Introduction

The EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) represents a significant change in the data protection compliance regime for data controllers and data processors.

Information is an important and valuable asset to any organisation. Personal data may be used for many different reasons, for example staff administration, the provision of goods or services to customers, marketing strategies, prevention of money laundering, a revenue stream etc.

Transitioning to the new regime

The exercise of proper control and management of personal data is fundamental to ensure, and be able to demonstrate, compliance with the GDPR. Transitioning to the new regime will be challenging and require both personnel and financial resources. The level of existing compliance will affect the resources that are required.

However, taking a positive approach, and embracing the changes, will improve customer trust, records management and business opportunities, such as those associated with the digital economy.

Using this resource

This resource is intended to be a non-legal tool to assist in the creation of an inventory of personal data processed, map the processing of personal data and analyse the legal basis of the processing.

Staff at all levels should be involved to establish what processing occurs – front line staff may well have a different experience to that of senior management.

In-depth knowledge of the GDPR is not required to use this resource.

However, an honest analysis is required and if the answer to a question is “Don’t know” or “Not sure” – write that down.

The more honest and comprehensive the analysis is, the easier it will subsequently be to identify processing that may require review and evaluation against the GDPR principles and whether/how the new accountability and risk-based security requirements are to be implemented. (Further resources on these areas will be released in due course)

NOTE:

The GDPR (or the existing Data Protection Act) does not apply to data that is anonymised in such a way that an individual can no longer be identified from the information on its own, or “reconstituted” with other data to enable identification, as it is no longer “personal data”.

This resource is in two sections:

Section 1 - A quick review – What is the current position .....	4
Section 2 - Mapping the 5W's .....	6
WHY ... is personal data processed?.....	7
WHOSE ... personal data is processed?.....	9
WHAT ... personal data is processed?.....	11

Section 1 - A quick review – What is the current position

To establish a base-line it may be necessary to assess current awareness and compliance with the existing Data Protection Act.

This is not intended to be an in-depth exercise.

In many cases it will be beneficial to ask various parts of the organisation, at different levels, for responses.

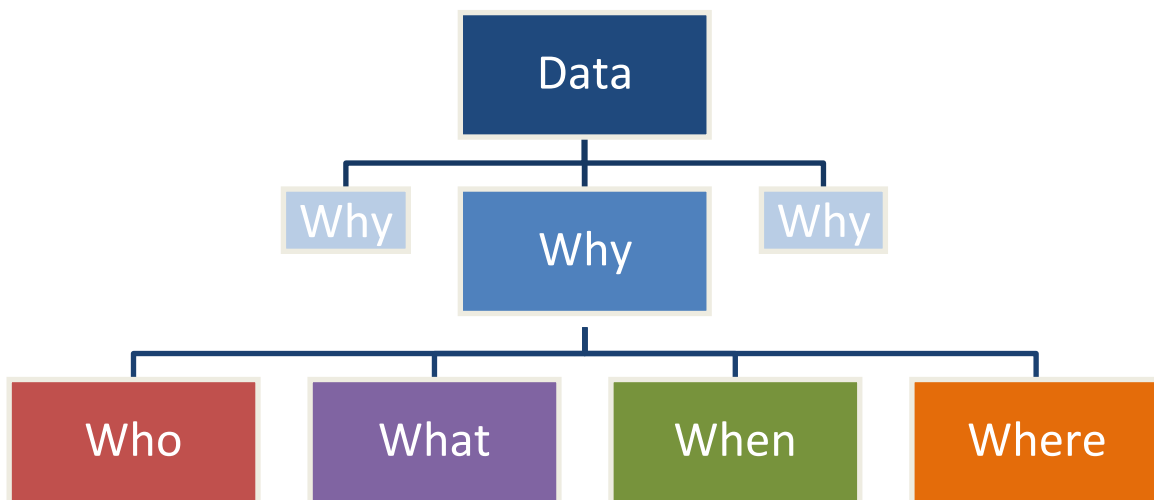

An honest appraisal will provide a good starting point for moving to compliance with the GDPR by establishing whether/what awareness-raising needs to occur and to consider existing policies and procedures.

A quick review – what is the current position	Response Yes/No/Being implemented
Senior management awareness <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Regularly discuss data protection</li> <li>• GDPR has been recognised as a challenge to the business</li> </ul>
Data protection policies and procedures (including retention and disposal schedules) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• in place</li> <li>• compliance is monitored</li> <li>• compliance can be evidenced</li> <li>• regularly reviewed</li> <li>• communicated to staff</li> </ul>
Information security  Policies and procedures: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• in place</li> <li>• compliance is monitored</li> <li>• compliance can be evidenced</li> <li>• regularly reviewed</li> <li>• communicated to staff</li> </ul> Formal mechanisms in place to identify breaches and handle incidents <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• in place</li> <li>• compliance is monitored</li> <li>• compliance can be evidenced</li> <li>• regularly tested &amp; reviewed</li> <li>• communicated to staff</li> </ul>
Clear and accessible fair processing information given to individuals
New projects and initiatives <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• “privacy-proofed” at the planning stage</li> <li>• Reviewed during development, testing and delivery stage, i.e. pre- and post-implementation</li> <li>• ‘Privacy impact assessments’ are conducted when necessary</li> </ul>

Section 2 - Mapping the 5W's

This section provides guidance for all controllers (and processors) in creating an inventory and map of data processing activities. In many cases, application/contact forms (hard copy or online) will often provide a good point from which to start to follow the data trail for customers and similarly for staff.

Whilst this resource follows the path below, it is only a guide to the basic thought-process. The type, complexity, volume, sensitivity or risk of the processing may require a more "in-depth" or sophisticated exercise.

The information collated will help inform the next steps – compliance with the principles and rights, and creating the "records of processing activities" required (in some cases) by Article 30 of the GDPR.

WHY

WHY ... is personal data processed?

Personal data is broadly defined in the GDPR and means any information relating to a natural person who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, online identifier or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that person.

Consider all areas of the business and list all the reasons that personal data is used.

Non-exhaustive examples of why personal data is used include:

- Staff administration
- Basic client administration
  - Examples of clients could be any one or more of;
    - account holder
    - customer
    - pupil
    - offender
    - patient
- Legal obligations (specify)
  - Examples include
    - AML/CFT/due diligence
    - Tax
    - Work permits
- Provision of goods or services
  - is this provided
