frank M. Thompson, Hubbard Nye, Edwin P. Seward, Will Delanyne and John H. Patterson have been notable, and I feel sure I but who the opinion of many others when I state they have been interesting, informative and delightful reading.

The "Good Will in the Show Business" brief by John M. Kelly, published serially last year, was a very timely and interesting history. Mr. R. Werner's "Barman", a large illustrated book of nearly 100 pages, published by Harcourt, Brace & Co. during the past year, had an immense sale because it fully deserved it. Whimsical Walker's "From Sawdust to Windsor Castle" was also good.

To sum it all up, circus magazine and book writing has had a wonderful boom, particularly in the last two years. It looks like the public must appreciate this class of writing or our best book and periodical publishers would not long last.

The people of this country are reading more magazines and periodicals than at any time in our history. Every branch of sports, amusements and side lines is profiting by this publicity—why not the circus?

Princeton, W. Va., Aug. 4.-The Page Greater Shows are playing a ten-day stand here during the Big Fall Street Festival. They are the first to play Princeton proper in seven years, and the first to exhibit on the streets. Business opened up big here and up to this writing it has held up fine for shows, rides and concessions. From here the show goes to Gate City, Va. for the county fair. Considerable credit is due General Agent Walter B. Fox for the string of fairs secured for the show in North and South Carolina and Georgia.

The following are the attractions: C. A. Stewart's rides, Page's Sunflower Minstrels, Athletic Arena with Jack Lawrence, wrestler, and "Kid Sluggem", boxer; R. A. ("Red") Cannon's "Hot Sox" show, Charlie Ray's 10-in-1 and John Jackson's arcade. Frank Proctor will join with his water show and drama at Gate City, Liacoe's Band of ten pieces provides the music. Among the concessionaires are Floyd's Hall (Candy), handled by J. A. Brown; Jack Monarch, Kiste Mulford, one; Clarence Sorce, one; Mr. Blinger, one; Carl St. Charles and Matthew Lane, five; Fred Graham, one; Mrs. H. K. Mann, two; Tolly and Mrs. Carlo, two; Arch Wilson, three; and John Scott, one. Frank Sheppard and Mrs. Siscoe will join next week with some concessions. The staff; J. J. Page, owner and general manager; Walter B. Fox, general agent; Bob Kling, legal adjuster; Harry K. Mann, lot superintendent; Dick Siscoe, musical director; "Kid" Snow, trumaster; N. G. Schoonover, electrician, and Red Gannon, general announcer, and the writer, Howard Herman, press representative.

DODSON'S WORLD'S FAIR SHOWS

Waco, Ok., Sept. 6.-The day attendance at the free fair here has been poor. At night, however, the grounds have been thronged and business for the shows, rides and concessions has been very satisfactory to date.

At the conclusion of the fair dates Manager Dodson will send out two winter shows under the management of the writer and John Hoffman. Each show will carry two rides, five shows and a number of concessions. One will probably remain in Texas territory and the other Louisiana. Neither will gully, both using big cars and wagons. After the Waco fair the balance has been separated for the two shows; the balance will be shipped into winter quarters.

The World West show, under the management of Ed Wright, with "Heavy" James on the front, has been doing nicely for the past few weeks, playing all attractions a good run for first place.

Walt Ray will run next week at Corsicana, Tex. for the balance of the season with his "Mysterious Knockout" show.

"Kid" Herman, manager of the Athletic Show, entered the hospital today for an operation. A bruise on one of his legs developed into a bad case of blood poisoning. W. J. KEHOE (for the Show).

PIPES
 by Gasoline Bill Baker

Help keep the towns open! Every pitman's duty!!

Who's (if any one) working at Denver these days?

Very seldom hear from Toledo, O. Wake up, you lads there!

Is Harry Reilly (former razor man) still in the med. game? Whatsay, Harry?

John Shelvin asks: "Bill, really why do the boys pitch?" Several things, ol' top—one of them, to eat.

Don't "burn bridges" behind you. Several have "rebuilt bridges" only to have the props kicked out again by someone else.

Two well-known med. entertainers, Campbell and Connors, are wondering where's Birdie Summs and want her to shoot a pipe.

It wouldn't do any "harm" now for the boys working parks to loosen up and let the folks know where they spent the summer.

There is a very good indication that the Central Northern States, at least, will have an early fall—especially cold nights. Which means hustle for the boys in the daytime.

A carpenter just about has it all over any other trade or profession. He really traces his best to do his work square, at least when he is working.

Doc George M. Reed "records": "Played the Danville (Ill.) Fair. It was an 18-k. bloomer for the boys. The same Jim man who was put off the grounds at Connersville was also put off at Danville."

Among the boys at the Hidding (Minn.) Fair were Frank Evans, needles; E. C. Crumley, razor paste; Edward St. Matthews, notous, and Lewis, Buck, Nissen and Burrows, subscriptionists.

At the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto; A. W. Fisher, W. J. Flood, Jack O'Leary, of Buffalo; Bobby Russell, Casey, Archie Smith, "Philly Buzz", Murr Gordon, all working for James Kelly, of New York City.

O. H. Holzhauser "shot" from Goldsboro, N. C.: "We have been enjoying camping life all summer in the Carolinas. Have been enjoying nice business with paper. Myself and family have best wishes for all square shooters."

Due to error in an advertisement of Berk Bros., of New York City, in issues of August 23 and 30, there appeared the item of Geneva Razors at "$3.50 per gross." This, of course, was impossible, and the price should have been $3.50 per dozen.

Frank Kennedy unlimbered from Chicago that his old friend, Doc Mac, has been working med. around the Windy City since he arrived from the East and is doing nicely. Frank added: "He has also invested in a 'gas buggy', and its best to get out of the way when one sees him coming down the line with it."

Several don't-care Jim men in various parts of the country are making decidedly hard-sledding (closing towns) for pitmen. Get that "don't care" in the first line—it means they don't care if they do close 'em (sp. it's up to straight workers to protect their own and fellow-workers' interests). A couple of them are trailing small circuses.

Relative to pitmen in the Jonesboro and other sections of Arkansas, Pappy Dean says he has been to three of them and all were bloomers, there not seeming to be much spending money carried by those attending the festivities, and that they will not leave until the cotton is picked. He thinks "times" will pick up there in about six weeks, however.

Jack Yencel typewriter from Hastings, Neb. (He's good with a typewriter): "I will re-enter the School for the Blind for the second term September 10, in order to advance" (Continued on page 100)

Here's a Winner Blame Yourself if You Don't Make $200 a Week

The New Serenola. You know it is against the Postal Laws to make misleading statements. All right! We don't have to. Ted Gnaur started out with this amazing musical invention and averaged $10 a day for four months. Arthur Jost demonstrated the marvelous Serenola in sections of N. Y. State and he averaged $600 a month. Hector of Oregon sold a week. Barnes of Oklahoma 47 sales in one month. Gratz of Ky. $6,000 last year. M. Mayer and Geo. Phelps, team mates, split over $2,000. We have hundreds of representatives making from $8 to $24 a day in their spare time. If they can do it so can you. The Serenola is a Wonder. Something new and different. Does more than machines costing 5 times its price. Plays any Record—Fully Guaranteed. Carry it with you anywhere. Just the thing for the porch, garden, picnic, camp or camp. The Serenola is truly a wonderful instrument, and it sells at such a low price that everyone can afford to own one. Built in—and looks just like a fancy leather suitcase. New Plan—Free Demonstrator. As soon as we get your letter or postal we will send you full details about the Serenola, and tell you how you can get a Serenola for demonstrating purposes without cost to you. You take the orders. We deliver and collect. You get your money every day. Get busy at once. Make big money right from the start. Write or wire for territory. PERRY-LUDLOW CO. S-4518 Dayton, Ohio further into the different lines that the school will furnish, and will be glad to hear from friends. Before entering the school I will play some return engagements in Omaha, Neb." Jack's address is Box 1202, Nebraska City, Neb.

Listen, fellows! Bill needs more short pipes (of from ten to thirty words) to start off this old column each week. Don't say to yourselves, "I'm going to write a lot of them some time," but do it now and send them often! It makes the "column" all the more interesting, gets more of the boys mentioned each week and, in all, greatly helps this scribe put out good reading to the knights of the profession.

McD. Ferguson pipes from Louisville, Ky.: "I've enjoyed the pipes from Tom Redway. If I knew his whereabouts I would like to drop him a line as I troubled with him in North Carolina, season 1923. 'Smoky Joe' Layle was also on the 'spot' that season and part of the next. The last I heard of 'Smoky Joe' he was in Augusta, Ga. Bill McQuize was here in Louisville the last winter working at the Savoy Theater and Lloyd Mann was here too."

In connection with a "truth serum" said to make a person tell the truth when it is injected, "Zip" Hiller opines that if some of the "spots" they might come down with the facts concerning just who (and why) are behind movements to discriminate against street salesmen working in their towns, and that it might be also tried out on some pitchmen—frinstance a fellow who said it kept two factories busy to supply him with soap.

Campbell and Connors pipe, in verse, from Indiana: Campbell and Connors are lome on their hill, Four miles back from Pooxyville; We got a hen named "Kitty"; Two roosters, "Fete" and "Jake"; And the whole darn bunch Sure do take the cake. At this writing we're diggin' the "taters"; Working with night and main; But we should be out hollerin'; "Doggone! Sold out agagin'!"

There was quite an assemblage of the knights at the Minnesota State Fair at Minneapolis. The list included Fred Cummings, with pens; Earle Crumley, razor paste; Jas. E. Miller, garters; Ollie Myers, razors; Jack Kearns, pens; Palo Kerr, pencils; Ray Marks, buttons; Hector, razors; Fred Holmes, notions; Frank Libby, knife sharpeners; "Big Swede", cement; Frank Sullivan, pens; Sacks, white-tones; Eddie St. Matthews, notions; Collins, pens; Logan, darning; Haskell, pens; and Jas. E. Miller, with lumps, nobs and buckles, who did not arrive until Thursday a.m.

Ed. W. Ewing pens from St. Paul, Minn.: "Well, Bill, a few lines from myself and wife. I am working paper and pteeling to very good business. All the boys seem to be doing line up in this country. Everything looks good. What has become of my old friends, "Curly" Hunter, Joe Laid and Babcock? My wife and I are going to work south in about thirty days. This is my thirtieth year on the road and here's hoping that we all get thirty more years—of good business. I am now working out of St. Paul. Would like a pipe from my brother, Harry Ewing, who is working paper somewhere in the East."

In answer to the recent "call" for pipes from England, etc. Tony Tilles, "shooped" from London: "Not many travelling pitchmen and women selling things right in the city now, as most of them are making the various mops called big street fairs, I believe, in the United States). I am having good success with a novelty toy for children and just came to London for a new supply of stock." Attaboy, Tony; tell the other boys and girls over there to get busy with some pipes. By the way (just for the fun of the coincidence), your name spelled backward is quite symbolic of your work and the success you are attaining (458-11).

Buck Dorsey writes from Natchez, Miss.: I have been reading Pipes ever since they started but I have never written you. My idea of the object for the pipes is to help men in our line. I am an old-time pitchman and trouper. I ran away from home when I was a kid and joined the old Sells Circus in 1889. I have been here for the past two years or more, sick, suffering with an incurable disease. I have one of the best of doctors—Dr. M. Hookman. He has done everything he can for me. My time is only a matter of a few months. My reason for writing this letter is to ask a few of my old friends to write me, including Ike Stewart, "Bull" Johnson, Billie Sanders, "Kid" Davis, Earl Park, Joe Noonan, Zaak Terrill, George Cleveland, George Redmond, K. G. Barkoot, Rubin Gruber, and many others (Continued on page 102) who know me and will spend a stamp to help an oldtimer pass the time easier till our comes for the "great adventure," which comes to all of us at some time. "Kid" Hunt and his minstrels was the only show here this year and I was not able to get to the lot to see that. My address is 301 Franklin street, Natchez, Miss."

Doc, Red Jacket (now with Billie Clark's Broadway Show), wrote from Corbin, Ky.: "I met Jim Bethel and James Hendrick, wire-jewelry workers, here Labor Day, and they had a good tip in front of them, and were busy handing out their wares to the crowd. They are on their way north and report that business with them so far has been good. Also met B. J. Wyman with pens and pencils, headed south. Wyman said he was still working, but that business was only fair, as this appears to be the worst year for his business he has experienced in years. Watched the Lone Kid with his cowboy make up pitching tire patch to a good pass out. All of the foregoing were working in Corbin."

From DeWitt Shanks at Russell's Point, O.: "Have been vacationing for the week at this place and it is undoubtedly one of Ohio's greatest resort spots. It has a boardwalk one and one-half miles in length, lined with concessions and rides; a dance pavilion, which accommodates 1,000 couples; boating, fishing and bathing galore. The sold heads estimated 20,000 visitors last Sunday. I worked here for business both Sunday and Labor Day. Am pulling camp for the Wheeling Fair this week—thence toward the land of "perpetual sunshine." Would like pipes from some of my "delinquent" friends, such as "The Boy Orator of Texas," Mal Griswold; Peterson Bros., Doyle, of pecker fame; "Doc" Chesterfield, the original Bozo, and Hauer, of Tennessee."

Glad tidings came from Orlando, Fla., last week relative to further advancement in the real estate field of that former well-known medicine showman, P. Frank Hatticox. It was in the form of copies of two newspapers, The Orlando Sentinel and The Evening Reporter, long news article in each of them dealing with a large tract of land near Orlando just purchased by Frank, which he intends cutting up into tracts of twelve lots each for sale purposes. Close by is the tract recently given by Congressman and Mrs. C. D. Haines for a proposed $15,000,000 national newspaper men's home. The headings to the article in The Sentinel read thus: "Hatticox Purchases 750 Acre Tract at Altamont Springs. Property Comprises Three and One-Half Miles of Lake Front—Purchase Price Is $175,000."

While taking a slant at The Mansfield (O.) News last week, a lengthy article caught Bill's attention. It was on a wedding of a local couple on the stage of the Redwood med. show the night of September 1 by Magistrate Andrew Stevenson, with Redwood's Orchestra providing the instrumental music. The assemblage witnessing the ceremony was estimated as numbering more than 8,000 persons, and "the largest crowd ever assembled in Richland County to attend a wedding." Redwood presented the bride with $25 in gold. (Don't know whether Doc immediately made a pitch to the push, but—oh boy!—what an opportunity!)

From Doc W. R. Kerr: "I am still in Lake City, S. C., and will be here until the last of the month. Business has been good here and is still picking up each week. Dr. Maxie is working at Florence, S. C., twenty-five miles from here. He has a five-piece show. Doc Kaiser is at Olanta, S. C., twelve miles from here, with a four-piece show. The only paper man seen in these parts for the past week is Red DeWitt, who is here. George Jordan is still here with wire jewelry. "Duffy Dan" left last Sunday for the Georgia tobacco markets. King Cole's Comedians are here this week with a high-class repertoire show. Mumford & Jones' tent show is just six miles from here, at Cadis, S. C., and a couple of fine fellows they are. So the trouper can figure there is plenty of "med." and other shows around here."

Sam McMillan, novelty performer and boss canvasser, wrote from Benserser, Pa.: "Just closed a successful season with the Babette Show here, this being the last indoor stand. It was a very pleasant engagement, and after a short vacation I will rejoin the show at Tusville, Pa., for the fall season. Miss Babette and her mother had a most profitable motorized show and the roster was as follows during the entire season: Mrs. Orvina Mijette, proprietor; Miss Babette, manager and lecturer; Roy Eddie, black-face comedian, and Billy Kling, who is now joining a repertoire company in New York. While the show was at Rochester we enjoyed a nice visit from Doc Cooper and his wife, also Bob Harris. Miss Babette is a nifty little talker—works clean—and consequently the natives treat us royally in every town."

Doc Frank Hauer sends a newsy pipe—including an automobile accident of one of the

Johnny J. Jones' Exposition Goes Over Big at Toronto Exhibition

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 11.—Up to and including today the Canadian National Exhibition attendance for this year has been 1,179,500 against 1,140,000 for 1923, according to the reports, an increase for the ten days of 25,000 with three days to follow. On children's days 310,247 kiddies bought tickets for the shows and rides on the Johnny J. Jones Exposition "Joy plaza" and not a single accident of any nature was recorded. Labor Day was simply stupendous with some 200,000 in attendance, and the show came in for a full day. The newspapers have been more than kind. Plenty of special stories, including front-page ones, with feature pictures galore. News-Mirror, a new pictorial, devoted two columns to photographs and stories and an editorial; Jack Cunnuck, a full page of photographs and stories and strong editorial; The Sunday World, a full page of the franks and another page of story, and this occurred for the entire engagement. A great bunch of real up-to-date lasting score-gatherers aided and abetted by the human dynamo, Col. Joseph Hay, publicity manager for the Canadian National Exhibition, under whose guiding spirit all the wonderful publicity given to this famous exhibition received the "pep" bestowed upon it. Visitors galore have been here including N. S. Green, of The Billboard, Cincinnati office; S. R. Gordon, The Billboard's representative at Ottawa; James S. Mison, manager Zeidman & Pollock Shows, accompanied by his very charming wife; William Price and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, Wilbur S. Cherry, William Judkin-Hewitt, Harry Spillman, of Tonawanda, N. Y.; R. M. Stripling; Oscar Mills, manager and president of the South Eastern Fair; Mr. Stridlin, also manager of the Florida State Fair; P. T. (Barnum) Schroder, manager South Florida Fair; Joseph McKee, former construction manager for Mr. Jones; Col. J. Curtis, manager, and Judge Samuel Connor, president of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Inter-State Fair; Michael Camblo, who had just closed his circus-bazaar show; good old Joe Gimson, who has long been The Billboard's Toronto representative, now partially disabled thru a long siege of illness, but who still retains a buoyancy of optimism that is most refreshing. Col. Ernest Dickstag, owner Uplift Springs Park, San Bernardino, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Farles, who after their season of Western Canada Fairs and Central States Fair at Aurora, Ill., are now on their way to Los Angeles; William Mozzart, district passenger agent the C. N. R. R. (and well liked by all classes of showfolks); Hon. Charles V. Traux, director of agriculture, State of Ohio; Hon. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture for Ontario, with General Manager John G. Kent and President Miller, both of Canadian National Exhibition; George S. Henry, minister of public works; Thomas A. Russell, past president of the C. N. E.; Vice-Admiral Fields of the British navy and his entire staff; Victor Leon and Mr. Harris, who have the "Ten Commandments" showing at Massey Hall; Richard Fisher, many years on the executive staff of Thurston (the magician), now personal representative for Vaughan Gleser. Today the children had in tow sixty children from St. Mary's Hospital for the cure of consumption. On Children's Day the Shriners and Knights of Columbus entertained some 5,000 orphans, with transportation to ground, eats and drinks, and Johnny J. Jones gave them the admission to his shows and rides. Weather all during the exhibition has been ideal with the single exception of the morning of Labor Day, when it rained, but cleared up at noon, and the balance of the day was fine. The show entertained the Edmonton, Alberta, girls' basketball team, who were guests of the C. N. E. on their return from Europe, also the Edmonton Newsboys' Band.

David Langley Mitchell has been the recipient of great praise from all the officials of the Toronto Exhibition for the masterly art displayed in the designing, construction and painting of the special "franks," "The Dragon," H. P. Maynes' new ride under the direction of Harry (Illions), made an instantaneous hit, as did Johnny J. Jones' "Mysterious Japan" under Harry Gilman's management. Mr. and Mrs. Johnny J. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. P. B. (Abe) Jones, with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Smith, have been entertaining their sisters, Mrs. Anna Stage, of Buffalo, and Nellie Werkley, of DuBois, Pa., who with their families have been spending the past week at the exhibition. After Toronto comes London, Ont.; then Nashville, Tenn. ED R. SALTER (Johnny J. Jones' "Hired Boy").

SEAPLANE RECORD CLAIMED

What is claimed to be a world's endurance record for seaplanes with auxiliary motors was achieved by Hans Diet, German aviator, recently, when he remained in the air for ten hours and thirty-five minutes. This time-beating record of Henry Farman, French aviator, by twenty-two minutes, says a cable from Germany.

W. D. DRIVER TO WED

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Wallace D. Driver, of Driver Bros., son of Walter F. Driver, left for Los Angeles yesterday, and on September 11 he is to be married to Venita Clark, of the California city. An extensive trip will be taken thru the West and the couple will be at home September 25 at 5422 West Walton street, this city. Mr. Driver's father is an extensive and successful manufacturer of tents and he also has been raised in the business.

GENTRY BROS.-PATTERSON MAKES HIT IN CLARKSBURG

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 4.—The Gentry Bros.-Patterson Circus made a big hit here and drew two good-sized houses. This show has the best all-around looking stock that has been seen here this season. It was necessary to call off the parade, due to the long jump from Oakland, Md., and a long haul to the lot. Visitors were Dr. J. W. Hartigan, Jr., and Jack Matthews, high policeman, formerly of Morgantown, W. Va., but now of Chicago.

BREAKS AIR RECORD

Jean Laporte, French aviator, reached an altitude of 5,100 meters in a hydroplane loaded with 500 kilograms, breaking the record of 4,550 meters made by Commander Marquis Venturone di Sesto Calende, of Italy, states a cable from Paris.

RINGLING-BARNUM CIRCUS

With memories of a pleasant engagement at Chicago, the Ringling-Barnum Circus arrived and opened at Danville, Ill., August 27, after getting a splendid run of 128 miles over the N. Y. C. Amos Jones, boniface of Crawfordville, Ill., was on hand and Charles Corey gave the show the once over. Next day at Indianapolis Roy Felts and his two daughters visited, also Gay Hamilton's mother and Carl Steinbrook's father. Ethel and Armar Blagg called on Carl Hataway. Frank Feltriniano visited at Indianapolis. Mr. De Haven, of Columbus, O., was a guest of Roy De Haven. Miss Davis visited down alley. Joe Harris, Bobby Dobby, Worcester Frank, William Scott and Marlowe left at Danville to take winter positions. Joe Lloyd remained at Danville. Andy Graves left some time ago and was presented with a gold thermos bottle by her many lady friends. Since arriving back east, Judy has been writing poetry and her latest effort is a beautiful fifteen-verse poem dedicated to Lillian Lestel. Jim Harro and wife, Katie, visited at Indianapolis. It was a busy day there for Jack Foley, as it is his home town. Buck Reynolds did not show up and if he is away trouping, he should notify the writer of this column. Charley Rawles and Tarkington did not show up at Indianapolis. Tark now has the plant at Kokomo and Rawles is in a bank at Bloomington. Not bad for a couple of ex-troupers.

Dr. Waldell, accompanied by Dr. Scanlon, was a visitor at Indianapolis. Also noticed were Tommy Monahan, William Richards and several other troupers. Peter Vance was a visitor at both performances. The Western Union feast was pulled off at Terre Haute with Norman Joseph's friend, Christmas, officiating. Whenever Joseph's name is mentioned, it is always synonymous of the team of Joseph and Jerome. Paul Jerome is very much with the show; he and Herman making thousands laugh daily. The I.K.K. state Convention was on at Terre Haute and some of our showfolk took advantage of their long holiday and visited their picnic grounds. Everett Hart, Saylor Johnson, Jack DeCar, Billy Cannon, Sam Hansen, Bob Kent and many other show folks attended. Nemo had near ball players as his guests at Indianapolis. Mrs. Oscar Jordan returned at Indianapolis after being away for two weeks. The Malletts, Mrs. Mallett and her two daughters, Mildred and Irene, are to leave at St. Louis on account of the current season opening at Brooklyn. The Three Bartletts, Carl, Alma and Fred report a very nice time in Chicago visiting friends and relatives. At present Fred is under the weather, but expected to be back at work by the time the show made St. Louis. Carl is still taking lessons on the kuke. Clifford Wadson is working in Steward Wobly's department. Everett Hart intends to go to Los Angeles on a visit this fall as soon as the show closes. Don Beal, former trouper with Field's Minstrels, visited at Terre Haute.

The Circus Fans' Association movement has taken great impetus and the writer is in receipt of many letters each week asking for membership. Recent additions were Lieutenant Sterling of Illinois and Karl K. Knucht, cartoonist, of Evansville, Ind. Geo. Ade's application is being considered also and "Bob" Johnston of the Governor's staff of New Hampshire has been advanced from an ordinary member to second vice-president. Richard Knuching joined at Evansville. After spending a couple of weeks at Michigan Beach, "Army" is back in the wardrobe department. Have heard from Wm. Toll Boyer, former all-around circus man. He is advance agent for "Sahara". Saw Mrs. Arnt Augusted, formerly S. Gerit Holden, and her line son at Chicago. Jack Stone left at Danville. He goes to Bridgeport to take employment that will keep him occupied all winter. Walter Gilliland spent a busy day at Mattson entertaining friends and relatives.

Frank Miller's wife joined at Chicago and will be with the show until after the St. Louis engagement. He is thinking of joining the St. Louis Band Colony Association. Frank's daughter has been christened "Leona". Johnny Mattson called visited "Easel Top Dutch" and other friends of the band cap. Carl Jenkins, well-known clown, joined at Detroit. Helen Gibson, former leading lady in motion pictures and associated with "Hot" Gibson, was a recent addition to the wild west organization. Helen, a thorough horsewoman, has been riding wild west and menage. Abey Witton sold his taxi business and joined the show when it left Chicago. Clifford Bammel has recently been doubling on the front door and driving the taxi automobile during the illness of Fred Bartlett. Robert Ripley, known as "Elbe", is back from his vacation. Harry Martin, known as "Forepang", has returned from a visit to Kokomo. Frank Miller visited his home when the show played St. Louis. Happy Fields, known as "Jumbo", just back from a tour of Germany, was busy meeting old friends at St. Louis. Lew Graham, as usual, was busy being a trouper. Eppie Allen was busy with his relatives, St. Louis being his home town. Joe Steinhilber's father and mother visited from Memphis. Jim Smith, leader of the "Reds", called on all old friends. "Ned", the trouper wagon dog, met his death in an automobile accident at St. Louis. All the showfolk took it hard, especially Gus. Hutchinson's baby, Eugene, was the recipient of a full page in one of the Twin City papers, dwelling on his skill as a golf player and how he put local players to rout. Mr. Bullock, of the Erie Road, is still visiting the show. Mer Mr. Babbits, formerly of the M. & O. and well known to showfolk when he was general passenger agent of the Erie and Erie Rd., old trouper, visited the show at St. Louis. Eugene Hamilton, of Hamilton's Park, was on hand at every performance and Dave Olson made a long trip from the Southwest and "Tutty" Froelichs jumped from Danville, O., to see the show. Other celebrities named on St. Louis were "Toker", Dale P. Bob White, "Rusty" Campbell, Jerry Salzman, L. P. Jordan, Sam Wilson, Geo. Hamilton and Bill Miller. Con Mason and Glennson paid their respects at Chicago. Ed Shapp and family visited at Springfield, Ill. STANLEY E. DAWSON (For the Show).

Minnesota Sets New Attendance Record

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—Thomas H. Canfield and other officials of the Minnesota State Fair are intensely gratified at the splendid showing made by the fair this year. While the exact figures for today have not yet been announced, it is certain that the attendance is considerably ahead of last year.

Every day's attendance with the exception of Monday showed an increase over corresponding days last year. Monday's attendance was cut down by rain in the morning and threatening weather the greater part of the afternoon.

Table with 2 columns: Day and Attendance. Friday: 586; Saturday: 25,087; Sunday: 5,088; Monday: 120,931; Tuesday: 42,919; Wednesday: 70,672; Thursday: 50,101; Friday: 44,826; Saturday: 54,126; Total: 412,344.

SAN DIEGO ORDINANCE WOULD BAR TENT SHOWS

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 6.—If an ordinance is passed as presented in the city council by the president of that body, all performances given in tents with the exception of circuses, will find themselves up against an almost prohibitive expense fee. The proposed ordinance would make the fee $500 monthly and would apply to any person, firm or corporation giving a show in any tent or any temporary structure.

LOUIS GORDON ACQUIRES CONEY ISLAND SHOW PLACE

New York, Sept. 8.—Louis Gordon, well-known concessionaire of Coney Island and Atlantic City, this week purchased the site now occupied by Sam Gordon's Hiss-on Show in Surf avenue at Coney Island. The property, 72x200, in 1902 was the scene of the original "Fighting the Flames" spectacle and has since given room to Evans & Gordon's freak animal shows and lions.

Sarasota, Fla., Sept. 5.—Definite arrangements have been made for the Ringling-Barnum Circus Band to play here this winter. Business men of the city, under the leadership of H. D. Burns, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee, wired Charles Ringling that the money will be available and to bring on the band. Twenty men will comprise the musical organization. Merchants and individuals are delighted with the announcement that the famous circus band will play here.

BALLOONIST ESCAPES DEATH

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 6.—George A. Starr, parachute jumper of New Haven, narrowly escaped death at the Bridgeports, New York, Conn., this week, when his balloon caught fire just as it was leaving the ground. Starr did not know of the danger until about thirty feet in the air. He hung on for 11 minutes the balloon was up about 200 feet, when he made a parachute drop.

OPENING POSTPONED

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 4.—The opening of Metz Brothers' circus here for a week's engagement last week was postponed until the week of September 8 because of a fire, which did serious damage to the log top of the show Friday night.

ROBBERS LOOT SAFE OF FAIR ASSOCIATION

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 5.—Dorby Day receipts amounting to $22,000 were taken from the safe of the Spokane Interstate Fair Association office at the fair grounds Thursday night. President Thomas Grubb announced this morning. No clue to the robbers has been found.

The fair loss is $18,500 and this is said to be fully covered by insurance. Of the amount stolen $300 belonged to a church congregation and $3,000 to D. W. Vandessel, restaurant man.

The robbery closed the season of passing the 1923 records total, as attendance this week is again below 60 percent of former claims that the robbery was an "inside" job.

FARTY FOR J. J. RUSSELL

Manager of Russell Bros.' Circus Surprised by Employees

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 5.—A very novel birthday party was staged last night at Russell Bros.' Circus, after the show set a record. The circus is having an engagement under its present of the Eagles. The occasion was the celebration of Manager J. J. Russell's birthday anniversary and was in the nature of a surprise. The usual evening engagements were being made and Mr. Russell, on his rounds of inspection, was greatly surprised. He was attracted to the big circus tent by the cry of "Happy Birthday" and started at once to quell the disturbance. Upon arriving in the big tent he was greeted by a martial band furnished by the circus band and the entire personnel of the show. It was a real circus party with the banquet table very prettily arranged in the center of the ring, with a table for carrots, and a feast that would do justice to the best host. Mr. Russell was given the seat of honor. On his right was Harry Tyler, president of the Russell company, and Mrs. Russell, organizer of the party. As an after thought arrangements were made after by Representative Victor Pich and Eddie Barry. After the banquet a program of dance music was played as the guests continued to sing and dance their hearts out. Mr. Russell was presented with a pedigree Airedale puppy which was christened "Nugget".

In attendance were H. H. Styer, M. A. and Edna Brock, Paul Yasarski, Ray Varg, Frank Street, Eddie Day, Yarnie G. L. Lingo, Tom the Stuntman, Joe Polack, Fred Rice, E. E. Gahery, Mary Corcoran, J. A. Tarrence, Bob Baker, Bob G. Sprary, Joe H. M. Star, Louis Zeno, John Kovacs, Jack Cronin, Harold F. Sanchez, Fred O'Brien, Aerial Patti, Charlotte M. P. P. Dew, Bert Sawy, Eugene Boggs, Dan Egan, Andy West, A. A. Koenig, H. G. Ladden, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Toomey, J. McCarren, Dan Biv, D. J. M. Kinney, Tom Buttr, H. Han, Wm. H. W. K. Baumman, Bob D. R. ALI'S ALTER EGO

George Hambley is mending slowly. He looks much better and goes about more readily. It was a general opinion due to overwork and commotion. His doctor has him on a strict diet and is confident that he will be as good as ever by the early winter.

VISIT GRAVE OF FARIS

Marshall Ky., Sept. 5.—The big fight of the Big Week-Wallace Circus, which proved here September 3, went into a tribute to a former employee, when Jack Warren, press agent and several performers visited the grave of Clarence Faris and placed a wreath on the mound as a token of respect. Young Faris, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Faris, Sr., of this city, was killed while crossing the railroad tracks in Milan, Ill., on July 17, 1919, and his body shipped back to this city for burial. He had been with the show several days.

STRAYER AMUSEMENT CO.

Fourth Carnival at Elgin, Ill., This Season

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 3.—The Strayer Amusement Co. played here last week, furnishing attractions for the American Legion Homecoming Celebration. It was the fourth carnival here this season. The commander of the local post had visited the show at Kaukaunee and booked it to appear here with the other attractions already arranged for. Weather throughout the week was good, there being no rain—the first week of no rain here this season. Mr. Strayer found satisfaction with the receipts of the various shows, rides, etc., particularly the rides. So good an impression did the Strayer Amusement Co. make here that a committee of the American Legion Post at St. Charles, nine miles south of Elgin, booked it for St. Charles for this week.

The location here was on the field just opposite the Northern Hospital for the Insane. The Tagalog medicine carried by Mr. Strayer drew a great deal of attention in its daily street advertising. O. Reynolds, Illusionist, late of the Francis Shows and holder for J. T. Porter of the "Palace of Enchantment" at Electric Park, Kansas City, Mo., joined the show here. The roster includes the following:

Staff—J. R. Strayer, owner and manager; C. T. Miller, agent; Johnny Thresher, concession manager; Dallas Burgess, electrical; Strayer's Athletic Circus, manager; F. O. Mager, with Young Louis and Pete Reed, wrestlers, and Ford Minger and "Lionel" Donald, boxers; Fred Minger, Jr.; bagpiper, and Mrs. E. O. Minger, tickets. Showers non-income, managed by Prof. R. Reynolds, having five working acts and five cages of animals, with the Reynolds children in charge of tickets. "Over the Top" war rick-walkers show, in charge of Mrs. Reynolds. "Over the Top" in charge of Jerry Hag. "Ringside" boxing carnival, Capt. Edly, boxing owner and manager; Mrs. Ehring, boxer; Walter Dandy and Wm. Kreuzer, construction. Strayer's Ed Wood, managed by Wm. Smith, with "Red" Burns and Eddie Kohn as assistants. "Merry Mayop", owned by Strayer and Ehring, managed by Wm. Erb, with Joe Raggles and "Sandy" Myers as assistants. MaGender and Phillips have the cook house, with Bill Bowen as chef; also two soft operators in charge of Mrs. Kruger. Among other concessionaires are John C. McCall, Mrs. Pearl McCall, Jack Burns, Mrs. J. T. Miller, Mr. Strayer has several, with Johnny Thresher, Alice Spinks, George McGrath, Jack Arndt and John Kohn as individual managers, and Mrs. Strayer has two, with "Irish" Williams and Midget Kohn as managers.

motion pictures. The opening bill will be "The Mlada", and it is planned to give a thirty-minute condensation of this opera.

Elied Clayton and Company will headline at the Orpheum Theater next week.

The Casino Players, co-operative stock players are showing to fair-sized audiences. Next week's offering will be "A 50'inch In Time".

Word was received from Rocklin, Calif., that N. Dana Perkins, former Shakespearean actor, who died recently at his country place near here, has left $50,000 to Anna Schroeder, who had been Perkins' housekeeper for many years.

It was estimated that more than 20,000 attended the opening day at the California State Fair. Sixty-three families, with 758 children, were entertained in the "largest family" contest.

Col. C. E. Bray, manager of the Junior Orpheum Circuit, is in town for a few days.

Frank Keenan, celebrated actor, accompanied by Mrs. Keenan, arrived Monday and expects to stay for a few days before motoring to Los Angeles.

Alice Gentle, grand opera star, who is trying an appearance in vaudeville at the Orpheum this week, need not worry as to how well she will be received. She was given an ovation by the audience.

"The Whole Town's Talking" is playing to crowded houses at the Curran this week. All other regular playhouses are dark and are expected to be for some time. Considerable speculation is being indulged in as to when Goldob & Mary will hold forth after January 10, when their lease of the Columbia expires. Some have it that they will show at the Tivoli, while others opine that it will be at the Capitol.

WANTED QUICK

For several days I have been in all the Perfumery stores of my city and have seen all the "Wanted" signs. I have seen many "Wanted" signs for a variety of goods and services. I am looking for a good opportunity to invest my money. I am looking for a good opportunity to invest my money.

The formation of the Golden State Theater Corporation capitalized at $1,000,000, and some of its plans were announced Tuesday. Robert A. McNiff is president of the company and it is stated that the principal purpose is to build and operate a chain of theaters in California. McNiff at present is the head of a number of corporations operating cinema theaters, and it is believed that eventually some of these will be merged with the new corporation.

Theater owners and motion picture operators here have been holding a series of conferences this week in an effort to amicably adjust a wage controversy.

William J. Rainey, who has been assisting Reginald Travers in the preparation of "Fashion", which was presented at the San Francisco Players' Club Wednesday evening, left for New York. Rainey will assist in the production of "The Way of the World", a comedy to be presented this fall by the Cherry Lane Players.

Bert Lyell, for years leading man at the Alhambra Theater and now a well-known film actor, is in San Francisco for a few days. Anita Stewart, George S. Brown, Lionel B. L. and Hinthly Gordon are with him as principals in a company that is en route to Tahiti to film "Never the Twain shall Meet".

"Taylor Holmes, star in "The Whole Town's Talking", playing at the Curran, was honor guest at the Down-Town Association luncheon yesterday.

LINE O' TWO OF NEWS

Gus Martell, top moulder of the Martell Bicycle Act, a free attraction at the fair grounds at Worcester, Mass., fell while performing, September 1, and fractured one of his legs in two places. He was taken to the general hospital and at last report was resting comfortably.

New York, Sept. 1.—Edward Haywood, manager of "The Pir", Luna Park, Coney Island, was presented with a parlor look today by his associates at the park, the occasion being the tenth anniversary of his wedding. Eddie is well known on Broadway as he is at Coney Island.

New York, Sept. 4.—While performing before a large crowd at the Norwalk, Conn. Fair, Alfredo, well-known high-wire artist, narrowly escaped serious injury when a breeze of wind came promptly to blow him from the wire. Pressure of mind in grappling for the wire on his descent prevented any injury.

Atlantic City, Sept. 5.—Louis Billig, of Philadelphia, a poignant visitor, objected to a charge of $7.25 for a haircut and shave and caused the arrest of one Harry Bonstantini, barber, who was held in $100 bail for a hearing. Mr. Billig avers that it was too much money to pay even at present time.

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 5.—Several fine free attractions were presented at the fair held here this week, and all were enthusiastically received. Included were La Boux and La Boux, the Flying Howards, Wilson's Comedy Circus, the Five Steppers, Great Alfredo, and a fashion show, locally produced. Business was fair.

house and any chance of success that the Minskys may look forward to in the future.
Why a non of Joe Ross's talent, ability, knowledge and experience in burlesque will stoop to shovel the shows that he does is inexplicable, and if journalistic reviews and justifiable criticism do not influence him to eliminate his indecency it's up to the police to take action and either eliminate Rose from the shows or eliminate the Minskys from Harlem, where theatergoers are accustomed to patronize burlesque sufficiently clean and clever to warrant the patronage of normal-minded men, women and children, for moral degenerates are in the minority in that section of the city.
The sooner Rose discovers this indisposition for the better for burlesque in Harlem.
The Minskys and their Apollo burlesque stock presentations are now floundering, floundering and floundering and if the Minskys fail to take heed and clean up it's a foregone conclusion that they will be cleaned out.
There were several redeeming features in the presentation which included the feminine principals referred to by the choristers, who, for the most part, are unusually attractive and, while not perfect in their ensemble numbers, evidence the careful coaching of Jack Mason, who has given them several novel and unique dances, particularly "perf. 1." The chorus includes: Bob W. L., M. M. Leonardo, Chuck Merritt, Helen Merritt, Betty Komper, Billy Parsons, Babe Jordan, A. J. Van Lee, Bob Monna, Claire Glenn, P. J. Page, Elizabeth Drake, Marion Wood, L. J. Ryan, Lesley Day, Doris Dwyer, Edith Jones, M. J. Carrol, Betty Walsh.
The Minskys are operating under the title of the Apollo Burlesque Operating Corporation, with the Minskys as executive directors of the act and company.
The executive staff of the theater includes: Russell Carew, treasurer; Jess Jones, assistant manager; Miss Hayes, chief usher; Isadore Lowenthal, art director; Joe Hyde, master of ceremonies; James O'Brien, assistant master of ceremonies; James Duddy, master of properties; Harry Peters, master electrician, and Bert Jones, stage manager.
The auxiliary staff for the company includes: Ross Sawyer, company manager; Walter Weber, stage manager; Samuel Wolkow, wardrobe director, and Marj. Weber, wardrobe mistress.

In the meantime, Fernald had obtained the rights to the play for five years from Chirelli for England and America. The contract contained a clause that he must get production in English within one year or forfeit the rights.

When word came over that "The Mask and the Face" was a London hit, Gilbert Miller began to negotiate for the Fernald version for American production. The price named is said to have been too high to appeal to him, and he was about to give up the idea when agents in this country for the Itan Authors' Society told him that he could have the American rights in another translation.

Knowing that Gilbert Miller might rush his version onto the stage before his, Pemberton put his play into rehearsal under the name of "The Ostrich Man" and awaited developments. Those promise to be of a legal nature, as apparently the crux of the whole situation lies in whether the author of the play has the right to dispose of his property, or whether Fernald has that right in the English translation.

Brock Pemberton said: "There is no question of ethics involved in this case. The whole question is: To whom does the play belong? It may be mine and it may be Gilbert Miller's. I entered into arrangements in good faith, and I kept the fact that I was producing 'The Mask and the Face' quiet, because Mr. Miller had announced that he was going to do the play, and I wanted to get my production on before his. That is all there is to the question."

"DEFENSE TEST DAY"

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—"The Contribution of the Screen" combined with the "Defense Test Day" program of the War Department, which eventuates in the big nationwide demonstration next Friday, is the test of the efficiency of the publicity mediums of the nation. This is the first peace-time application of their great agencies. In the excitement and glamour of war these elements have been brought into play, but "Defense Test Day" sounded the first bugle call since Armistice Day.

This joining of the press, the clergy, the motion picture screens and other elements in one common purpose to demonstrate a great national fact in the enumeration of available human units has proved a marvelous success. It illustrates the force of publicity, unity in the nation and how the popular mind can be aroused to action, even when there is no emergency.

The co-operation of the motion picture screens in this relation was brought about thru the joint efforts of National President M. J. O'Toole of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America and Secretary Weeks of the War Department.

The screen power of the nation was placed at the disposal of the government. Theater owners everywhere responded to the call, and this great publicity medium, the screen, has again demonstrated not only the loyalty of its custodians, but the great power resident in the silver sheet, and the success of the "Defense Test Day" is assured.

CHOATES' COMEDIANS No. 1 Find Better Business Where Farmers Have Had Quick Turnover of Crops

From Mt. Vernon, Ill., the following communication was sent to this department: "Commenting upon conditions in this part of the business, the Choates' Comedians No. 1 are encountering the same conditions in their immediate territory having passed this territory in Illinois for the past twenty years. Yet we find that this year the best judgment in picking spots has failed and spots that were not looked upon as winners have proved beyond expectations. The industrial centers of Southern Illinois have been hard hit and we have found that the farming centers of their territory where the farmer has a quick turnover are where the better business has been done."

Following Mr. Vernon for a week, which was a return engagement, the company went to Chicago, Ill., for fair work.

SHERMAN'S "SPOOKS" SCORES

Robert J. Sherman advises that his mystery play, "Spooks," recently was given in elaborate presentation in Dallas, Texas, by the Lytle Park Stock Company, of which Fred Wehr is director, and that newspapers proclaimed the play one of the best seen there this season. The play is to be repeated in Ft. Worth, where the company entered a theater for the winter, he says, and also was used in the opening of the new stock company in the Auditorium Theater at Spokane, Wash., registering big business all week.

AULGER BROS.' COMPANY

A splendid row of the performance given by the Aulger Bros.' Theatre Company at Hastings, Minn., recently appeared in The Gazette. The troupe, appeared at City Park for a week and the paper says it gave "a bill of high-class entertainment. It was a return engagement. The Aulger Bros. found for his country-boy sentimentalism, scored again with the audience there. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Raymond Dickison, the bitter in the play, for name parts, and Frank Roberts, for partner, character man, were heard in the wrap for the work. Mr. and Mrs. Lester, two members of the company, also were mentioned as favorably received.

Then the Woodard Play Company of East Toledo, O., Porter J. Marriage has just leased three plays. "The Girl of the Whispering Pines," "Toby and the Flapper" and "Shadowed by Two". Mr. Marriage is opening rotary stock with the latter, featuring the Nellie Blair Players.

JACK KING'S COMEDIANS Entertained at All-Day Picnic in Georgetown, S. C.

Jack King's No. 1 Comedians were on a big outing the other day. Jack, as usual, leading after the comforts of his company, left on all-day picnics during the week's engagement in Georgetown, S. C. First he invited the members to take a ride on his yacht, "The Blue Bird," five miles down the bay. Then he anchored and introduced the company to the surroundings of the I.K.S. Lodge camp, Jack and many all of the men of the troupe being I.K.S. The day was passed in complete peace, and to omit mentioning there was fishing all day.

Mr. King has two companies on the road and has said to be organizing a No. 3 company. His shows are very "peppy" from certain to certain, as evidenced by press comment. The roster follows for the No. 1 show: Neary Gaffery, leads; Mamie King, ingenue; Elsie Berkley, utility; Angel Leary, juveniles; Dorothy Adams, characters; Patsy Gaffery, child parts; Roy P. Lewis, leads; Jack Gaffery, heavies; Ralf Cooke, juveniles; Tom Lutz, utility; Rolloff J. Clayton, characters; Jack "Freakiest" King, featured comedian; Carl Kallibay, musical director. The band: Rodney Boley, John Boro, Adolph R. Kenbacker, Joe Mack, George Berke and Bertha Elliot.

PARAMOUNT PLAYERS PASS 27TH WEEK; STILL GOING

Russell Broderick's Paramount Players have just passed their twenty-seventh week with eighteen weeks yet before the closing date. Their route has carried them thru five States. Business was good until June 1, but June and July were very bad, the worst in the history of the show, it is said. However, with the coming of fall business picked up satisfactorily and prospects for the balance of the season are good, writes Lawrence Russell.

The extremely bad weather in June and July was a prominent factor in the decreased receipts," he said. "In yours gone by but weather was an aid to the first show, but this is the day of the automobile and the business man who formerly took his family to the show now takes it for an auto ride and then home. Where formerly he attended the show four or five nights a week today he attends it once or twice."

Emma Marie Davis has carved a new niche for herself with her head-face work, her delineations of an old Southern mammy it is said.

Mary Tamese Russell, who at the age of sixteen is playing an exciting line of leads, has demonstrated by work above beyond her years that there is something in heritage.

Jack Malady has succeeded J. Lawrence Nolan in the male leads and is doing splendidly, as is Robert J. Leagin in the comedy. A six-piece orchestra under the direction of Emory E. Tuttle is one of the big features of the show.

NORMA GINNIVAN COMPANY PRESENTS BEST OF PLAYS

The Norma Ginnivan Company has passed its seventeenth week and is booked considerably ahead, writes Ed Mills for the show. He states business has been exceedingly good, but that much cannot be said for the week. Traveling overhead by under a few pictures have been encountered, but there are no showouts. The company has made an impression upon its patrons this season with its class of plays presented, "Cuppy Bawls" and "The Wise Fool" have been going over well, while Ralph Kettering's "The Great Comedian" is conceded to be one of the heaviest plays ever successfully produced under canvas.

The stage is under the direction of Ed Mills, who is booking Gene Bergman and Anita Kelly as leading the leads. The cast is 100 per cent "hot". The roster follows: Jane McEvers, Gene Bergman, Ed Mills, Jack Hartman, James Glassow, Frank Scott, Howard Hack, Anita Kelly, Laura Gray, Rose McEvers, Elva Bartine, Virginia Marlow, Ed Hecker, Norman Morry, A. Tom Butler, Lew Palmer, Ireland Mills, Charles Todd, Verle Haws, Bobby Herk, Laura Bartine, Anna Hecker, Harold Ruffor, James Glassow, Jack Ruffor, Howard Morandy, and Norma Ginnivan, owner and manager.

DEATHS

In the Profession

ACKERMAN—C. F., of Warsaw, Ill., manager of Stetson's "Fido Tom's Cabin" shows, was found dead in his room at a hotel in Youngstown, O., Monday morning, September 8. Death was due to heart disease.

BOWLES—Edward Vincent, Jr. (Harry), died August 29 at the Holy Cross Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah, a few hours after receiving gunshot wounds at the fair grounds there during a rodeo in which show he was a participant.

BOYER—Joe, well-known automobile racer, died September 2 in Albion, Pa., as the result of injuries received in a smash-up when losing control of his machine because of a blowout on the Albion Speedway. He deliberately sacrificed his own life to save the speeding machine would not crash into the thousands of spectators lined about the bowl. The car was traveling about 125 miles per hour when the accident occurred. Boyer was rushed to the hospital immediately after the crash, where it was found necessary to amputate his legs. He died shortly after. Only a few days prior to the accident Boyer had signed a contract as one of eight automobile racers to participate in the opening program on Charlotte's new automobile speedway October 27. The deceased was one of the most daring drivers in the business and his services were much sought after for fairs and beaches. The remains were shipped to his home in Detroit September 2, where funeral services and interment were held. Mrs. Boyer received word of her husband's death in Buffalo and immediately took a train for Detroit.

BURBY—Agnes, 31, well-known show girl, died August 18 in Lowell, Mass., after an illness of five weeks. The deceased had been a member of Hasting's "Golden Crooks" and Gus Hill's show for a number of years. Her mother and father and four sisters, Louise Burly, Buster Roy, Mrs. Frank Dondoro, Mrs. Cecile Roy, all former professionals, and brother, Frank Burly, survive.

BRAUER—Mrs. Anna Macbrair, 82, mother of Archie M. (Jack) Brauer, died 7 p. m. Sunday August 24, at her home, 17 Highland avenue, Cincinnati, O. The deceased was a sister-in-law of John W. Duggess, said to be the first general agent of the P. T. Barnum Circus.

CARMICHAEL—Mrs. Annie Darling, noted New England musician and composer, died suddenly August 26 at her home in Malden, Mass. The deceased was the wife of the late Prof. C. M. Carmichael.

CARSTENSEN—Carl Hermann, 51, violinist, known to the stage as Carl Hermann, died August 21 at the State Hospital, Clarendon, Ia. He was a graduate of the University of Chicago, where he was a pupil of the noted Professor Jacobson. The deceased traveled with theatrical and operatic companies and had also been with the Central Lyceum Bureau of Chicago and the Midland Bureau of Des Moines, Ia. His mother, one brother and one sister survive. Burial was August 21 at Walnut Hill Cemetery.

CRANE—Raymond, 35, talented young actor, who had appeared in numerous Broadway productions, was instantly killed September 5 when struck by lightning while playing golf on the links of the Jackson Heights Golf Club, Long Island, N. Y. Among the productions in which he had appeared were "Going Up," "Tremor" and "The Chinking Yarn." The deceased also filled several summer engagements as leading comedian with the St. Louis (Mo.) Municipal Opera Company. A widow, formerly of the profession, and a young daughter survive.

CROWL—Mrs. Charles C., 35, wife of the Chicago theatrical agent, died August 23 in a sanitarium at Minneapolis, Minn., after a lingering illness. The deceased was a vaudevillean prior to her marriage.

DAVIS—Arthur, 78, well-known English producing manager, died recently at Hyde, Isle of Wight, Eng. Mr. Davis was a pioneer in forming companies thru the Island and under his pilotage the following well-known managers sent their companies: Hozarth, Barry, Seel, Harry Monkhouse, Mrs. Handmann Palmer, Van Biese and Lincard, Charles Hawtrey and Doyle Carte. Mr. Davis was very fond of sports and in his youth was for many years the best bowler in the Hyde Cricket Club. He was also interested in rowing, boxing and running. In his later years his spare moments had mostly been devoted to yachting. The deceased is survived by three sons and four daughters. One of the sons, a Mr. B. is assistant manager of Devonshire Park, Bournemouth, England.

DAVISS—Maria Thompson, 51, widely known playwright, author and actress, died suddenly of heart disease, September 3, in her apartment at the National Arts Club, 119 East Nineteenth street, New York. Miss Daviss had been in poor health for the past six years but her end was unexpected, and is believed to have been hastened by the recent hot spell.

She was a member of an old literary family, she used the name of her grandmother, who was a frequent contributor to American weeklies of that generation. Miss Daviss' father was John Burton Thompson and her mother Leonora Hamilton. Her aunt, Hannah Daviss Pittman, was also noted for her writings. She received her education in private schools in Kentucky and Tennessee, graduating from Science Hill at Shelbyville, Ky., in 1871, following which she attended Wellesley College, specializing in literary studies, and studied art for several years in Europe. In 1891 and 1897 she exhibited paintings at the Paris Salon. On her return she devoted herself to miniature and art jewelry, after which she turned to writing short stories for magazines, and shortly thereafter novels. "The Melting of Mily," one of her most popular novels, was dramatized and produced in New York, where it became a popular success. The deceased also wrote a play called "The Dared Devils," and among her novels were "Miss Selina Sue and the Snip-Hop Babes," "The Road to Providence," "Base of Old Hesperia," "The Tender Box," "The Paradise Ridge," "The Golden Bell" and "Seven Times Seven." The latter work, a biography, was only recently published. She was a member of the Ten Cent Women's Press and Authors' Club, Nassau Literary Association, Linn and Brush, Central Round Table and other clubs. Funeral services were held at 8:30 the evening of September 3 at her apartment, which was attended by intimate friends and relatives only. The remains were cremated September 4, and sent to the South for interment in one of the family plots.

ELLIS—Sidney H., popular theatrical manager, and at one time manager of Al Wilson, singing German comedian, died August 31 at No. 41 The deceased was a well-known member of the Lamb's Club and of Pacific Lodge 223, F. & A. M. Funeral services, under the auspices of St. Albans Lodge, were held September 3 at his residence.

FERGUSON—Barney, 71, former actor in vaudeville and a seaman for half a century, died August 28 in a sanitarium at Bernardsville, N. J., in which place he had been where he had been operated on for hernia. Ferguson was well known to thousands of old-time vaudeville patrons as half of the famous team of Ferguson and Mark. He was known as Billy St. George, half of the noted St. George and Gibbons, black-face song and dance team, until the middle '70s. The deceased was born in Ireland in March of 1853. Recently he had been under the care of the N. V. A. A. at St. Malachi's Church, New York.

FUQUAY—Jack, well-known burlesque comedian, died recently in Bellevue Hospital, New York, to which place he had been transferred from his rooms in the Palace Hotel, suffering from hemorrhages of the lungs. Fuquay was a comic in Lily K. Wells' "Bubble Bubble," Columbia burlesque show, last season and more recently appeared in stock in Cleveland, O. He was 2 1/2 member of the Elks' Lodge at Grafton, W. Va., and the Elks of New York sent the remains to his cousin Elks in Evansville, Ind., where interment was made. The deceased had only recently been engaged by Nat Morton for one of Fred Clark's Shows on the Columbia Circuit. A cousin, Eva Wallace, of Evansville, Ind., survives.

GAREISEN—Mrs. Mahel Fonda, of Rochester, N. Y., died suddenly August 29 at the home of a friend in New York City. Mrs. Gareisen was well known in dramatic circles. She founded the Children's Theater Guild of Rochester, one of the first organizations of its kind in the country. Her husband, Oscar Gareisen, is a member of the Eastman School of Music faculty. Others surviving are her mother, Mrs. Ten Evick Fonda, and three brothers, Hilton and Bruce Fonda of Omaha, Neb., and Elmer Fonda, of New York.

GEERS—Edward F. (Pop), 73, dean of American harness drivers and known for many years as the "Grand Old Man of the Trotting Turf," died September 3 at the Ohio Valley General Hospital, Wheeling, W. Va., as the result of injuries sustained several hours earlier when his mare, Madi Guy, stumbled and fell during the first harness race of the day at the recent Virginia State Fair. Dislocated from the overturned sulky, Geers was thrown more than 100 feet into the air. The day had been set aside as "Geers' Day" at the State fair and an immense crowd had turned out to honor the premier reinsman, who for more than fifty years had been making history on the American turf. In addition to his skill as a driver Geers was noted for his success in developing champions. In all-round horsemanship he was not only one of the several world's single harness drivers, both trotting and pacing, but he also took the team records in both classes and held the world's triplicate team record, won in one of the most spectacular events ever seen on a race track. The total earnings of the deceased for his employers and himself in fifty years' driving are said to total more than $3,000,000. Funeral services were held September 5 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wallace W. Cunningham at Memphis, Tenn., with whom he had made his home for many years, following which the body was forwarded to Columbia, Tenn., where interment was made September 6.

GLENNEY—Hertbert, 41, English character comedian, died recently in St. George's Hospital, London, England, after undergoing an operation for gastric ulcers. Following funeral services August 5 the remains were interred in Hammersmith Cemetery. Many beautiful floral wreaths were contributed by friends of the profession.

GOLDENSON—Mose, 27, stage manager of the Majestic Theater, Des Moines, Ia., and a veteran of the World War, died recently at the Iowa Lutheran Hospital in Des Moines.

GURAN—Dave, 55, advance agent, for the past ten years associated with Jacobs & Jermon, burlesque producers, in that capacity, died September 4 in New York City of heart trouble.

HAMMOND—C. W., 59, of the Hammond Musical Dramatic Company, died July 22 at his home in Ft. Morgan, Cal., according to information just received. The deceased had been engaged in lyceum and chautauqua work for many years. His widow survives.

HOEY—James Francis (Young Mule), 62, brother of "Old Hoey" Hoey and remembered by thousands of patrons of the old variety show, died August 31 in the South Shore Hospital of Bay Shore, L. I., of acute indigestion. "Old Mule" as he was commonly known, started his fun-making career in Manhattan and in his prime had played in most of the cities in this country and some in Europe. He appeared time and again in Tony Pastors, New York, and in the Athenaeum and the Boston houses. He set out at one time with Weber, of the famous Weber and Fields, in whose recently published biographies in the Saturday Evening Post he is mentioned. His brother, Charles Hoey, was a member of the team of Evans and Hoey, which played at the old Madison Square Theater on West Twenty-fourth street, New York, when that house was under the management of Charles H. Hoyt. "A Parlor Match" was their most successful piece. Jim had been in reduced circumstances for the past several years and had acted as caddy on the links of the Sayville Golf Club. He was 212 years old when he died at home, a fine old house on a large plot that ran thru from Kandy avenue to Edwards avenue in Sayville, L. I. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Hoey, who was Mary Agnes Smith, and three sisters, Mrs. Frederick Bryant, Mrs.

John Connolly and another married sister named Kitty. Following a requiem high mass by Father George Gardner in St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic Church, Sayville, N. Y., interment was in St. Lawrence's cemetery.

HYDELL—Edward (Stunt), 47, co-manager of the J. L. Cronin Show, died August 30 at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington, Ky., from typhoid fever. The deceased had been with the Cronin Show since 1911. The body, accompanied by Mrs. J. L. Cronin was shipped to Chillicothe, O., where interment was made.

KOENIG—William A. J., 54, real estate dealer and active in the development of Howard Beach, on Jamaica Bay, N. Y., died recently at his home at the beach.

KELLY—J. W. (Red), well-known concessionaire, died recently at a hospital in Ponca City, Ok., following a two weeks' illness of stomach trouble.

LEIGH—Fred W., 34, songwriter, associated for more than a score of years with the English publishing firm of Francis & Day, died August 22 in London, Eng., after a long illness. His widow survives.

LYON—Bert E., 66, well-known publicity promoter for pageants and civic celebrations in and around Troy, N. Y., his native town, died September 4 at Asbury Park, N. J., where he moved a year ago. His widow, one son and a brother survive. Funeral services were held September 5 in Troy.

MANLEY—E. H., 67, died August 27 at her home in Kansas City, Mo. The deceased was the mother of Edward M. Manley who for the past few seasons has been pianist for Anita Arlis, star of "The Chocolate Soldier," and of late pianist for Lowell Gordon, Canadian concert tenor. Burial was in Leavenworth, Kan.

PAPPALARDO—Gaspar, leader of the Hotel Gayso Orchestra, Memphis, Tenn., was killed (as mentioned in the news section of the last issue) August 31 when his automobile went into a ditch near Jackson, Miss., as he was returning to Memphis from a visit to the Gulf Coast. The deceased was one of the best-known musicians in the South. His wife survives.

PFEIFER—John Andrew, 70, better known as "Waxy" in the circus profession, died September 8 in Cincinnati, O., from cancer, after an illness of two weeks. The deceased was a harness maker with the John Robinson, Hagoback-Wallace and other white-top organizations.

PEREZ—Madame Louis, European vaudeville artiste, died August 17 in Manchester, Eng. Her husband, also a professional, survives.

RAPPOLD—Dr. Julius Caesar, 54, former Metropolitan opera soprano, died September 5 at his residence, 750 Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., following an apoplectic stroke. The deceased and Mme. Rappold were married in 1881, separating in 1906. Mme. Rappold obtained a divorce in Colorado in 1913. A daughter, Lillian Rappold; his mother, two brothers and two sisters survive.

READICK—Frank, vaudeville man and member of the N. V. A., died August 27 in New York City and funeral services were held August 29 at the Universal Funeral Parlors, 51st street and Lexington ave. Readick lived at 250 West 51st street, New York.

SAMUELS—S. Frank, producer and comedian, died August 17, according to information just received.

SCOTT—Bernard D., 27, actor, died September 3 at the Blue Ridge Sanatorium, Lynchburg, Va., where he had been confined since May. The deceased had been a member of various tabloid companies and for the past few seasons in vaudeville with Lytle Sudder.

SMITH—Mrs. Fannie, mother of Frank A. Freeman, of the team of Dixon and Freeman, died July 2 at the home of her son, a motorcycle-race rider, in Reading, Pa., according to word received from Mr. Freeman.

SMITH—Mrs. Emma S. (Emma Janvier), well-known actress, died August 31 at a sanatorium near Boston, Mass. The deceased made her first appearance with Herbert Kiefer and Elsie Sherman in "The Motif and the Flame" played with Richard Cartie in "The Spring Chicken," with George M. Cohan in "Fifty Miles From Boston," in "The Grass Widow," "Two Little Girls in Blue" and was appearing in "Poppy" when stricken with her last illness. She is survived by three young sons and two sisters, Mrs. Nellie S. Clark of Heath, Mass., and Mrs. Thomas Albert of Canton, O.

STRUB—Thomas M., 65, head of the famous Strub Family of bicyclists, etc., of old-time circus days, died August 30 at the Hamilton County Home, Cincinnati, O., of cerebral hemorrhage. He was born in Birmingham, England, and in his day had been a prominent artist, having appeared with many of the large circuses, including the Barnum & Bailey, Sells Bros., Forepaugh-Sells, Robinson and Wallace shows. It is understood that Tony Pastor brought him to this country in the early 80s. The deceased also had out his own show and traveled practically all over the world. Burial was September 2 in Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati.

TOLLES—James P., business manager of the Noshua, N. H., literary band for many years, died August 27 at his home in Nashua.

TRACY—Jennie, wife of Fred Tracy, professionally known as Fred and Jennie O'Brien, died May 20 in Cincinnati, O., and was buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery, that city, it has just been learned.

TRACY—Helen, 74, veteran actress, died September 5 at the Actors' Fund Home, Staten Island, N. Y. Her death followed an apoplectic stroke several days previous. She was born in Jacksonville, Fla., and began her stage career with a stock company in San Francisco, and joined Wallace's company in New York in 1870, subsequently appearing with Helen Modjeska and Don Houlihan. She starred for several seasons with Kiralfy. The deceased supported Mary Manning in the original company of Marice Monodelli, and for five years with Mrs. Leslie Carter in "The Heart of Maryland," "Zaza" and other plays.

WAYNE—Frank, a well-known "al fresco" favorite in the Blackpool district of England, died there August 16. He was much esteemed in the town, where he spent many months of each year over a long period.

The deceased was said to have been a champion boxer. Her husband, in Seattle, Wash., survives.

MARRIAGES

In the Profession

DOLLARHIDE-PEY—O. M. Dollarhide, a clarinet player in Allen's Famoso, Lane and Pauline Fox, of the American Beauty Show, both with the C. R. Leppert Shows, were married recently in Haverhill, Mass.

EVANSON-CLIFFORD—Harry Evanson, leader of Pantages' orchestra, Portland, and Marion Clifford, formerly with James Adley's Syncopators, were married recently in St. Mary's Cathedral, Portland. Mr. Evanson is one of the best-known leaders in the profession, having served in that capacity for 17 Portland houses for the past eighteen years. He is a musician of ability, having studied in both France and Germany.

EWING-ADAMS—C. Cecil Ewing, of the Liberty Theater staff, Yakima, Wash., and Helen Adams, of the same city, were married recently in Ellensburg, Wash.

HATHORN-BISH—Griffith Lewis Gordon, well known in the show world and music circles, and Mabel Fely Bush, nonprofessional, were married August 18 at the home of the brides' parents in Benton Harbor, Mich. Mr. Gordon no longer in the profession, is a professor of music at the Pennsylvania (Ok.) University. The couple will be at home after October 1 in that city.

JAMES KING—Stanley James and Gladys King, of "The Melodies," were married at St. Stephen's Church, Clapham Park, England, August 16.

JOHNSTONE-HAWKINS—Rev. Charles Wagner Johnstone and Alzada E. Hawkins, nonprofessional, of Havana, Ill., were married August 27 in that city. Previous to his retirement from the profession three years ago Rev. Johnstone had been with Hingling Bros., Sparks, Nat. Bods, Johnny J. Jones, Ruben & Cherry and C. A. Wortham shows.

LISTER-SWINTON—Francis Lister and Nora Swinton, members of the cast of "In the Next Room," playing London, England, were married the morning of August 19 at St. Alban's Church, Golders Green, London. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the hall adjoining the church.

ROADES-WALTON—A. W. ("Dusty") Rodes, drummer, with the S. S. Leathman Band, and Katherine Walton, nonprofessional, were married September 6 at Louisville, Ky.

SOMMERVILLE-ALLEN—Ralph E. Somerville, boss butcher of the Main Circus, and Jennie Allen, professional, of Clarendon, N. H., were married August 6.

TINKER-ABBOTT—W. C. Tinker, an old-time trouper of the white tops since 1882, and Mrs. Clara Abbott, of Ft. Payne, Ala., were married August 7 in that city, where Mr. Tinker is director of the American Legion Post Band.

COMING MARRIAGES

In the Profession

Wallace D. Driver, of Driver Bros., Chicago, and Velta Clark, of Los Angeles, Calif., are to be wed in that city September 11 and after an extensive trip thru the West will make their home at 542 W. Walton street, Chicago. Mr. Driver is a son of Walter F. Driver, an extensive and successful manufacturer of tents.

Anita B. Damrosch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, of 116 East Sixty-first street, New York, is engaged to marry Robert Littell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Littell, of New York. Miss Damrosch is a granddaughter of James C. Bidine, Secretary of State under President Garfield, and of Dr. Leopold Damrosch, founder of the Symphony and Oratorio societies of New York. Her father is a famous orchestral conductor. Mr. Littell is an editor of The New Republic. His connection with The New Republic, no doubt, explains the mistake made by a newspaper in Paris recently, which published the announcement of Miss Damrosch's engagement to Robert Morris Lovett, editor of The New Republic. The announcement was copied in a number of newspapers in New York and brought a prompt denial from Miss Damrosch in Paris, who said she was not even acquainted with Mr. Lovett.

John R. Hoppe, well-known sunny novelty man, of Coney Island, N. Y., and Rose Abbott, daughter of Selma Abbott, will be married during mardi gras week at the famous beach resort. This wedding will mark the culmination of a romance that began several years ago in old Dreamland Park when the fathers of Miss Abbott and Mr. Hoppe were engaged in business there until it burned down. Mr. Hoppe has been a concessionaire in Luna Park for several years and he and Miss Abbott have long been popular with permanent residents of Coney Island.

Lilynn Tashman, stage and screen actress, is engaged to marry Edmund Lowe, one of the younger leading men of Hollywood, according to announcement made September 5. Miss Tashman is at present appearing in support of Betty Compson in the screen version of "The Garden of Woodstock."

The engagement of Albert J. Lovatelli, director of a chain of theaters in Somerville, Mass., and Emily O'Brien has been announced. It is said the romance began when the couple attended school in Somerville.

BIRTHS

To Members of the Profession

To Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Berkholtz, a son September 2, in Marion, O. The parents are members of the Mitt Tolbert Stock Company.

To Mr. and Mrs. Tom White (White and

DIVORCES

In the Profession

Ann Suter, vaudeville actress, has filed suit in the District of Columbia Supreme Court against Vincent Marchant, who, she says, also is known as Vincenzo A. Marchant, and also as Vincenzo A. Magnoroli, to have their marriage dissolved.

Howard Trussdale, film actor, suing under the name of Charles Howard Finch, obtained a divorce September 4 in Los Angeles, Cal., from Marie B. Fish. The couple have been separated for some time, Trussdale living in Los Angeles and his wife in New York.

Clayton Hale, film star, was sued for divorce August 27 in Los Angeles, Calif., by Victoria E. Hale.

Richard Welsh, a clown with the Sells-Flannerys, was made defendant in a suit for divorce filed August 30 in Cincinnati, by Jean Marie Welsh. They were married in 1918 and have one child.

Harley, motion picture press agent, has been named defendant in a suit brought by his wife, Marion Haslip Harley, for divorce in the New York Supreme Court. Mrs. Harley divorced last season in one of the "Follies" comedies.

John Godwin McGuire, a "Follies" girl, who will shortly be seen in the role of understudy for the lyric soprano lead in "Annabelle," parted with last week's husband, Oscar H. Gumbles, a real estate man, of New Orleans, La., had sued for divorce recently. Mrs. McGuire lives with her mother, Mrs. Susan Stanton, at 53 West Fifty-first street, New York.

Pauline, well-known showgirl, has been named defendant in a divorce action filed September 3 in Grand Rapids, Mich., by Mrs. Logan Pollock. They were married in 1918. Judge Frankner, of the Supreme Court of New York, reserved decision September 3 on the appeal of Mrs. Salome B. Sher, wife of the famous musical comedy singer, for $5000 counsel fees and alimony at the rate of $15,000 per year pending determination of the suit brought against her by her husband, asking for a separation.

A CORRECTION

Correction is made of several errors in the obituary of Allen Nishwatz in the issue of August 30. Mr. Nishwatz was not married, as stated, and died at the home of his sister, Mrs. H. E. Brooks, 117 W. 17th street, New York. His mother, Mrs. Isadora Nishwatz, of Chicago, and his sisters, Mrs. H. E. Brooks, of New York, and Mrs. Nina E. Velt, of Detroit, Mich., survive.

paying the actors for their services. This announcement, however, reminds us of the kind that are usually sent out of managers' offices by the publicity department in the spring and fall relative to contemplated new productions and are seldom heard of again.

Ship Concerts Aid Actors' Fund

The Actors' Fund has received $2,500 during the past four months from the U. S. steamship lines. This represented one-third of the gross amount received from concerts given by the theatrical profession on their steamships for this period. The other two-thirds was distributed among the Seaman's Aid Societies in America and Europe.

London Has Theatrical Boom

We hear that London is in the first stages of a theatrical boom. Production activities, it is declared, never were so feverish at this time of the year.

each to the stage guild. The Actors' Association is launching a big campaign against the Guild, starting with a boycott of Eva Moore at Edgewater tomorrow; also against Sgt. John Marshall Harvey at Newcastle. It is alleged that Percy Hutchinson this week at Edgewater is propagandizing for the Guild and trying to proselyte the house staff. Hence the Federal Council is asking every union to boycott the Guilds.

The Variety Artistes' Federation is issuing a warning to vaudeville artists against joining the Guild and the opinion is that the Guild aspires to be the British N. V. A.; consequently the V. A. F. is well on its guard.

ing the liveliest interest before the week is out and before another fortnight the fame of the new ones will have arrested country-wide attention and curiosity.

The name of the play is "What Price Glory". It was written by Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings, both members of The New York World, and is a war play. Arthur Hopkins produced it and the Plymouth Theater was the scene of its triumphant premiere.

Maxwell Anderson was not entirely unknown to Broadway. His tragedy, "White Desert", produced October 17 last, while it ran only twelve performances, served notice on the street that a new and highly promising playwright had arrived.

Laurence Stallings during the war was a captain of the United States Marines on duty in Belgium Wood, and undoubtedly in a large measure supplied the wonderful local color in which the play so richly abounds.

The play is wonderful. Not in years has New York seen such like. One and all are marked by the most extravagant enthusiasm and most unbounded praise.

The first night audience was aroused to perfect demonstration. To a man, it was held fast and unshaken until the final curtain and remained long after wildly applauding and fairly roaring approval. The ovation was renewed again yesterday afternoon, and last night the reception accorded the piece was even more demonstrative.

It is beyond peradventure of doubt the most colossal success in a decade. Even the sophisticated critics of the New York dailies got up and cheered impressively the opening night, yelling for the authors and in all the highways and byways of Broadway, at the Lambert, Friars', Green Room and other playhouse clubs, the newly arrived knockout was the chief topic of discussion. Veterans in its favor were magnanimous everywhere along the leg street.

Apart from its achievement as the best war play written since the beginning of the great holocaust, the success is certain to attain proves one thing at least; that the attitude of most of the Broadway managers in recent years toward war plays, very much the same attitude a full measure when a red flag is waved before him, has been a pretty poor barometer of what the public wants, provided it is served up in palatable style.

ments than they were last year at this time. An extra rosy tinge is given the outlook, they point out, when it is realized that the theaters at the present time are depending for their patronage upon the native New Yorkers, the heavy influx of tourists having not as yet begun.

"Rose Marie" took the lead among the shows that opened this week, "The Green Beetle" and "Hugs" coming in for comparatively heavy sales. Generally speaking all the opening shows are doing according to reports, an unusually strong business for the first week.

Despite the reports of the thumping pace hit for the first week of the season, Joe LeBlang's cigarette shop today had a goodly number of shows to offer, the selections of the better going attractions being confined to the cheaper-priced tickets. The shows listed on LeBlang's boards this evening included "Strange Bed Follies" at the Grand Hotel, "Bye Bye Bar-Ban" at the Strand, "White Cargo" at Deloy's, "The Easy Mark" at the 36th Street, "Swoney Todd" at the "Frazee", "The Miracle" at the Century, "Haywe" at the Maxine Elliott, "Nervous" at the Comedy, "Papa Morgana" at the Garrick, "The Wonderful Visit" at the Princess, "Tantum" at the Cort, "Werewolf" at the 49th Street, "The Swan" at the Empire and "Keep Cool" at the Earl Carroll.

HARRY TAMMEN'S ESTATE PLACED AT $2,000,000

Denver, Col. Sept. 8.—The will of Harry H. Tamm, former circus man and one of the owners of The Denver Post, who died last July, was admitted to probate here today. The will provides for the distribution of an estate which is conservatively estimated at $2,000,000, according to reports.

KENNEDY SHOW TRAIN LOADED, UNDER GUARD AT DETROIT

Washington officials, making every effort to have the show released in order to proceed to Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5.—Acting on instructions from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, Fred L. Woodworth, collector of internal revenue here, with Chief Field Deputy J. W. Jordan, of Detroit, and a squad of deputies, seized the Con T. Kennedy Shows Wednesday morning, and Roy Johnson, assistant chief of the internal revenue field agents, was placed in charge of the show for the duration of its stay here at the Michigan State Fair. Johnson was given a sufficient number of deputies to assume custody of the receipts at all of the gates. Mr. Woodworth said the collector of internal revenue at Austin had complained the show owed the United States more than $100,000 in admission taxes.

An air of mystery seems to prevail over the entire outfit. When asked for a statement regarding the attachment of his shows, Con T. Kennedy replied that he had nothing to say at present and was just laying low awaiting developments. But, after a few moments' conversation on various subjects apart from business, he changed to a pleasant mood.

"Everything will be all straightened out in a day or so, and all arrangements have been completed to move my show train and all equipment to Poplar Bluff, Mo., where I play next week. My general agent, E. C. Talbot, and W. X. MacCollin, press representative, are there now attending to final details. I have at this fair the biggest lineup of shows and rides I ever carried."

Eight rides and twenty-two paid shows are with the Kennedy Shows playing the fair. An internal revenue officer has been on the show since last April, when the Government seized it at Corsicana, Tex., for alleged back payment of war tax. In some manner an agreement was arranged to pay the alleged back tax in weekly installments, and the show was allowed to proceed to its next stand—St. Louis—and operate.

Business this season has been far behind that of former years. The show has been making a hard struggle to keep going.

Attachment notices have been tacked on all of the show cars.

In The Detroit News today appeared the following: "The Con T. Kennedy Shows will be permitted to operate at the State Fair until the close of the fair, and then will be sold to the highest bidder: at public auction that the Government may obtain admission tax money alleged to be due, it was announced today by Wm. Stencil, chief deputy revenue collector. Mr. Stencil estimated that the shows owed approximately $100,000 in admission taxes to the collector at Austin, Tex., the show's winter quarters."

"Revenue officers are in possession of the ticket offices and are taking possession of all revenues except the percentage allowed the State Fair Association by the contract entered into by the management of the Kennedy Shows and the wages of the employees of the shows."

"The collector will sell the property as soon as the State Fair is over and the proceeds from this sale will be credited to the admission tax account of the Kennedy Shows," said Mr. Stencil. "None of the employees will lose his wages."

"2d. To establish the rate for carnivals at $75 for the first day and $50 for each additional day.

"3d. To amend the zoning ordinance so as to prohibit carnivals from operating in zones A, B, C."

The finance committee will hold up this report until it can get in touch with some carnival men and give them an opportunity to state their side of the case.

Originally it had been planned to make the license for these shows $175 for the first day and $100 for each additional day.

New Parade Ordinance Passed

Incidentally an ordinance governing parades by a vote of 7 to 2, was passed by the city council this week and now goes to Mayor Coyer for his approval or veto. Parades will be prohibited in the downtown business district, except on special permit granted by city council, under the terms of the ordinance. This district is bounded by Sunset boulevard, Pico, San Pedro and Figueroa streets. Heretofore parade permits had to be gotten from the Chief of Police.

REVIVE "WELCOME, STRANGER"

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The first individual production by Carl Barrett for the Central Theater will be a revival of "Welcome Stranger" tomorrow. This play was brought to Cohan's Grand, season 1916-17, and ran there for twenty weeks with George Sidney in the principal part. Harry Hershberg will play the part created by Mr. Sidney in the revival at the Central.

DAVENPORT WITH DRAMATISTS

New York, Sept. 6.—Harry Davenport, for several seasons with Winchell Smith's "Thank You", has signed with the Dramatists' Theater, Inc., for the leading role in "Cook of the Boat", a new play by Rida Johnson Young. The comedy will be shown for the first time in Washington, D. C., about the last week of this month.

PLAYS FOR AUSTRALIA

New York, Sept. 6.—Sir George Tallis, representative of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., has secured the Australian rights to "Seventh Heaven" and "Thank You" from John Golden. Sir George is angling for the rights to "Pigs", the comedy by Anne Morrison and Patterson McNutt, which opened recently at the Little Theater.

GLADIATOR ACT IN "FOLLIES"

New York, Sept. 5.—Florenz Ziegfeld introduced a new act in "The Follies" at the New Amsterdam Theater this week known as "The Athenas". This team of acrobats was brought over from France for the Ben A. Haignaz setting in the second act. They appear in this scene as tumbling gladiators.

SHOWMEN'S LEAGUE NOTES

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Tom Rankine, custodian of the Showmen's League of America, said receipts from Showmen's League Day have started to come in. He commented on the fact that so many nonmembers have already sent in sums to add the league's clear table work. Mr. Rankine believes this may mean quite a few new members, and that nonmembers who are sending in money must have grasped the fact of the league's good work.

Among the callers at the league rooms, whom Mr. Rankine entertained this week, were Sam S. Sobinski, Beaumont, Tex.; W. D. McIntosh, Joe Scholten, James W. Howe, Ben D. Roodhouse, Don L. Murray, Joe Harrington, Pete Rogers and Al Latta.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its first meeting of the season last night in the auxiliary club-rooms.

CLARENCE A. WORTHAM'S WORLD'S BEST SHOWS

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 3.—The finish of the week of Clarence A. Wortham's World's Best Shows at Council Bluffs might be called "The Tale of Two Cities", because Omaha, just across the river, and closer to the lot than residential Council Bluffs, contributed a tremendous night to the midway. The delegation from the other side brought out many newspaper folk and others who are interested in the outdoor show world. Heading the list was President Gardiner, of the Ak-Sar-Bon Association, which stages the big doings in the Corn Palace town every year. There were many other visitors. Saturday, the B. & O. shows sailed thru town and a number of that company dropped off, including Bandmaster Earl Strout, who made his second visit of the year to the show. Mrs. Fred Beckmann returned to Council Bluffs after a week's visit with Mrs. Louise Brown, a sister of Mr. Beckmann, who lives at Oskaloosa. They went to the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines and spent two days in the Capital City. Mrs. J. L. ("Judge") Barnes hails from Pleasantville, Ia., and many of her relatives have visited her and "Judge". Council Bluffs gave the shows a good business and demonstrated it was ready for any winter-coming outdoor amusement. It was one of those "had-it-if-it-rains" kind, but it did not rain on Saturday night.

Coming into St. Joseph the shows were held for a few minutes to let the Gold Medal Shows clear the yards, while en route to the Harrison County Fair at Bethany. However, the show got on the lot for Monday. A rain in the forenoon gave the company no great turnout until night, but there was plenty of business after dark. Monday night it turned cool, the first nip of fall, but since then the weatherman has dealt out some fine sunshine, which brought St. Joseph out with its curiosity togs on, and the week will doubtless round out well.

"Uncle" Whittenberg and his wife, Pearl, rejoined the Tanglefoot Wild West show for the balance of the season. Balmie Arbama has its charms, but they are not strong enough to keep "Bob" Shaw, the rube man, who also came back. Tommy Myers has a new and grand front of white and blue for his "Rocky Road to Dublin". The last visit of Clarence A. Wortham's Shows to the Kansas fairs was four years ago. The locations are familiar to both Messrs. Beckmann and Gerety, but with a much bigger show and more rides this year both gentlemen went to Topeka to put the tape on the ground and try to shrink the show to fit its new lawn there.

EXCELLENT ATTENDANCE

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—This week finds the T. A. Wolfe Shows at Indianapolis, the crowning midway and carnival feature of the Indiana State Fair. The show arrived here after a long and good trip from Chicago, and to say it continued till daylight. In this downpour the T. A. Wolfe forces labored all day long. Secretary W. M. Jones and the State Fair officials, fearful the big tent show would not be up in time on the morning, soon changed their minds when they looked upon the almost perfect organization. Mr. Wolfe has constituted as the next day at 9 a.m. when the fair started, the attractions were up and operating in classy fashion. Like the fair promoter, that beat all records for attendance Labor Day, yesterday and today, the Wolfe Shows have followed suit and records "Ditto." Never has the T. A. Wolfe "layout" looked so beautiful, so large and so pleasing, instructive and interesting. The midway has been packed with lovers of high quality entertainment the first three days. On Labor Day, Hon. E. J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, "took in" the Shows. He said: "I never witnessed a better line of performances." Hon. Thomas Marshall, ex-vice president; Mayor Louis Shank and staff; ex-Governor Durbin, of Anderson, Ind., and Governor Branch, of Indiana, didn't miss a show or ride, and the Governor remarked: "The T. A. Wolfe Shows are a credit to the State Fair, with it is enlightening, and to all showmen." The Indianapolis News gave a special story, by its special feature writer, Miss Branson; a cartoon from the pen of Kin Hubbard, entitled "With Hubbard in the Midway". The Indianapolis Star had the famed "Mary Postwick" reflect the Wolfe Shows in a story in her peculiar way. "Hick", the clever feature writer of The Indianapolis Times, and his cartoonist, gave a column and a quartet of spicy railing and pictures. Bert Wondra, who 21 years ago was assistant to the late Capt. Jack Bonavia with his trained lions, dropped in upon the old-time Bostock trouper on the shows—John Guilfoyle, Claude Kenead, H. B. Potter, Robert L. Hutchinson, and the writer. Zeke B-Witt has returned from a visit to his mother at Winchester, Ind. Frank Day, musician, and his wife, Betty Day, diver, have joined the water show. Tex Estridge is now manager of the Wild Animal Stadium. Carl Snyder is with the Gen. Nadron brigade selling sweetmeats. W. S. (BUD) Yates is a new addition to John Finckler's band. Win. Ruddy, who from 1981 to 1992 had the rag stock with the Buffalo Bill Wild West, surprised the showfolk when he appeared in the Fire Department company stationed on the fair grounds. A noted visitor was "Cap" Hall, former politician, soldier, former showman, now general manager of The Franklin (Ind.) Star. Doc Morrison registered in The Horseman of Indianapolis, across the week a picture of T. A. Wolfe, headed "The Young Barman". Most of the people on the show took part in the "Memory" contest. Frank C. Bostock, the animal king, Captain Jack Bonavia, Max Key, who was the showman's Chinese Mayor of America when he lived, and to Champy Morland and wife, who in their day were fat people, the latter being buried in Indianapolis—eyes were held at their graves and flowers placed thereon.

The most remarkable idea ever conceived. Our "DIAMOND" deal does not look like an ordinary salesboard, but still contains 1200 holes.

TAKING THE COUNTRY BY STORM! Wonderfully Handsome—5 Beautiful Colors. A magnificent 14-kt. solid gold, platinum finish top ring, set with a brilliant genuine diamond, is inserted in the center of board as the main premium. In addition, 26 other rewards, having a total value of $16.50 are paid out by the dealer. Sets on sight for $25.00, giving a profit of $38.50.

JOBBERS' and OPERATORS' Price: $25.00

Every salesboard operator should IMMEDIATELY order a sample of our "DIAMOND" outfit, for it is the greatest proposition ever produced. We guarantee satisfaction or your money returned.

QUICK! Exclusive territory to first comers. This outfit will be the biggest seller this fall, so don't hesitate.
